About Old Age.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

FOURTEEN able British newspaper men, led by Ralph D. Blumenfeld, editor-in-chief of the London Daily Express, are inspecting this country, invited by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

American publishers will welcome them and learn from them. British newspaper men know one thing very important. They know WHAT NOT TO DO.

SO FAR as Britain and this country are concerned, there is no need to worry about peace. It's here, and to stay.

War doesn't pay. And another war would nearly if not quite wipe out European civilization. Europe knows it.

Our friendship for Canada and that Canadian-United States border line, 3,000 miles long, without a soldier or a fort on it, are the best proof that peace is natural among nations that speak English.

Their job is to persuade some of the others to be peaceful whether they want to or not.

AGITATION in British high church circles, and talk of disestablishment which would take dignitaries from the House of Lords and abolish the national church payroll. The Bishop of Gloucester says that "spiritual independence, even without a salary would be better than being told what kind of prayer book you must have."

Another British bishop says the world is going to the dogs morally. "God has been driven out of the schools," he thinks, "and birth control is undermining the family and sacred marriage."

Unregenerate birth control advocates reply: "If you were trying to bring up 12 children on three pounds a week you'd change your mind."

LINDBERGH wires Mr. Hoover, "I recently have flown to St. Louis to register. The more I see of this campaign, the more strongly I feel that your election is of supreme importance to the country."

That indorsement for many Americans, young and old, will outweigh the opinions of several important Wall Street men.

However, Democrats are not worrying, for Mr. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, assures them that Gov. Smith will carry Illinois.

Every child knows that if Gov. Smith carries Illinois, he will surely carry New York and Massachusetts, and be elected.

SENATOR ROBINSON repeats the Democratic statement that "Republican prosperity is a myth" He calls it "this Republican prosperity balloon."

If there isn't any prosperity, who is buying gasoline for 24,000,000 automobiles running up and down?

IN California, four sons mourn the death of their father, Manuel Portes, chief of the Santa Rosa Indians, dead at 130.

His four sons are all past 90. That's interesting, but all five combined in their 500-odd life years lived less than Lindbergh lived in his 30-odd hours between New York and Paris.

DOCTORS discussing old age and how to attain it, say: "All you do before 40 amounts to little. It's care and intelligence after 40 that counts." That can't be literally true, of course. If you ruin your constitution before 40, you can't repair the damage.

A wise doctor says to his middle-aged patients: "You can only keep what you have left. You can't add to it."

All men are told that if they begin to pay attention at 50, they may add years to their life.

PUBLIC spirited and scientifically interesting is the gift to science of a herd of high grade Holstein cattle by Mrs. Ruth Hannah McCormick, who will represent Illinois as congressman-at-large presently.

The experiment, it is hoped, will check common goitre.

Goitre is cured by iodine. Iodine is found in seaweed. Powdered seaweed is fed to the cows, they deposit the iodine in their milk, farewell goitre.

IT ISN'T imagination. Chemical tests show that the milk of cows fed on powdered seaweed contains 306 parts of iodine in one million.

That will annoy some good ladies and gentlemen who say there is no such thing as sickness, therefore no such thing as a cure.

Perhaps if they had goitre their views would change.

THE giant German dirigible, Count Zeppelin, twice as big as our Los Angeles, has made tests that amaze Europe, machinery working without a flaw, 70 passengers carried over Britain at nearly 100 miles an hour.

Soon that big air boat will be on its way to America. Another triumph for German enterprise, and the beginning of commercial trans-Atlantic air travel.

Two Spurning Graft Probe Face Jail

2 DODGING GRAFT QUIZ FACE JAIL

Two witnesses who ignored subpenas to appear before the vice-graft investigating grand jury, will be haled into court, facing the prospect of jail on contempt charges, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner announced today as the scope of the probe widened to include McKeesport and several boroughs.

Subpenas were served on Matthew Frezonebesky, 114 Grant avenue, Millvale, and Stanley Kersner, 2232 Tustin street, along with 31 others summoning them before the grand jury today. All except the two appeared.

"I will have processes issued to have them brought in," said Gardner. "They will have to face the court for contempt."

These are the first witnesses upon whom service was obtained that have failed to appear, the county prosecutor said.

While county detectives were serving additional subpenas today on North Side ward political leaders and alleged racketeers, the grand jury heard witnesses from McKeesport, Versailles, Millvale and Wilmerding in additional to several from Pittsburgh—31 in all.

"BIG FELLOWS" NEXT

Next week District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner says he will call the "big fellows." Those likely to be called are Public Safety Director James M. Clark, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and — possibly — Mayor Charles H. Kline.

The witnesses who appeared before the grand jury today were:

Joseph McBurney, 1320 Reedsdale street; Joseph Brittian, 1219 Woods Run avenue; Joseph Heuther, 1219 Woods Run avenue; Peter Dmarides, Island Hotel, 1804 East Ohio street; Louis Mercur, Oak Leaf Club, McKeesport; Dan Mauschline, Versailles; Joseph H. Goldstein, 3901 Forbes street; Frank Franz, 1920 Brownsville road; E. A. Strain, 101 Grant avenue, Millvale; Conrad Bronder, janitor, Carrick Literary and Social Club, 210 Copperfield street; Jack Reis, Curtin Inn, 519 Brownsville road, Mount Oliver; A. Schutz, 515 East Diamond street; Charles Pendley, 417 Second avenue; David McClatchey, 6008 Kirkwood street; Tony Winkler, Wilmerding; Sam Sapp, 3006 Preble avenue; Clement Flaruning, Penn and Sheridan avenues, East End; P. Raps Prod Clark

"Brutality and barbarism on the part of policemen will not be tolerated in this department and anyone proved guilty will have to get out," declared Safety Director James M. Clark, in reference to a request from Council for a report on charges made by John J. Verona, alderman and political czar of the Third Ward, that police frequently arrested and cruelly beat innocent residents.

Verona's charges were made in a letter to Mayor Charles H. Kline following the alderman's discharge as police magistrate. A copy of the letter was presented to council last Monday and referred to the public safety committee.

RIGID PROBE LIKELY

While the communication was in the legislative routine and during a discussion of it in committee Tuesday night, evidence was apparent that council would demand a rigid investigation of Verona's charges.

Some of the members showed an inclination to initiate an immediate councilmanic probe, but an agreement was reached to send the letter to Clark and have him report on the veracity of the accusations that police arrested innocent men and

70,000 CROWD SETS SERIES RECORD

By JAMES J. LONG,

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A new record for world series crowds was established here today when approximately 70,000 fans jammed their way into the mammoth Yankee Stadium for the opening game of the Yankees-Cardinals world championship fight. The previous record was 63,600, established in 1926 at the second game of the Yanks-Cards series in this same sports arena.

Although the stadium was little more than two-thirds filled a half-hour before game time, the diamond enthusiasts fairly stormed the big arena in the 30 minutes before play began, and when the battle got under way at 1:30 every available seat and foot of standing space held a St. Louis or New York supporter.

FRISCH GETS BIG HAND

Douthit, the first batter up, was an easy out at first on a hopper to Lazzeri. High fared no better. He died on an easy fly to Paschal. Frisch was given a big hand by his old New York friends when he stepped to the plate, but the best he could do was to send a sharp grounder to Koenig on which he was retired at first with a fast play.

Paschal opened for the Yanks with a fly to left, which Hafey captured. Koenig went out the same way. Ruth was given an ovation on his first appearance at bat in his ninth world series. He responded with a line smash to right center for two bases. The Babe forgot about his sore leg and reached second in a jumping slide. Gehrig followed him with another two-base drive to the right-field corner and Ruth came over with the first run of the game. Sherdel

Pittsburgh's delay in establishing municipal wharves suitable for handling the traffic that will be offered for transportation when the Ohio River is opened for continuous navigation to the Mississippi River next year was placed in a still more unfavorable light today by a survey which disclosed that while the Department of Public Works dilly-dallied in preparation of a plan, numerous private corporations, more forehanded, had established their own terminals on the local rivers.

These concerns, through their traffic representatives, are taking an active part in proceedings of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, which continued today its

COLOR PICTURES PRAISED

Letters from artists, scientists, art admirers and lovers of beauty, received this week by the Sun-Telegraph, give warm praise of the color gravure section brought to Pittsburgh for the first time in last Sunday's Sun-Telegraph, and to be continued each Sunday.

The letters, unsolicited, were spontaneous in their admiration. Some of these, showing what Pittsburghers think of the new supplement, added to an already complete newspaper follow:

Dear Editor:

I feel greatly privileged by the compliment you paid me in selecting two of my sketches for your first supplement in color. I wish to congratulate you upon the faithful and vivid way in which the originals are rendered. It is surprising to note that the colors possess the softness of pastels. The painting by Kuhler of the Bessemer furnace is unusually effective and has a remarkable luminosity, fully preserved in the reproduction. The portrait by Parcell has the rich

Efforts are being made to identify a painter, who yesterday was injured seriously when he fell from a roof of a house at 1234 Day street, North Side. The man, aged about 50, is in a critical condition in the Presbyterian Hospital. Police were told the man's name was James Collis, but they have been unable to learn whether this is correct.

RIDING HOME TO START VACATION, GIRL KILLED

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., Oct. 4.—Riding home on a truck to start a vacation, Miss Ethel Price, 21, employed at the Philipsburg Bank, was killed when the machine crashed with a street car two blocks from the girl's home. Her skull was fractured. Robert J. Bigelow, driver of the truck, and his companion, Lynn Shultz, both of Altoona, were slightly injured.

TRAIN KILLS WORKMAN NEAR STOOPS FERRY

John S. McKeone, 44, of 3031 Terrace street, was found dead on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad tracks at Stoops Ferry early today. He had been struck by a train. McKeone was employed on the construction of the new Dead Man's Island Dam.

FARM WOMAN INJURED AS HORSE RUNS AWAY

ROCHESTER, Pa., Oct. 4.—Thrown from a farm wagon when her horse ran away, Mrs. Catherine Nitche, 53, of Raccoon township, is in a critical condition in Rochester Hospital. It is believed her back is broken.

5 Hurt in Trolley Crash

Five persons were injured this afternoon when the arm of a huge concrete mixer crashed through a window of an outbound Harmony interurban trolley car in Federal street, near the Federal Street Station, and ripped out half a dozen windows before the car could be halted.

The injured, taken to Allegheny General Hospital, suffering from cuts of the hands and face, were Edward A. Lits, 42, of 166 South Nineteenth street; Samuel Langdon, 45, of 400 North Negley avenue; Mrs. Clifford Milner, 36, Negro, 2016 Gerritt street; Mrs. P. Walsh, of 206 Fisk street, Carnegie, and Mrs. W. G. Snyder, 1020 Gerritt street.

The mixer, operated by Walter Hyman, 42, of Schenley avenue, was pouring concrete for the repaving of Federal street under city contract. The arm swung around as the street car was passing. Motorman Albert Campbell, of Zelienople, told police he did not hear the crash at once and the car proceeded a short distance before the cries of passengers caused him to halt the car. McDonough & O'Toole have the street contract.

JANE BOWERS

Jane Bowers has traveled far and has seen much but declares the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph section of pictures in natural colors is in a class of its own. She is an attraction at Loew's Penn Theater this week, appearing with the "High Hat" Company.

JANE HORTON

Jane Horton, who knows much of Spain and things colorful, was charmed with the wonderful color value that the Sun-Telegraph gives its readers in the color gravure section each Sunday. She, too, is of the "High Hat" Company.

GINGER RODGERS

Petite Ginger Rodgers of "High Hat" just enthused over the Sun-Telegraph's new color gravure section. She pronounced its pictures as the nearest perfect reproductions of nature's colors she has ever seen. The section is included in each Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

"COULDN'T BE BETTER."

ALICE ROY

Miss Alice Roy has a love for color and her wide experience and observant nature have made her an authority in that as well as in stage work. Her high estimate of the quality of the Sun-Telegraph color gravure was most enthusiastic. She, too, is one of the "High Hat" Company, the stage attraction accompanying Loew's presentation of the film, "Our Dancing Daughters."

BANK RUNNER ON STAND BRANDS PAIR BANDITS

How shotguns, sawed off to resemble the huge pistols of pirate days, were used in the $14,520 Ward Baking Company holdup, was told on the witness stand in Criminal Court today by Henry Walker, Negro bank messenger, who was forced to look into their muzzles, drop his satchel containing a small fortune, and flee.

The testimony was related before Judge Elder W. Marshall and a jury of nine women and three men hearing the case against three alleged robbers and two alleged conspirators. Those being tried for robbery are John Otis, Long way; Sylvester Mantz, Forty-third street, and Rudy Swiderski. Being tried with them for conspiracy are William Murphy, Thirtieth street, and George Schriber, Arch street.

The robbery, which baffled police and detectives for a month after its occurance April 2, is said to have been solved when the sweetheart of one of the principals "squealed." The girl since has disappeared and cannot be found to testify as a witness.

TELLS OF HOLDUP

Walker, for 24 years messenger for the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, 2815 Penn avenue, a short distance from the Ward plant at 3100 Liberty avenue, testified that he and Edward LeGoullion went, as they did every morning, to the baking company for the daily deposit. They placed about $6,000 in cash and $8,500 in checks in a satchel and started out. Turning down Thirty-first street, they were confronted by three masked robbers who stepped from behind a pole where Thirty-first street crosses Spring alley.

"They had those sawed-off shotguns laid across their arms pointing right in my face," said Walker. "They said, 'stick 'em up and put down that satchel'—and we did."

Walker positively identified Otis and Mantz from the witness stand.

Much of the evidence today had to do with how the men were arrested following the girl's tip, and the manner in which confessions were obtained from them at the police station.

Otis and Mantz were found guilty and Murphy and Schriber were acquitted last week of the Castle Shannon street car dispatcher holdup July 9, when $2,401 was stolen.

SCHOOLGIRL, 13, TAKES POISON

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 4.—In a fit of despondency, Lida Raines, 13-year-old school girl, of West Brownsville, swallowed a poison solution in her home here. She was brought to the Brownsville General Hospital, where her condition today was pronounced good.

Parents of the girl could give no reason for her despondency to police.

Raid Still Close to School

A moonshine plant near the Castle Shannon School was raided early today by prohibition agents who reported confiscating a 200-gallon still and 15 gallons of liquor.

The raid followed the arrest of Tony Spero, 29, of 1432 Hampshire avenue, Beechview, and Ed Tessaro, 22, of Broughton, who, prohibition agents say, carried 75 gallons of moonshine from the house and loaded it into an auto truck. The truck and liquor were confiscated. The two men were held in $1,000 bail.

CORONER INVESTIGATES MUNHALL MAN'S DEATH

The coroner is investigating the death of George Lehoty, 48, of 704 Fourteenth avenue, Munhall, who died in Homestead Hospital early today. Police found Lehoty Sunday lying on a sidewalk in Munhall and bleeding about the head. Hospital authorities reported he had a fractured skull. Efforts are being made to determine whether this resulted from a fall.

TUNNEYS, ON HONEYMOON, LEAVE REPORTERS BEHIND

International News Service.

TERUGIA, Italy, Oct. 4.—Under conditions romantically ideal, Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, and his heiress bride, the former Mary Josephine "Polly" Lauder, today began the first day of their honeymoon in this beautiful little hamlet.

Unharrassed by newspaper men, the fond couple drove up to the picturesque Hotel Brufani here at 11:15 last night and engaged a suite.

Upon their arrival here, Mrs. Tunney animatedly explained to the hotel manager that she had stayed at the Brufani before, and remembered it because she had always wished to spend the first night of her honeymoon amid its scenic beauty.

Gene was more matter of fact.

"Thank God, there aren't any newspaper men here to pester us," he said. "I was afraid we'd find a crowd of them awaiting us."

Coal Belt See-Saws Vote

An interesting battle of straw votes has been engendered in the "anthracite belt" of Pennsylvania by the straw vote canvass of the state conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The deep interest of the inhabitants of this region is shown by the accumulation of ballots recorded in the poll recently from registered electors in the heart of the hard coal sector.

Support of Herbert Hoover and Gov. Alfred E. Smith has fluctuated in the returns filed from day to day in Luzerne, Lackawanna, and Schuylkill counties, embracing the bulk of the nation's anthracite production.

These counties are third, fourth and sixth respectively in population among the counties in Pennsylvania and will provide a considerable part of the total vote in the state. Both parties are making strenuous efforts to win this belt and opposing leaders are uttering strong claims.

There are many so-called "wet" spots in this region and it has a large industrial population. Smith has shown exceptional strength in these counties but recently Hoover supporters in large numbers have recorded their sentiment.

The standing to date in the Pennsylvania poll, part of the nationwide canvass by the Hearst papers is as follows: Hoover 37,738, 30,126 men and 7,612 women; Smith 25,486, 19,662 men and 5,824 women.

took a brace and retired Meusel on a pop fly to Frisch.

HOYT STARTS WELL

After knocking numerous fouls, Bottomley, the first batter in the second, finally worked Hoyt for a base on balls. Hoyt found Hafey less troublesome and set him down on strikes, the third one being called. Hafey evidently was looking for a bad one on the third pitch, but the Yankee hurler caught him unaware with a pitch right over the plate. Harper flied to Paschal. Wilson went out on an easy tap to Hoyt, retiring the side.

Lazzeri began the Yankees' half of the second with a fly to left, which Hafey caught just inside the foul line. Dugan was easy for Frisch and Bottomley. The same two Cardinals retired Bengough. Strangely enough, Sherdel has retired seven out of nine right-hand batters and the only hits made off him were credited to left-hand batters.

In his first time at bat in a world series in 14 years, Maranville started the third for St. Louis with a fly to Ruth. Sherdel fouled out to Dugan. Bengough made a great running catch of Douthit's foul fly near the St. Louis bench. In three innings not a hit has been made off Hoyt and only one man has reached first base.

RABBIT THRILLS FANS

At the beginning of the Yanks' half, Maranville electrified the crowd by grabbing Hoyt's foul fly in his gloved hand right off the short left field boxes while on a dead run. Douthit got under Paschal's fly in deep center. Koenig ended the round with a grounder to Frisch, on which he was tossed out at first. Maranville was loudly applauded as he came in to the bench.

Hoyt whiffed High to start the fourth inning.

Frisch fouled out to Bengough. Bottomley made a good bid for a hit to right, but Gehrig grabbed his bounding smash and beat him to the bag.

Again in the fourth Sherdel was unable to fool Ruth with his slow-ball delivery, and the Babe poked a fly to center for another two-bagger. Gehrig was thown out at first by Sherdel, Ruth holding second. Meusel smashed a home run into the right field stands, Ruth scoring ahead of him. Lazzeri fouled out to Wilson. Dugan flied to Maranville.

SHERDEL NO PUZZLE

As the fourth inning closed with the Yankees three runs in the lead, Sherdel had failed to show his expected effectiveness with men on bases. While had allowed only four hits, three of them doubles and the other a home run, Hoyt, on the other hand, appeared to be in tough form and was pitching like a master. The Yankees' star pitcher struck out Hafey for the second time at the start of the fifth. Harper singled to left center for the Cardinals' first hit of the game. Previously Hoyt had disposed of 13 out of 14 batters. Wilson forced Harper at second, Lazzeri to Koenig. Wilson was an easy out from Bengough to Koenig in an attempt to steal second while Maranville was at bat.

WAITE IN TOP FORM

Bengough was thrown out by Frisch to start New York's half of the fifth. Hoyt was also retired by Frisch and Bottomley. Paschal closed the chapter with a high fly to Harper.

Maranville flied to Ruth near the foul line with the opening of the sixth. Sherdel struck out. Douthit walked and was the third Cardinal to reach first base. High flied to Meusel for the third out. Hoyt was keeping up his great work. No St. Louis player had reached second base in the first six innings.

In the Yankees' half of the sixth Sherdel knocked down Koenig's rap and threw him out at first. New York rooters pulled hard for Ruth to make another hit, but this time Sherdel fooled him and shot over a third strike while the Babe was holding his bat on his shoulder. Gehrig went out, Frisch to Bottomley.

BOTTOMLEY HITS HOMER

Durocher now playing second base for Yankees. Koenig's throw beat Frisch to first. Bottomley gave the Cardinal rooters their first chance to cheer by smashing a home run into the right field stands. Hafey flied to Meusel near the left field grandstands. Harper wound up the inning by a foul fly to Dugan.

CARDINALS FAVORITES

The Cards continued to rule favorites for victory in the series. Odds of six to five on St. Louis were being offered in the betting circles, but there were few takers, Yankee supporters holding out for a longer price.

Conditions could not have been better for the first act in the big drama. The day dawned bright and clear and made-to-order weather prevailed for the initial struggle between the forces of Miller Huggins and Wilkinsburg Bill McKechnie.

A picture printed in yesterday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph brought about the identification of the East End mystery girl who was a patient in the Pittsburgh Hospital all day long while police tried to locate her relatives. The girl is Ruth Smith, of 12 Alvin street, Greenfield.

Her parents called at the hospital last night and moved her to their home.

The Smith girl was picked up in Frankstown avenue by police who found her in a dazed condition, unable to tell her name and crying continually. A picture taken at the hospital and printed in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph was seen by members of the girl's family and they immediately went to the hospital.

Yesterday while the picture of the unidentified girl was being carried in the paper, scores of telephone calls were received at the office. Many were from persons who were anxious to know whether she was still unidentified. Others were from people who thought they knew her.

The case likely will go to the jury late today. A car driven by Lubardo ran over the sidewalk and struck a tree. Angelo F. Policichio, 21, of 464 Pearl street, and Nicholas Buzelli, 19, of 4702 Lorigan street, were killed.

REAL BATTLE IN EAST, HOOVER CONVINCED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—His attention centered now upon the present exigencies of the campaign, Herbert Hoover is leaving to the future his precise program for the closing days of the presidential contest.

His chief concern for the time being is the eastern sector of the country, from which he receives varying reports as to the outlook. Some of these are of a very pessimistic nature, while others are less gloomy.

REAL FIGHT IN EAST

Assessing the whole, the Republican presidential candidate is convinced that the real fight is along the Eastern Atlantic seaboard, from Jersey's shores to the point where begins the rock-lined coast of Maine, and his efforts are directed toward strengthening the party ramparts there.

Leaders in that section believe that his personal visits to New York City and New England will be of great benefit and that after his personal conferences with the workers and his two addresses, one in New York and the other in Boston, there will be a rising tide of support for the national ticket.

Such party war-horses as Moses, of New Hampshire, and Reed, of Pennsylvania, have frankly told the candidate that persistent work must be done in the East if the party is to hold ground which in national elections it usually has been reasonably certain of long before election day.

LOOKS TO SOUTH

The situation in the South also is one to which Hoover is directing some of his energies and his personal bid for support in that section will be made Saturday in his visits to Elizabethton and Johnson City, Tenn., in both of which towns he will make addresses.

While this is largely Republican territory, it is well into the Southland, and Hoover's messages will be directed in part at least to all of the country south of the Mason and Dixon line.

While the candidate himself is directing much of his energies to the territory lying to north and south of his personal headquarters here, the West is by no means being neglected with the campaign there being pressed vigorously by Senator Curtis, vice presidential candidate, and by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who is covering much of the territory traversed by the Democratic presidential candidate.

WINDGAP R OAD PLANS O. K'D

Pending concurrence by City Council, County Commissioners today approved increasing the estimated cost for improving Windgap road from Ingram borough to the bridge over Chartiers Creek from $86,000 to $139,000, and increasing the width of the roadway from 18 feet, as originally proposed, to 27 feet. The county and the city will each pay half the cost of the project.

HEART DISEASE VICTIM FOUND DEAD ON ROAD

Edward Boyle, 30, of Willock, Baldwin township, was found dead along the Streets Run road, near the Clairton road, early today. At first it was thought he had been struck by an automobile, but later it was determined that he had died of heart trouble. Boyle was employed by the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company.

DRIVER KILLED BY TRUCK

Crushed between his auto truck and a box car in the Try street yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, Charles Cox, 24, of 1933 Forbes street, driver for the Pennsylvania Transfer Company, was found dead at noon today. A few minutes before Cox had been seen cranking his truck and it is believed the auto was in gear and started, crushing him against the car.

CLUB CONGRESS WILL BUILD CAMP DORMITORY

The Congress of Women's Clubs proposes to build a dormitory at the Salvation Army fresh air camp at West Veiw, it was announced today by the committee in charge of the Army's home service fund campaign. The offer made by Mrs. C. E. Coslowsky, was accepted by Col. Joseph Atkinson, divisional commander. The dormitory, it is expected, will be completed next summer.

P. R. R. AND CITY CONFER ON IMPROVEMENT PLANS

Another effort to adjust the differences between the city and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in connection with the latter's $13,000,000 construction program in the Pike street district east of Eleventh street is being made at a conference today.

Participating are members of Council, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, representatives of the Department of Public Works, E. T. Whiter, vice president of the company, and his legal staff.

As in previous conferences, Waldschmidt and members of Council are insisting that any contract ordinance entered into by the city should protect the municipalities' rights as far as any future public improvements are concerned, with special reference to the proposed bridge connecting Bigelow boulevard with the North Side and the river front improvements.

Waldschmidt insisted that the city should retain the right to set piers for the proposed bridge on any of the property between Eleventh and Fourteenth streets in return for the streets that are to be vacated. The attitude of the railroad officials was that that matter should be taken up when the city and county builds the bridge.

Both the railroad and city agreed that the municipality should retain the right to build a sea wall and boulevard from the harbor line to a point 50 feet from the river, in which case a single track would be used by the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads in lieu of the present trackage.

Another point of difference concerns the payment of damages due to the relocation of grades of Twelfth, Thirteenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-first streets, the railroad wanting the city to pay, and vice versa.

SMITH SEEKS VICTORY IN BORDER STATES

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—No one realizes any more keenly than Gov. Smith the importance of the border states to the Democratic cause in the forthcoming November election.

Consequently, he is giving very careful attention to the business of deciding upon the second major speaking trip of his campaign. He has just completed his first trip. The West is behind him, the border country comes next, and then comes the wet and populous East to end the campaign.

SCHEDULE TOMORROW

It is the border states' schedule that is occupying most of Gov. Smith's attention while he is snatching a few days' rest this week in Albany. The next itinerary possibly will be announced tomorrow. Unless there are eleventh hour changes, it will start in North Carolina early next week at Raleigh, the state capital, and continue through Chattanooga, Tenn.; Louisville, Ky.; Sedalia, Mo.; Chicago, and Cleveland, with probably Baltimore thrown in at the start or at the end of the journey.

Such an itinerary would take the Democratic nominee into every border state where the issue is admittedly doubtful, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Maryland. He already has appeared in Oklahoma, the sixth of the states that may properly be called on the border line between North and South.

A tentative date of October 16 or 17 already has been decided upon for Chicago. The Ohio date was hanging in mid-air today, with the choice lying between Cleveland and Columbus.

The former city may ultimately be chosen because of its larger size and the fact that in 1924 it was one of the few major citis of the country to be carried by the LaFollette independent ticket.

The old LaFollette vote is very close to the Democratic management's heart. Gov. Smith has spent the last two weeks in the Northwest trying to capture it.

The lowest barometer reported is 29.46 at Omaha and at Sioux City. There was no rain in the Plains states, except light scattered showers in North Dakota and Minnesota. Light showers occurred also in the far West over the plateau section. The principal rain area is in the lower Ohio valley, including Southern Illinois, Southern Indiana, Western Kentucky, Eastern Missouri and Tennessee. Another marked low pressure area appears over Alberta.

No Liquor Holdings —Mellon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Secretary Mellon today coupled another denial that he was interested in any way in the liquor business with the remark that agitation on this subject "will cease on November sixth," which is election day.

The denial was addressed to Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, who had inquired in an open letter to the Treasury head about his connection with the liquor industry. Mr. Mellon told the Senaton that his only interest in such a business had been the purchase of $25,000 of stock of the Overholt distillery "which absolutely ceased from the manufacture of whisky and from doing business" several years before the prohibition amendment went into effect.

His holding of the liquor stock, the Secretary's letter said, had been exploited since his name was first under consideration for appointment to the Treasury by President Harding.

"This matter was exploited first," it read, "when my name was under consideration by President Harding for appointment to the Treasury, and then publicly explained. It was reviewed and reiterated in the Senate and House; it was revived again by Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania; and in the Coolidge campaign; then revived for the present campaign. However, the agitation will cease on November 6."

The Secretary declared that "neither today nor for several years have I had any direct or indirect interest in any distillery or in the manufacture of liquor or in any stock of liquor held for sale."

Police End Meeting Of Reds

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 4.—Fred C. Kearns, 35, of Pittsburgh, who says he is the manager of the Communist party in Western Pennsylvania, and Frank Henderson, 23, of Wheeling, were arrested at Elm Grove last night by state troopers and city police, after they had called a meeting of the Workers' party (Communist) to order. They were held under bond charged with inciting to riot and with being disorderly.

The two men asserted that they were within their rights, as the Workers' party was recognized in West Virginia and the names of the various candidates appear on the ticket of the state. They have retained the services of Attorney W. L. Bradshaw and will fight the charge. A meeting is scheduled for Saturday night by the party with Scott Nearing as speaker. Chief of Police George Buchwald stated today that he would refuse permission to hold it.

Constable Slayer Freed

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 4.—Louis Carboni, 35, was exonerated here yesterday of the death of George Moran, 39, Bentleyville constable, fatally wounded by Carboni, who had been attacked during a free-for-all fight at a miners' meeting at Bentleyville several weeks ago.

He was charged also with wounding Carl Glovak and his son, Theodore Glovak, during the fight.

Witnesses testified that chairs and stones had been thrown at Carboni.

The fight started when Moran is said to have tried to remove Carboni as chairman. Carboni was seriously beaten.

District Attorney Warren S. Burchinal refused to permit Adam Getto, of Bentleyville, to testify when Getto said he did not believe in God. Getto is a candidate for Congress on the Labor ticket.

Mrs. Sadie Paul, American born, testified she had made a plea for the overthrow of the United States government in an address at Moran's grave. The two told of a Communist movement that had led up to the fatal fight.

Hint Lost Teacher Suicide

International News Service.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 4.—Suicide was strongly hinted today in the mysterious disappearance of Miss Mary Elizabeth Campbell, 46, of this city, a teacher in the Liggett private school at Detroit, following a police report that her scarf, hat and coat had been found on an island in the city park on the banks of the Huron River.

Miss Campbell was first reported missing Sunday night when she failed to return to her home here after having gone out for a walk.

Apparently in good health, Miss Campbell, a 1914 literary graduate of the University of Michigan and recipient of the degree of master of arts in 1920, took her usual Sunday afternoon walk alone and nothing was thought of her until she failed to return.

Aided by 200 Boy Scouts from this city and Ypsilanti, police and sheriff's officers have been searching the woods and river banks near the city for traces of the lost woman.

The veterans were accompanied by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish War.

Gov. Fuller, bidding the veterans farewell, gave them a Massachusetts state flag to be presented to President Machado, of Cuba.

HoldNurse In Movie Shooting

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—As the aftermath to an asserted lovers' quarrel, punctuated by bullets on a Hollywood street, Roberta Willis, 30-year-old nurse, was being held in the county jail here today, charged with assault to commit murder.

The shooting occurred on one of Hollywood's main thoroughfares and startled a crowd of passersby.

The man involved is Hellmar Bergman, motion picture technician.

According to a purported confession to the police, made by the nurse after her arrest, the young woman had determined to kill Bergman for his failure to requite her love after they had been friendly for some two years.

Tuesday night, Miss Willis told authorities, she waited in front of his home for his return. A borrowed revolver, the young woman is said to have confessed, was in her hands ready for the carrying out of her purported mission.

But Bergman, according to the nurse's story, did not come home Tuesday night. Late yesterday, however, she chanced to meet him in Hollywood. She pleaded with him, according to her narrative, but he laughed and she drew the revolver. But before she could poise the weapon, he grasped her hand. Two shots rang out and then both the woman and the man fled.

The nurse was arrested some three hours later. Bergman also was questioned and is said to have admitted a friendship of some two years' standing with Miss Willis.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN MEET

Plans for radio political parties were discussed yesterday by Republican Committee Women of the Twelfth District at a meeting in the Republican headquarters in Hotel Henry. A suggestion was made to the women owning radios that whenever an important Republican speech is to be broadcasted they invite to their homes neighbors who do not have radios.

Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier was chairman of the meeting. The speakers who explained the cause of the Republican presidential nominee included Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen, Chairman William H. Coleman of the Republican executive committee; S. J. Topley, clerk of courts, and Mrs. W. W. Robinson, vice chairman of the city committee.

BURCHFIELD DEFENDS FLOOD-WALL PLAN

A. H. Burchfield, a director and member of the finance committee of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh, took vigorous exception, in a statement issued today, to Councilman Robert Garland's remark in the Ohio Valley Improvement Association banquet last night, that flood losses here are trivial, and that a protective wall would cost $30,000,000. In his statement Mr. Burchfield says:

"My ire is aroused by a statement, in the newspapers, reported to have been made by Councilman Garland at the Ohio River Improvement Association banquet at the William Penn Hotel last night, declaring his 'unqualified opposition to the proposed flood wall costing approximately $30,000,000,' and insisting that 'if floods do occur their loss is trivial.'

"Mr. Garland has the right to unqualifiedly oppose any city improvement he sees fit, regardless of how seriously it may affect the welfare and interests of a large body of its citizens, but he should at least know what he is talking about when he quotes figures. If Mr. Garland has made any study of the subject, he must know that competent engineers who have studied the project place the outside cost for flood walls, both for the entire downtown business section and the North Side, at about $8,000,000. Where does Mr. Garland get his $30,000,000—unless he refers to the highest estimated cost of the Morse-Burchfield plan, which includes not only flood walls, but the complete elevation and subway of the trolley system downtown, speedways for through motor traffic around the golden triangle, underground streets and parking facilities for 10,000 automobiles—a combination flood protection, traffic relief and parking plan.

"NO MAKESHIFTS!"

"I am in accord with Mr. Garland in the necessity for immediate wharf developments that Pittsburgh may take its place in the river-to-ocean waterway development, and stressed this point to Council and others as a salient feature of the Morse-Burchfield plan advocated by the Water Street and Lower Downtown Triangle Association and other business interests, but makeshift improvements will never meet Pittsburgh's needs, and the city cannot substantially grow as long as a large part of its business section is subject to the constant menace of floods.

"Councilman Garland knows that the city of Pittsburgh has plans before it for the building of facilities for the city such as subways and so forth. Can those plans be built and used in the triangle unless a correction is made to the sewerage and the flood menace. Isn't it about time that the sewerage system, as well as the overflow onto our streets from the rivers be stopped, even if not for the monetary loss occasioned, but simply for the benefit of the humanitarian side of the question?

"As one of many hundreds of downtown businessmen who suffered from, and combatted floods for years, it is aggravating in the extreme to have a city father lightly state—'if floods do occur.' Does Mr. Garland doubt that there is a flood problem? Where was he in 1907 when business was at a standstill for practically a week, during a flood which inflicted a property damage estimated at $12,000,000. A repetition of this condition hangs over the business section of Pittsburgh each year, and the high water mark of 1907 may be surpassed any time with far more serious consequences.

"Mr. Garland dismisses the whole problem of floods as trivial."

"TRIVIALITIES?"

"1—Is it trivial to have an estimated loss from floods annually amounting to $1,000,000 or more?

"2—Is it trivial that Penn avenue and parts of Liberty avenue as well as Duquesne way and part of Water street and Wood street have become at times the bed of the Allegheny and the Monongahela Rivers?

"3—Is it trivial that basements in the Triangle, as well as the basements in the lowlands in the North Side are filled almost yearly with slimy sewage and river water, which of necessity has to be pumped out? This condition breeds sickness and disease.

"4—Is it trivial to live in a home surrounded by water, both basement and upper floors filled with river water, families living on the second floor, with no heat, no light and no communication except by boat with the outside world?

"5—Is it trivial that it is impossible to communicate by way of our bridges, as has been found on occasions to and from the North Side?

"6—Is it trivial that the Point and Manchester Bridges on many occasions are not useful as transportation facilities to and from the business triangle of Pittsburgh?

"7—Is it trivial that in 1907 an estimated loss did occur from floods of something over $12,000,000 in a few days' time?

"8—Is it trivial that our sewerage system in the downtown district is subjected to breakage, causing leakage, from pressure of the river water backing up and the sewage meeting it?

"9—Is it trivial to remain with small village methods, not correcting them?"

"10—Is it trivial to have your comfort stations in the downtown district out of service from one to several times each year?"

"11—Is it trivial to permit the possibility of three feet of water on the surface of the street at the corner of Penn avenue and Sixth street as well as other corners, and a foot or more at the corner of Liberty and Sixth streets and others?"

"12—Is it trivial that Pittsburgh citizens should be subject to obtain ingress and exit from their business places by the antiquated way of skiffs and boats."

Dynamite Is Fed Stone Crusher; No Explosion

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 4.—Four boxes of dynamite were fed, by mistake, into the crushers of Standard Lime and Stone Company near here before the danger was discovered.

The dynamite did not explode, due, the management believes, to a type of crushers employed which breaks the stone without causing a spark.

WOMANDIVORCEDEFENDANT DENIES WRECKING RAMPAGE

Mrs. Lalah Gertrude Rogers denies she slashed the seat of her husband's trousers with a butcher knife and that she attempted to wreck his automobile, in her answer to a bill of particulars as a result of divorce proceedings begun against her by Herbert L. Rogers, 221 Atwood street.

The wife, on the other hand, avers she surprised her husband in a Riggo street room with Madeline Shultz. Mrs. Rogers says she saw her husband's machine in front of the house and called the police who arrested her husband and the woman, although both were discharged.

Mrs. Rogers denies she threatened her husband's life, but admits having broken a window of their automobile during a fit of anger. Rogers charges cruel and barbarous treatment.

ELECTION NOT HOLIDAY IN PITTSBURGH DISTRICT

November 6 will be just Tuesday to boys and girls of Pittsburgh's schools. For it was announced today that election day will be school day in spite of the fact that many of the polling places are in the schools.

While Philadelphia ordered its schools closed for the day so teachers and employes of the Board of Public Education there could vote, it was pointed out by Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of Pittsburgh schools, that voting in Pittsburgh offers no inconvenience and there is no necessity for closing.

'SHUT-IN' GROUP TO HEAR; DEAF CLAIM CURE

The Glory Barn service Saturday night of Evangelist John W. Sproul will go on the air over WJAS. Arrangements completed today provide broadcasting from 7:30 until 9:30 o'clock, particularly for the "shut-in" audience which previously had followed his services in such fashion.

Several persons who had taken front seats last night in the West Carson street tabernacle, because they were deaf, claimed remarkable relief after Mr. Sproul had offered prayers for them.

At the close of the service they stood at the rear of the Glory Barn and conducted a conversation with Mr. Sproul, 200 feet away on the platform.

A Glory Barn representative has been summoned to Washington in connection with Mr. Sproul's efforts to make use of his own broadcasting station.

FALLS DEAD ON EVE OF GOLDEN WEDDING

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 4.—Charles Burns, 73, of Hickory township, was found dead in a cornfield of his farm from heart disease. He was to have observed his golden wedding anniversary next Saturday.

A SURPRISE

"BIRTHDAY GREETINGS"

Fred Klooz, manager of the Roosevelt Hotel, smiled broadly when a cake with one candle was set before him. Then he recalled that it was the first anniversary of the opening of his new establishment. The cake, a gold cigar lighter and a basket of flowers were presented to him by the hotel personnel. John VanSickle, 84, oldest employe, and Miss Anna Reese made the presentation.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PHOTOS SENT BY WIRELESS AT RADIO SHOW

One of the chief features entertaining the thousands attending the third annual Pittsburgh Radio Show this week at Duquesne Garden is the radiophoto apparatus being exhibited by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Hundreds of spectators have lent their photos, watched their broadcasting "into the air," picked up again and reprinted in a moment.

The radiophoto is a sample of the newest things in radio. The 130 exhibitors have the very latest developments in apparatus on display, including the most recent models of receiving sets, ranging from portable types to elaborate consoles, the recently perfected dynamic loud speakers and other accessories.

Tonight's entertainment at the show will be furnished by the famed Roxy and His Gang and the DeLuxe Petite Symphony Dance Orchestra, the program to be broadcast by KDKA from 8 to 8:30 o'clock and from 9 to 9:30 o'clock. The program is made up of several attractive novelty and specialty vocal and instrumental numbers.

Tomorrow afternoon, starting at 1:30 o'clock, WCAE will broadcast a play-by-play account of the World Series baseball game, from the radio show. The feature will be followed by a half-hour concert by the DeLuxe Orchestra from 4:30 to 5:00 o'clock, this also to be put on the air by WCAE.

REED, PORTER, HERE TO OPEN U. S. OFFICE

U. S. Senator David A. Reed and Congressman Stephen G. Porter are to be the guests of honor at the luncheon tomorrow in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce formally inaugurating the new Pittsburgh district office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce at Washington.

This inaugural luncheon is regarded as marking an epoch in Pittsburgh's commercial development for the reason that until now the Pittsburgh district has never had a branch of the U. S. Department but has been obliged to transact all its business with that department of the government through the Philadelphia district office.

Dr. Julius Klein, director of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, is showing his interest in the new office by coming from Washington for the luncheon. He will make an address on "Our Gravest Business Problem." Wilson K. Ray, manager of the new office, will be introduced at the luncheon.

During the afternoon there will be a number of trade group conferences in the Chamber of Commerce, each of which will be addressed by qualified experts from the department at Washington. The groups having these conferences are the Foreign Trade, the Shippers, the Wholesalers, the Retailers, and the Manufacturers.

FOUR DIVORCE PLEAS FILED

Clara B. Thompson, 5557 Beeler street has filed a libel in divorce against Alexander C. Thompson, alleging indignities and cruel and barbarous treatment. The couple were married in June, 1896, and separated in September, 1924.

Other libels filed include: Myrtle Thomas, 100 North Euclid avenue, against William I. Thomas, desertion; James W. Downer, 100 Seventh street, against Virgie P. Downer, Philippi, W. Va., cruel and barbarous treatment; Margaret V. Blake, 918 Chestnut street, against James J. Blake, cruel and barbarous treatment.

HERMANOVICH WOULD BE JUST PLAIN HERMAN

Jacob Hermanovich and his wife Mrs. Beky Hermanovich of Bradford avenue, Crafton, want their name changed to Herman. Hermanovich, who has been engaged in the roofing and furnace business here for 20 years, says persons have difficulty in pronouncing the name, which he has petitioned Common Pleas Court to change.

WAS ALMOST A PHYSICAL WRECK

Local Man Tells How Famous Ten Herbs Ended Three Years' Suffering.

"I suffered with indigestion for three years and was almost a physical wreck, but Ten Herbs has given me satisfactory relief from my health troubles," was the recent statement of Mr. Albert Niemetz, 5554 Rosina Way (East End), Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this celebrated herbal compound.

"I used to be troubled with gas, heartburn and shortness of breath," continued Mr. Niemetz, who is employed by the White Motor Truck Co. "I lost all desire to eat, and could not eat any food that contained acid. Gas would work around my heart and cause it to palpitate. For the last two or three years I had headaches that would last two or three days at a time. Sometimes I got so dizzy that I feared I would fall. I often had a blurring of the eyes and everything would seem to turn black. I felt tired and worn-out all the time. Nervousness caused me to be restless at night. There were pains across my back, and I was troubled with constipation.

"After reading in the papers that many people in this vicinity were being helped by Ten Herbs, I started using your medicine. I now feel like a different person. Indigestion is gone, and I am free of terrible heartburn, gas, coated tongue and bad taste in mouth. Pains have disappeared from around my heart, and my breathing has been improved. I am free of headaches, dizzy spells, blurring of eyes, and wornout feeling. Pains have left my back, and my nerves are stronger. Constipation has been corrected. Ten Herbs gave me such wonderful results that I gladly recommend your medicine to others."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

MISS COLLETTE FRANCIS

Proposals!

A glance at her blonde loveliness tells better than words why this beautiful New York City girl has received such flattering proposals from kings of movie and stageland. She's Collette Francis, of 255 East 25th St., Brooklyn; now one of the charmers in the Broadway hit, "Rio Rita."

Miss Francis says: "Since I've been on the stage, so many people have asked me what I do to get the beautiful golden gleam and sparkle in my hair that I am beginning to think I'm really taking wonderful care of it. I really never thought much about it. What I do is so simple. Like so many of my girl friends here in New York, I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. That keeps my hair silky and gleaming, makes it easy to dress and holds it like I arrange it, for hours. My scalp was very dry and I had a lot of dandruff when I first started on it, but all of that trouble stopped quickly. And Danderine keeps my hair so clean I don't need to shampoo half as often, now."

Danderine removes that oily film from your hair and gives it new life and lustre. It isn't oily and doesn't show. It gives tone and vigor to the scalp. The generous bottles are just 35c at any drug or toilet counter. A delicately fragranced necessity for the well-groomed girl.

3—Ads for second period must be received by midnight, October 10, at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Ads arriving after that time will be automatically entered for the third period, and so on.

4—Ads submitted for the grand prize must be received before midnight on November 15, 1928. In order to compete for grand prize, contestants must have submitted at least one ad on each concern listed.

5—One person may submit any number of ads. The test may be entered at any time. Ads may be written about any one or all, or any product or all, of the concerns listed. A person may win more than one prize.

6—Write only one ad on one piece of paper at least postcard size. Place name of advertiser at top, write words, phrase, poem, slogan, essay or letter. Sign YOUR name and address plainly on BACK of each sheet. Also on the flap of the envelope. SEND TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH, PA.

(Copyright, 1928, Z. A. S.)

SPECIAL PRIZES

The following special prizes, in addition to the $15,000 in prizes originally announced, are offered in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Zain Ad-Tests

PICKERING'S will give a bridge lamp to the writer of the best ad on their store for the second period.

MAX AZEN offers a $100 Fox Scarf for the best ad on their store during the entire Ad-Test. If the $1,000 grand prize ad is about their store the writer will receive a $500 natural squirrel coat.

TECH ICE CREAM will give a gallon of ice cream for each of the five best ads on their product each period, exclusive of the first five winners selected by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

CRUIKSHANK BROS. offer one case of "Cru-Bro" Jelly (2 doz.) for each of the five best ads submitted each period, as selected by this concern.

GLICK AUTO SUPPLY CO. offer a U. S. Royal Cord Tire for best ad sent in second period on "What Service Means at the New Glick Boulevard Store."

195 AWARDS TO GO THIS WEEK FOR IDEAS

The second period in the Zain Ad writing contest begins today. It will continue until next Wednesday midnight, with 195 prizes awaiting the winning ads. Just read over the concerns, study the rules, and start.

With the ending of the first period last night, the judges are working to pick the prize ads. They will be guided, not so much by style as by the ideas.

Offering of additional prizes displays the increasing interest in the contest. Cruikshank Brothers offer one case of "Cru-Bro" jelly (two dozen) for each of the five best ads submitted each period. Their own judges will select the winners. "Cru-Bro" it might be mentioned, have 10 different brands of jelly.

Then the Glick Auto Supply Company is offering a U. S. Royal cord tire for the best ad sent in during the second period on "What Service Means at the New Glick Boulevard Store."

RULES IMPORTANT

Be sure to study the rules, and write your ads on any or many of these 39 concerns.

Among the topics that may be selected, and about which much that is interesting may be written, is paint, with its by-products. Lustrous beauty, color, flame—these all enter into "Barreled Sunlight," a product of C. A. Michel & Co.

Another may be found in the dairy products of Harmony. Milk is a fundamental food for all of mankind, and there is, in Harmony milk products, the richness that comes with one of nature's greatest gifts.

Or look over and consider Terheyden company, where jewels, precious metals, decorative jewelry, watches and other articles provide equally interesting thought. It is an old, established concern, handling only the substantial, the dependable. With such a background, ads should be easily constructed.

PLENTY OF TOPICS

Spreads, foods, relishes—these open the field for the Zain writer who would study. Cruikshank "Cru-Bro" products, that decorate every table at one meal time or another. Jellies, butters of the flavorous kind, such as peanut, apple and other fruit; sandwich spreads and relishes such as pickles, sauces—these and a dozen more products are worthy subjects for ad writers.

So, study the stores and the rules. Read them both carefully, then write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, at least as large as a postal card, and preferably commercial letter size. Write your name and address on the back of each sheet and also on the back of the flap of the envelope in which you enclose your ads. SEND THE ADS TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH, PA.

DRAGGED FROM RIVER, HELD AS DISORDERLY

Believed by rescuers to have been attempting suicide, Nick Zyrek, 39, of Lumbermans way, North Side, was dragged from the Allegheny River, at the foot of Warfield street, late yesterday by Frank Heber and Jacob Beck. They took him to Allegheny General Hospital, saying he had waded into the stream. A charge of disorderly conduct was placed against Zyrek, and if he has recovered sufficiently, he will be arraigned in North Side Police Court today.

OPTOMETRISTS ELECT THREE PITTSBURGHERS

Dr. William J. Van Essen, also of Pittsburgh, was elected vice president, and Dr. Fred L. Nungesser, of this city, was named treasurer. The next convention will be held in Philadelphia.

Walter, president of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, will appear as he captured it on canvas. Otto Kuhler, another local artist, contributes his second painting on Industrial Pittsburgh — a river scene. Portraits by Miss Esther Topp and Samuel Rosenberg, instructors in fine arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology, lend charm and beauty to the pages. Color photographs of Sewickley Heights country homes and gardens and photographs of prominent Pittsburgh club women will interest all. The first of a series of paintings, portraying famous events in American history, will appear in this issue. It is entitled, "The Destruction of H. M. Frigate Guerriere by the U. S. Constitution," a painting by Gordon Grant and well worth framing.

DETROIT TIMES DEBENTURES OFFERED

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Public offering is being made today of the $2,500,000 Detroit Times (the Times Publishing Company) 6 per cent serial debentures by Halsey, Stuart & Co. The debentures mature serially from September 1, 1931, to September 1, 1943, and are offered at 100 to yield 6 per cent for all maturities.

The Detroit Times is one of the outstanding metropolitan newspapers of the country, being one of the group of 28 Hearst newspapers. It has had one of the most remarkable growths in the history of American newspapers, its circulation jumping from 26,000 daily in 1921 to a present daily evening net paid circulation of 300,000, except Saturday. Its Sunday edition, started after the daily was well under way, now has a circulation of more than 325,000.

NEW PLANT TO RISE

The proceeds from the debentures will be used for the construction of a thoroughly modern six-story newspaper plant, for the purchase of new equipment, for the retirement of obligations and for other corporate purposes. Through economies which the company hopes to effect by use of the new building and equipment, profits should be materially increased.

The rapid growth of the paper has been reflected in profits, as is evidenced by the earning figures made public. Net earnings of the Times Publishing Company, before depreciation, amortization, Federal taxes and interest, as certified by independent auditors, for the 12 months ended December 31, 1926, were $376,343.

Comparable figures for the year 1927 increased to $390,359, while a still more rapid growth was shown recently, comparable figures for the 12 months ended July 15, 1928, totaling $588,981.

INCOME INCREASED

The company has recently increased the price of its evening paper from two to three cents, resulting in an increase in net earnings, the entire benefits of which are reflected in the earnings figures given here.

Maximum annual interest on these debentures requires $150,000. This figure will be reduced from year to year as the debentures mature.

The balance sheet as of July 15, 1928, adjusted to give effect to present financing and appraisal of physical properties, shows total assets, after deducting all liabilities except these debentures, of $4,511,132, and net current assets of $704,659. Circulation and goodwill, having a substantial value, are carried on the balance sheet at $1.

MOVE MADE TO WIDEN McKEES ROCKS STREET

County commissioners yesterday authorized the departments of law and public works to effect an agreement with McKees Rocks for the reconstruction and widening from 34 feet to 36 feet of Island avenue between Chartiers avenue and the line between McKees Rocks and Stowe township. The county will pay half the cost of the project plus the engineering expenses or a total of $50,000, it was estimated.

"Blossom Time" Made Millions But Schubert Left Only $12 When He Died a Century Ago

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

THE return of "Blossom Time," the Schubert operetta which seems to be perennial, is a reminder of the fact that the whole world has been honoring the composer Schubert, who died in Vienna just a century ago. Over a million pilgrims have come to Vienna during the present year to honor his memory, and it is impossible to say how many millions have heard this operetta, coming to the Alvin again. It is based on a German comedy, "Das Dreimaederlhaus," which for years has been among the most successful plays on the German stage.

GEORGE SEIBEL

"Blossom Time" presents Schubert as a poor and sentimental musician. Of course, there is only the faintest fragment of fact in the plot of this musical comedy, but there is no doubt Schubert was poor—desperately poor and hopelessly sentimental. When he died his entire estate was worth no more than $12. Some of his finest songs he sold to publishers for about 25 cents.

No material rewards tempted Schubert to write his songs—he wrote because he could not help it. One day alone he composed seven of them "Hark, Hark, the Lark," most beautiful among Shakespearean lyrics, was composed in an outdoor restaurant on the back of a bill of fare.

There was romance in his life, too—his heart was ensnared by one of his pupils, Caroline Esterhazy. He taught her as a little girl; he watched her grow into a beautiful woman. Once, when she asked him why he had never dedicated any of his songs to her, she got the answer: "All that I have ever done is dedicated to you." She was a countess and she married a major. She was the Beatrice of Schubert's dreams, and we might picture him singing his exquisite "Serenade" beneath her lattice, did we not know it was written in a beer-garden amid the clinking of tankards.

"Erl-King," Schubert's most famous song, conquered the world. Jean Paul, most humorous of philosophers and most philosophical of humorists, dying and blind, asked to have the "Erl-King" sung to him in his last hours. Madame Schroeder-Devrient, as popular in her days as Schumann-Heink, sang it to Goethe, who had written the words. The aged poet, two years before his death, two years after Schubert's, took Schroeder's head between his hands, kissed her on the brow, and said: "A thousand thanks! I heard the composition once before, and it did not please me; but when it is sung like this, it becomes a living picture."

Schubert had always wished to meet his idol, Beethoven, but never met him till Beethoven lay dying. Then Beethoven, sinking into unconsciousness, said: "Let Schubert come in first." Schubert burst into tears as he looked at the dying man, and rushed from the room. He was one of the 38 torch-bearers at Beethoven's funeral. Afterward, draining a cup with his friends, the question was asked: "Who will be next?" Filling his cup, Schubert drank to himself. And he was the next; in less than two years he was buried near Beethoven, as he wished. Today an operetta based on his lovely songs makes millions—his estate was worth less than twelve dollars.

Soviet Engineers To View Penna Highways

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—A five-day inspection trip of the Pennsylvania highway system by three engineers of the Soviet government was arranged when the engineers called on Samuel Eckels, chief engineer of the Highway Department.

The visitors, who are on a tour to study road building in the United States, were Sergius Vassiliey, engineer of lines of communication; B. M. Galperstein, chief engineer of public roads in Leningrad, and A. Z. Georgiadze, who holds a similar office in the Tiflis section.

HOME COMING WEEK PLANNED BY GROTTO

Islam Grotto's home coming week and reunion will be featured with a ceremonial session in North Side Carnegie Library Hall, Monday, October 15. A business session will be held next Monday. Harry Little is chairman of the reception committee.

LIST BANK TRIAL FOR MONDAY

Repeatedly delayed for nearly two years, the trials of three former officials of the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company will be started Monday. The officers, Attorney Roland A. McCrady, W. J. Kelly and J. L. Nelson, with Frank T. Redman, alleged broker in the $320,000 bond deal, are the defendants. The former bank officers are charged with embezzlement and Redman is charged with larceny by agent.

Charles E. Knapp, recently released from the Western Penitentiary where he served a sentence for his participation in the case, will be one of the witnesses, it was rumored yesterday.

McCrady, Nelson and Redman were acquitted when tried for conspiracy.

KIBBLER ORCHESTRA BOOKED BY SANDERS

Friday and Saturday nights Gordon Kibbler and his orchestra of 15 musicians will play for the dancing at Sanders Inn on the Freeport highway.

FUTURE PLAYS AND FILMS

Next Monday night, in the Alvin, the musical hit, "Blossom Time," will return for one week's engagement, in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the passing of Franz Schubert, whose life and romance form the basis of the story of the operetta. Seats are on sale.

Seats are on sale for the third Theater Guild production to be presented the Nixon. "The Guardsman," by Ferenc Molnar. It opens Monday night. Headed by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, the cast includes Ernest Cossart, Hortense Alden, Jane Wheatley, Elliott Cabot and Hannam Clark.

"The Skull," a mystery comedy thriller, is booked to open the legitimate season in the Pitt, coming for one week, opening next Monday. In the cast are Sydney Riggs, Winifred Barry, Frances Brandt, Carola Parson, C. W. Van-Voorhis, Allan Davis, Harry Nelson, Reginald Carrington and Victor Beecroft.

Under the title of "Enchantment," a combination of tone color and the poetry of motion, will be presented as one of the feature acts in the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week.

Al Jolson will be seen in "The Singing Fool," in the Stenley next week. It is a story of a singing waiter in a New York night club. Betty Bronson and Josephine Dunn are the two leading women.

William Haines, in "Excess Baggage," will be the screen feature in the Penn next week. Stage acts will be presented under the title of "Blossoms," featuring Patti Moore.

Sue Carroll and Arthur Lake are featured in "The Air Circus," which will be shown on the Aldine screen next week. There will be audible film effects in the shorter program numbers.

"Oh Kay!" Colleen Moore's screen farce, opens in the Grand Monday. Alan Hale appears in one of the prominent supporting roles.

"Moulin Rouge Girls" will be the burlesque next week in the Academy. Benny Moore and Belle Miller are in the cast. Gus Flaig, who wrote the book, plays a prominent role.

Vaudeville in the Harris next week will include the Friedel and Gold Revue. The two screen features will be "Thanks for the Buggy Ride" and "Girlshy Cowboy."

Vaudeville in the Sheridan Square next week will include Herbert Rawlinson, famous moving picture star, in person. The two screen features will be "Thanks for the Buggy Ride" and "None But the Brave."

A new flavor fit for a king... in a new food that keeps you fit as a fiddle

Hurry Up! Taste This New Cereal-Food!

Even if Heinz Rice Flakes had nothing but their crispy, crunchy goodness and toasty nut-like flavor—you'd be glad to eat them.

But they have more than that. They have the natural "roughage" content of the original rice. This gives these fairy-like flakes the properties of a gentle, natural laxative—and helps keep you in "the pink of health."

An entirely new process in cereal-making is responsible for this wonderful new food and Heinz owns the process. In no other cereal can you get the particular health qualities—or the flavor—of Heinz Rice Flakes. They're fine for everybody.

BUGS BAER Says

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WELL, the scalpers got our right eye last year. Now they have come back to play a world series for the left optic.

Tickets for the opening game are up to 15 bills a copy. That's on the European plan. Without meals.

Mae West opened up her new show on Broadway to an exclusive but large audience of police.

We like Mae's operas. The second act always takes place in the patrol wagon.

Mae and 56 other actors were adopted by the law after the show opened.

If it were not for Miss West's dramas the police wouldn't have any place to go.

When the District Attorney goes to his office in the morning he reads the theatrical ads to see who he is going to arrest.

Mayor Walker calls up and says, "How's crime today?"

The District Attorney says, "We can quote two prices. Wholesale and retail."

The Mayor responds, "Our dictaphone hasn't worked since 'What Price Glory' blew out the fuse."

The District Attorney answers, "Mae West is opening a new show tonight. Shall I reserve you an exit?"

His Honor, the Jimmie, says, "Send me an invitation on a complaint blank."

Then the coppers put on their bullet-proof tuxedos and hold their annual parade up the aisle of the theater.

Miss West never feels at ease unless she is cuddled up in the strong arm of the law.

She could write plays that she wouldn't get arrested for. But then she would have to buy her own dinner.

Her latest play violates Section 1, 141-A of the penal code. And that 1,141-A ain't no telephone number.

We would like to see Mae play Little Eva in Uncle Thomas' duplex studio. We bet that the bloodhounds would quit.

Neither Two Orphans in a Florida storm nor Shakespeare's plays are Mae's favorite vehicles.

Her favorite vehicle has a gong on the front end.

When the prompter's bell rings at 8:15, Mae never knows whether the play is starting or the patrol is arriving.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

A Number of Early Weddings and Debuts Put Month of October in Fall Social Season for First Time

A LOT of things have been written about this russet month of October, but until this year no one in Pittsburgh has ever considered it a part of "the season." Perhaps you can remember, even though I cannot, when we have ever had so interesting a fall. There were several outstandingly important weddings last autumn, of course, but I believe there are a few more this year, and to add even a little more zest, we have our early debutantes and their parties, large and small.

So far, five October debut dates have been announced, while already we know of at least nine or ten weddings of widespread interest scheduled for the month. One of these latter, naturally, is that of Alice Walton Childs and Oliver P. Nicola, Jr., set, you know, for October 25. The hour selected is 5 o'clock, I believe, and the ceremony will be performed in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

Alice is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Childs, of Albemarle avenue, and she will have her younger sister, Mary, for her maid of honor. She is to have six bridesmaids, too, all but one of them Pittsburgh girls. Perhaps I should say, all but two of the girls, because Mrs. John Berdan, the former Margaret Evans, is going to be a bridesmaid, and she lives in Toledo now. The other girls are Marjorie Kimball, Josephine Nicola, Alice's future sister-in-law; Mrs. Shirley Austin, who was formerly Natalie Stone; Mrs. George Armstrong Kelly, who was Agnes Stewart before she was married last October, and Alice's cousin, Frances Cook, of Rochester, N. Y.

It hasn't been definitely settled, as yet, just who the men of the bridal party will be, but I will tell you about that later.

ALL of these big weddings mean, naturally, that there will be inumerable parties, some of them given for the bride and others in honor of the entire bridal party. I've just been told about one of the affairs arranged in honor of Martha Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Faber Brooks, of Shields, who will marry Alexander Laughlin Robinson on October 15. Eleanor McCargo, daughter of the Grant McCargos, who is going to be one of Martha's bridesmaids, is planning a small dinner dance for next Thursday night at her home in Woodland road, East End. The guests will be limited to members of the bridal party, I understand.

REGARDING still another wedding, no doubt you will be interested to know that the A. W. McEldowneys, of Westminster place, have already left for the East to be present when their son, William M. McEldowney, marries Hazelhurst Plant McCaw, daughter of the Wallace Eugene McCaws, of Fifth avenue, New York, and Lake George. The ceremony will be performed on Saturday at the McCaws' Lake George home. Mr. and Mrs. McEldowney left yesterday morning and they are spending a day or two in New York before proceeding to Lake George.

Their son and his brother-in-law, Howard K. Walter, of Wilkins avenue, who will be his best man, left on Tuesday night for Lake George, and I believe Mrs. Walter is leaving tonight.

MR. AND MRS. ERNEST BRAUN, Jr., will give a dinner dance tonight in the Shannopin Country Club in honor of Miss Anne Laura Susman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Susman, of Beacon street, whose marriage to James Finch Kirk will be solemnized October 15. Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. William Harman and Mrs. Allan S. Dayton gave a luncheon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club for Miss Susman, and on Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. William D. Marshall will entertain at dinner in their home in Denniston avenue. Next Tuesday afternoon, Miss Margaret McQuade will give a bridge party at her home in Baum boulevard, and on the following day, Miss Margaret Banker, of Wayne road, will be hostess at a bridge tea in her home. Mr. and Mrs. William Tears will entertain at bridge next Thursday night in their home in Negley avenue, and on the following afternoon, Miss Audrey Voelp will give a luncheon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club. That night, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Genter will entertain at bridge at their home in the Alderson Apartments.

THE marriage of Catharine Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lysle Jones, of Greensburg, formerly of Parkersburg, W. Va., and Stanley Pingrey Miner, of New York, will be solemnized Saturday night at 6 o'clock in the Greensburg Presbyterian Church. A reception will follow the ceremony in the Greensburg Country Club. Anna Jane Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Phillips, of Carrick, a classmate of the bride at Vassar College, will be maid of honor and the matron of honor will be Mrs. Carroll Snyder. The bridesmaids will be Ruth Kimball, of Minneapolis; Anna Gerwig, of Braddock; Mary Jane Dom, of Greensburg; Eleanor Tait, of Parkersburg; Marjorie Groce, of Plymouth, Mass., and Catharine Sterrett, of Bellevue. Anne Eubank, of Detroit, cousin of the bride, is to be flower girl.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cunningham, of Irwin, and Paul H. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess T. Miller, of Beallsville, Pa., which was solemnized Tuesday morning at 11:30 o'clock in the French room of the Hotel Schenley by the Rev. Samuel Blacker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Irwin. A breakfast followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for an extensive motor trip. Upon their return they will be at home in the Roselawn Apartments, Mt. Lebanon.

McKelvy, secretary, and Miss Nancy McCormick, treasurer. WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THOSE who listen in to the broadcasts from the Radio Show tonight will hear several of the artists who broadcast regularly from Station KDKA, which station will broadcast two programs from the show. The first one, at 8 o'clock, will present the Lefridge instrumental trio and Isabel Hoffman Cooper, soprano. The second program, at 9 o'clock, will bring Virginia Kenricks, contralto; Frederick G. Rodgers, baritone; Virginia Brown Wilharm, accompanist; and the One Minute Demonstrator quartet, Eugene Baldridge, tenor; Vincent Kroen, tenor; Max Kroen, baritone, and Raymond Griffin, bass, with Earl Mitchell at the piano.

Louis Kaufman, chief announcer of Station KDKA, will introduce Roxy, who in turn will introduce the artists appearing on the programs.

The initial program of the new series sponsored by Kemble and Mills will be broadcast through Station KDKA this evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The programs will be under the supervision of Frederick G. Rodgers, who through his appearance at KDKA has become known all over the world. Aside from directing the program and introducing the artists over the air, Mr. Rodgers will appear in the role of baritone soloist. The guest soloist will be Miss Virginia Kendricks, contralto, one of Pittsburgh's leading young singers, who has won fame not only in her own city but through the entire East, having won prominent recognition on the concert stage and in competitive recitals.

A sentimental program dedicated to the Hoover Honeymooners will be broadcast as the weekly offering of the Hoover Sentinels through WCAE at 8:30 o'clock. "Flower of Love," by the male quartet known as the Hoover Sentinels, and "A Midsummer's Dream," by the orchestra, lead the Honeymooners themselves to respond with an appropriate duet, "Once in a lifetime."

"Dance Caprice," by the Norwegian composer, Edward Grieg, opens the weekly concert in the WCAE Halsey Stuart Hour, at 10 o'clock. As usual, the entertainment is staged in the home of Halsey Stuart's "Old Counsellor," whose lavish hospitality and valuable advice is generously broadcast to radio listeners throughout the country. The musical features on this date include a new arrangement of "Nola," never before played over the air or in concerts anywhere.

Franz von Suppe's "Boccaccio," an operetta first produced in 1879, will be presented by the United Light Opera Company at 9 o'clock over WJAS.

This operetta is considered one of the most beautiful examples of Von Suppe's work. The story of the operetta concerns Pietro, Prince of Palermo, who, following the wishes of his father, journeys to Florence to marry Fiametta, the Duke of Tuscany's daughter. Fiametta has been adopted by Lambertuccio, a grocer, when a child, and he is not aware of her noble birth. The Duke causes her to be brought up in this humble way for reasons of his own, intending to wed her to Pietro, to whom she had been betrothed in infancy. Upon arriving in Florence, Pietro, before presenting himself to the Duke and Fiametta, attends some student parties, at which he is mistaken for Boccaccio, a novelist and poet who is hated by the men of Florence for having ridiculed them in his novels, and is severely beaten by the Florentines. Boccaccio also is in love with Fiametta, and later when Pietro is about to be solemnly betrothed to Fiametta, for considerations of state (he does not love her, nor she him), Boccaccio knowing that his affection for her is reciprocated, arranges a play which illustrates the follies of Pietro so strongly that the latter surrenders the hand of Fiametta to him.

DRIVE LEADERS BANQUET

Medicine has become the dominant element in successful industry, Dr. Otto C. Gaub, chief surgeon of the Allegheny General Hospital, declared last night in the Pittsburgh Club at a dinner attended by more than 50 heads of North Side industries.

The dinner was a preliminary feature in the $5,000,000 building fund campaign, beginning October 26. Among speakers were Gordon Fisher, president of Spang, Chalfant Co.; the Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander and H. L. Mason, Jr., chairman and vice chairman of the appeal, and T. A. McGinley, head of the Duff Manufacturing Company, host at the dinner.

Mr. Fisher made a plea for united support by industries, emphasizing the benefit they derive from adequate hospitalization in their district.

STOLEN LOVE

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Joan Lives Secluded Life With Two Maiden Aunts

CHAPTER I.

"I DON'T want any foolishness," Aunt Evvie used to say when Joan as a child begged for a pet or a playmate. And, "I don't want any foolishness," she still said, when 17-year-old Joan asked for silk stockings or permission to stay and play tennis after school.

That settled it so far as Aunt Evvie was concerned. But "foolishness" is not so easily settled when you are 17, and it's spring.

It was April. The lilacs on the old Van Fleet place had burst into bloom over night. Yesterday they were tight, dark buds, and now the feathery blossoms sprayed over the summer house and dripped a glorious purple tide onto the sun-blistered bench beside it.

Joan grinned impishly and kissed the sweet green wood of the lilac tree. Joan was always loving things—the little new green shoots in the old cypress hedge, the swelling buds on the rose bushes, the poor, rusty iron deer, who stood for so many years firmly planted in the middle of the garden.

When you aren't allowed to have real friends you have to have make-believe ones. At least Joan did. Major, the deer, was the best beloved of them all. Many were the warm kisses she had pressed on his cold iron nose, many the tearful secrets she had poured in his deaf and rusty ear.

"Silly thing!" Mrs. Heeley, peeling potatoes at the kitchen window, watched her disgustedly. "She's been up to somethin'!" The brown parings slid in thin spirals from her red, bony hands, onto the newspaper-covered drain board. "Wait till Miss Evvie gets after her . . . she'll catch it!"

There was an odd exulting gleam in her sunken old eyes, something vicious in the way she handled the sharp little paring knife. "Old Crazy Heeley," the Sausalito children called her. Thirty-seven years she had worked for the Van Fleets. "Workin' my fingers to the bone, takin' Miss Evvie's lip, and no decent wages . . . they'll see when I'm gone . . . " She was always threatening to quit. But she never did. She hated change.

She hated Joan, too. Joan—who was young when she and the "Van Fleet" girls were old. Joan with the too red, too-laughing mouth. Joan—with the fly-away golden hair, tomboy Joan, always rushing and running and tumbling over things, never stopping to grow up into a proper young lady.

* * * *

Joan picked up her feet slowly. Her heavy common-sense shoes scraped on the path. They weren't dancing feet any more. The little secret smile had faded. Joan was afraid of Aunt Evvie. Aunt Evvie had found out; somebody must have told on her. She might have known. Aunt Evvie always found out.

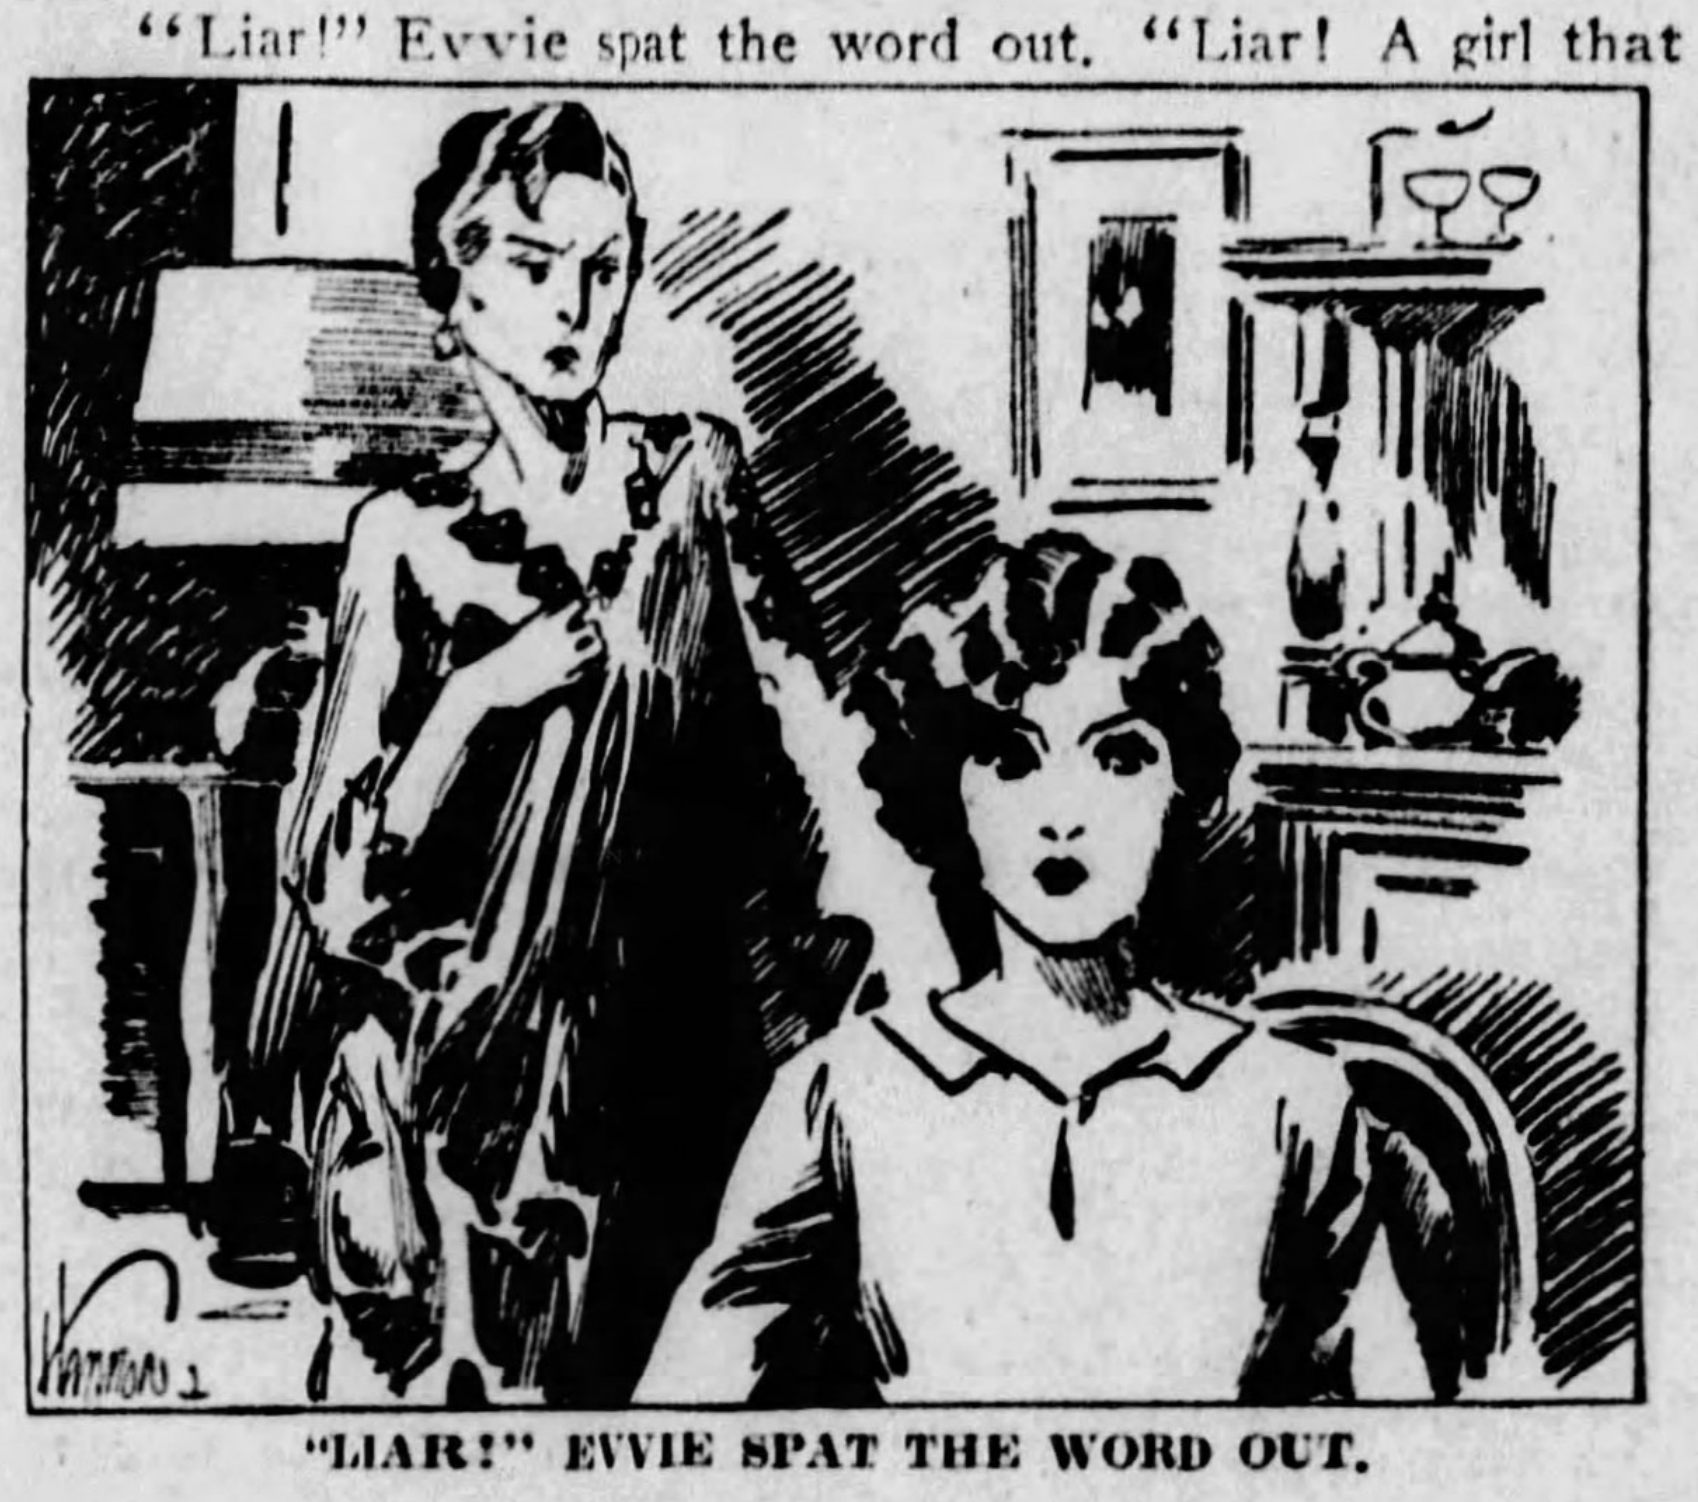
Aunt Evvie was waiting in the very middle of the big red rug in the library. She stood, square and crisp in her stiff white shirtwaist and black alpaca skirt, a black-browed executioner, waiting for the culprit.

Over in her corner near the ugly, air-tight stove, Aunt Babe pulled her pink ice-wool shawl closer over her narrow shoulders, and rocked very fast. The disciplining of Joan, though pleasurably exciting, was nerve-racking, and likely to give her a headache. Evvie never knew when to stop.

"So you spent the afternoon with the Sedgwick girls!" Aunt Evvie's voice was heavy, bass, almost like a man's.

Joan's head went up. She had fighting blood. "Yes, I did!"

"Liar!" Evvie spat the word out. "Liar! A girl that will lie, that will sneak, and——"



"LIAR!" EVVIE SPAT THE WORD OUT.

"I didn't lie! I said I spent the afternoon with Hilda and Anne, and I did——"

"At a dance hall, a common, public——"

"A dancing class, Aunt Evvie! Everybody at school goes—all the nice girls, Hilda and Anne, and Dorothy Nailor. You can't say the Sedgwicks and the Nailors aren't nice——"

"Very nice, I'm sure." Evvie folded her arms on her militant chest, and dropped her voice to a sugary rumble. Sarcasm was one of her favorite weapons. "Quite as nice as the riff-raff that attends. Maybe nicer. But—in the future you will have nothing more to do with these nice girls! I forbid you to speak to them, except as may be necessary in school. Is that quite clear? Let us not misunderstand each other again—"

"Dinner is served!" Mrs. Heeley put her head in the doorway. Her thin face was flushed with excitement. "Dinner is served, ladies!"

Aunt Babe got up and led the way automatically across the hall into the dining room. The others followed.

Evvie tasted her soup. "It's cold. Heeley—take it out!"

POLICEMAN WOUNDED, GUNMAN KILLED

Roy Smith, 40, of 2050 Palmer street, Swissvale, was fatally shot and Patrolman John Rubbo, 27, of 19 Third street, Rankin, was wounded seriously last night in a gun battle on the Rankin-Swissvale Bridge. The patrolman is in Columbia Hospital.

Rankin police released Edward Hughes, of 2010 Noble street, Swissvale, who witnessed the shooting, and Mrs. Smith, who is said to have requested Rankin police to keep her husband out of the borough, where he had been drinking heavily for several weeks. The two will report to the coroner today.

Patrolman Rubbo met Hughes and Smith on the Swissvale end of the bridge and, according to police, Smith began cursing the officer. Smith told the policeman to get back into Rankin, it was said, and when the officer refused to heed the warning, Smith drew a revolver and fired. The patrolman returned the fire and then fell wounded into the street.

Smith, wounded in the abdomen, staggered two blocks to his home and into the cellar of the house. He remained there for a short time before coming to the street, where he collapsed and was found.

THIEVES SMASH GLASS, ESCAPE WITH JEWELRY

Thieves tossed a brick wrapped in a turkish towell through the display window of the Perry Jewelry store, 3925 Perrysville avenue, early today and escaped with two watches and two bracelets valued at $105. A night patrolman discovered the robbery.

HURT BY AUTO, GIRL, 8, DIES

Marissa Martin, 8, of 621 Lincoln avenue, died early today in the Pittsburgh Hospital from injuries suffered last night when struck by an automobile at Lincoln and Shetland avenues. A fractured skull caused her death. Police arrested Anthony Rutunno, 23, of Deary street, the driver, and he will be turned over to the coroner today.

The driver of a machine that struck Henry Polotski, 14, of 1818 Mary street, at South Eleventh and Carson streets, late yesterday, stopped long enough to examine the boy's injuries, and then drove away.

Aboard Graf Zeppelin Arriving at Friedrichshafen After 1,800-Mile Endurance Flight.

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—(Radio from Graf Zeppelin.) — Of 1,800 miles since Tuesday morning to her arrival at Friedrichshafen at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, in which many varieties of weather were encountered from gales and rains to intense cold, the Graf Zeppelin and Commodore Eckener have stirred enthusiasm and interest from England to Holland as well as throughout Germany.

The 34-hour duration run was the last long flight of Germany's air liner before her trans-Atlantic flight. The work of regassing and refueling for the ocean trip begins this morning.

PASSENGERS CHILLED

The more than a score of passengers reached Friedrichshafen chilled to the bone from the long hours in the biting cold in an air which at times slightly frosted the windows.

Dr. Eckener shows the superiority of the Zeppelin over airplanes in navigating the air in bad weather, making use of weather reports for dodging bad spots, and setting his course by the compass when there was no visibility. Motors were repaired without interfering with the flight.

The highest speed reached on the trip was approximately 85 miles per hour, while at times buffeting winds held the ship as low as 48 miles per hour.

AID HOOVER, CUT SMITH METHODISTS ASKED

Indorsement of the presidential candidacy of Herbert Hoover and a declaration of "undying hostility" to the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith was sought in a resolution presented by the Rev. Dr. Harry M. Chalfant at today's session of the Pittsburgh Methodist Episcopal conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, meeting in McKeesport.

SENT TO COMMITTEE

The resolution, wholly unexpected, was referred to the committee on resolutions, which will make a report, probably tomorrow.

Dr. Chalfant who presented the resolution, is a member of the Pittsburgh conference, with a special assignment to the Anti-Saloon League. He is editor of "The American Issue," anti-saloon publication with headquarters in Philadelphia.

The resolution in part reads:

"Because of his record on liquor legislation and his present attitude in favor of repealing the Eighteenth amendment and substituting therefore licensed and government control, we therefore declare our undying hostility to the presidential candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

"Moreover, we advise and urge our Methodist membership and constituency to use their ballots and influence to the utmost to bring about the election of that eminently qualified statesman, world renowned humanitarian and defender of the eighteenth amendment, Herbert Hoover."

The matter of an adjustment of salaries of ministers was brought before the conference and action deferred until Saturday morning, so that the various proposals made could be printed.

The anniversary meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was scheduled for 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to be followed by a lecture at 4 o'clock. The Allegheny College dinner will be held this evening and later Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington will speak at a meeting of the board of temperance on "Prohibition and Public Morals." The Rev. J. E. Skillington, of Altoona, also will speak.

There will be a parade of the Epworth League of the McKeesport district tonight.

IGNORE CHURCH ROW

The open break between the Callender Men's Bible Class of the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, and members of the church official board in which the Bible class was forced into the street to worship, will not be discussed at the conference, it was said last night by Bishop Herbert Welch.

He refused to state whether he had been petitioned by members of the congregation to remove the Rev. Sheridan W. Bell, pastor.

If You Play Bridge, This Will Interest You

HEINRICHS

BEGINNING with the issue of October 7, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will make an addition to its many attractive Sunday features in the form of a weekly column on Auction Bridge, the most popular indoor sport in this country.

This column will not only be instructive, but it will also be newsy as well as entertaining, with particular reference to any event or happening transpiring in bridge circles in this locality. The column will be conducted by Ernest H. Heinrichs, local newspaperman now connected with the Westinghouse interests, whose name is familiar to bridge players in this country as well as abroad as the author of "Common Sense Bridge."

Will Rogers Says

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 4.

Well, Gene Tunney got married and everybody wishes them good luck. I thought on account of his going to Europe to marry that maybe he was going to get Shakespeare to marry them.

What will become of that author that has been walking around with him? He will stroll alone.

Now my idea of the height of conceit would be a political speaker that would go on the air when that World's Series is on.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

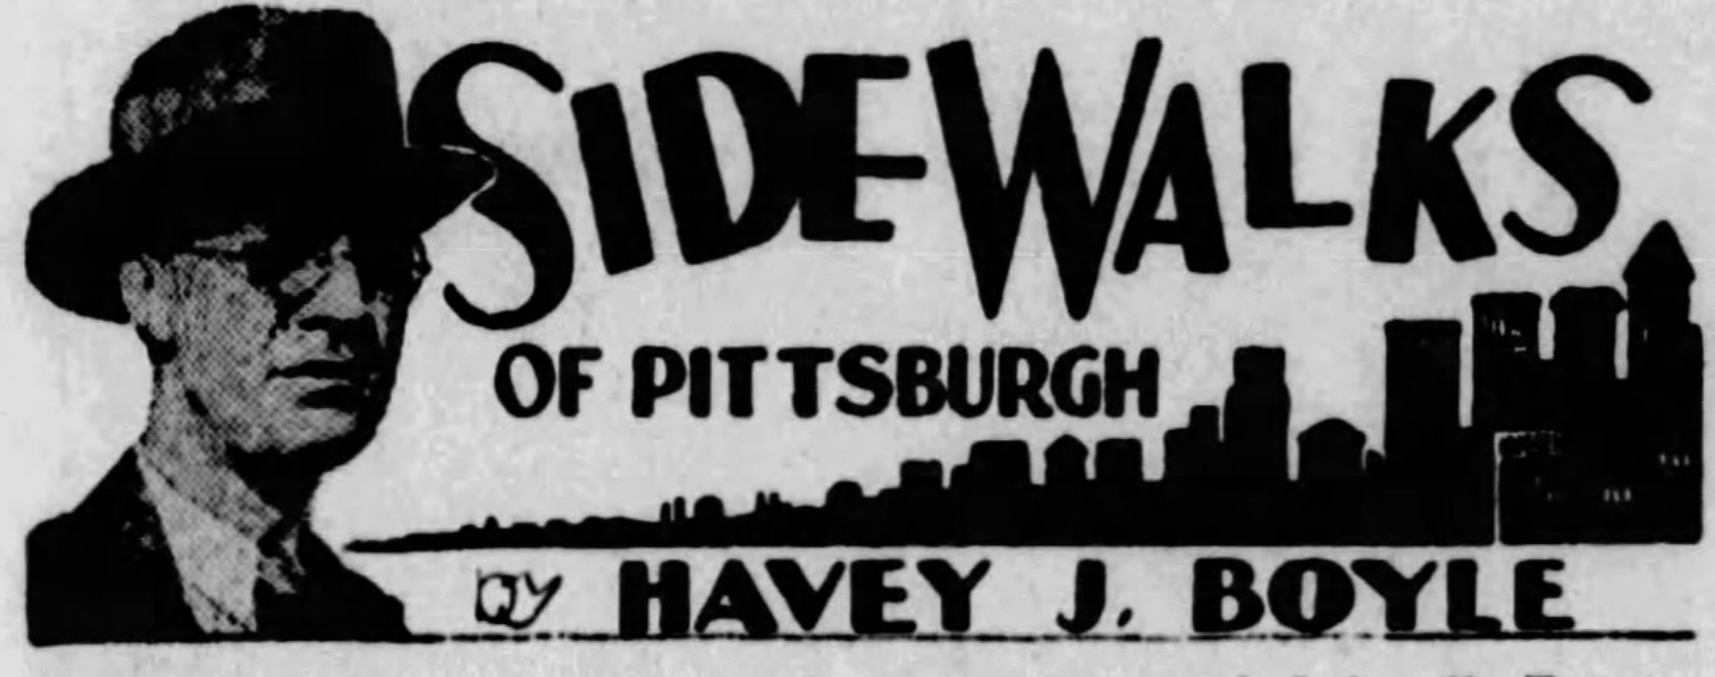
SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

CHARLEROI is a town noted as the home of John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, former president of the National League of professional baseball clubs; as the home of many good boxers, and as the home of Hardie Albright. The latter may be termed a local boy who made good in the big city. At the present time Hardie Albright is one of the stars in a play in New York, which reflecting the plethora of grand jury probes into bootlegging, hijacking and kindred arts, is called "Gang War."

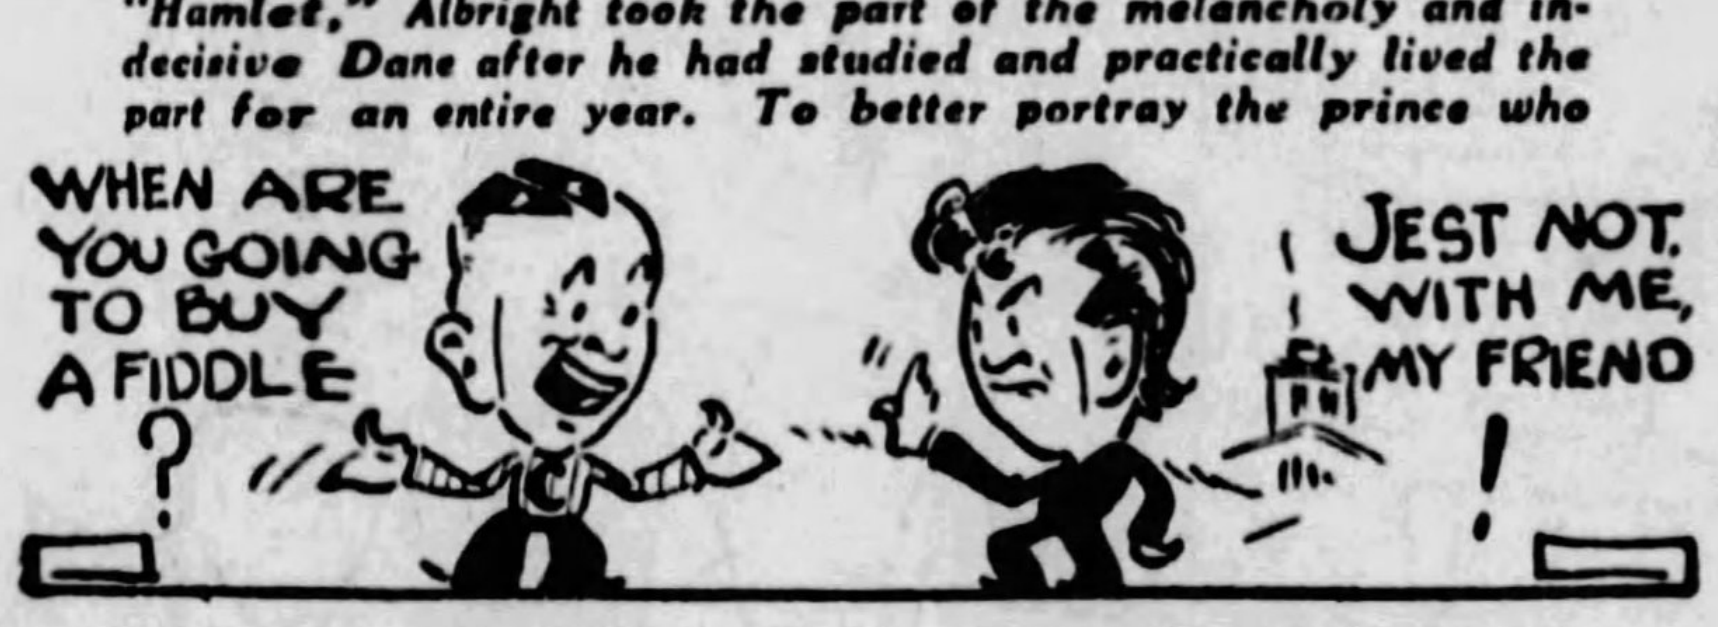
Hardie Albright was a Charleroi boy who took up drama at Carnegie Tech. In a little theater production of "Hamlet," Albright took the part of the melancholy and indecisive Dane after he had studied and practically lived the part for an entire year. To better portray the prince who discovered the poisonous perfidy of a mother and an uncle Hardie Albright even let his hair grow for something like a year. It was a little hard on the barbers, but it was good for art. His playing of the Dane here came under the artistic eye of Eva La Galliene, a young lady of New York, who is interested in the drama practically for art's sake alone, and he soon was offered a part in a New York cast.



WHEN ARE YOU GOING TO BUY A FIDDLE ?
JEST NOT. WITH ME, MY FRIEND !

IN "Gang War" Albright gives promise of developing into one of America's finest actors.

"Gang War," if we mistake not, was written by Willard Mack, a gentleman of the theater who can turn out a play in less time than the neophyle would be able to write: Act One: Scene One: A street in Constantinople. Time: The Present.

Resting on his cane one evening back-stage of a Pittsburgh theater, Willard Mack indicated that the way to write a play is to write one. Which is not bad logic. The great big trick, the solution of which was not ventured, was how to have one produced.

THEATER musicians must must work when other people are at play. Consequently, they live a life that is more or less upside down when compared with the hours observed by folk in most other lines. Pittsburgh musicians, for instance, have a bowling league. They do their bowling in the mornings, which to a great many bowlers, seems a very strange time to bowl. Their bowling league, instead of holding the annual banquet in the evening, holds the annual banquet on a Sunday. All of this, it seems here is stranger than that Joe Zummo is a local drummer. That is about as nice a blend of name and occupation as we have noted in a long while.

Speaking of musicians, Don Bestor is back in town, playing at the William Penn Hotel. Late of the Willows at Oakmont and of the Orpheum Circuit, Mr Bestor comes back to this district with more feathers in his cap than he can count. Only one untoward incident marked Mr. Bestor's return. One evening Mr. Bestor in a moment of glowing pride said: "I am so glad to see all my dear and personal friends here this evening," which was a speech that so touched a customer that the customer yelled: "Good old Don Bestor," and forthwith dropped from his pocket about as nice a pint as you'd care to sniff. After which, Mr. Bestor quickly turned his back and got busy once again directing his orchestra, amid, as we say, merry jests and jibes from the nobles and courtiers assembled.

STOLEN LOVE by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

They heard her banging around in the kitchen, talking to herself. Evvie was hardly conscious of it. She began on Joan again.

"This—this dancing teacher came here. She had the effrontery to call here while you were dawdling on your way home. Wanted money so that you could learn dancing. Money—"

Joan's face was flaming. "I never asked for any! I just went with the girls to visit, and she let me dance this afternoon—free—"

"Free! Humph! Throw a sprat to catch a mackerel. Well, she caught a mackeral—you'll do no dancing."

"I never asked—"

"No, you wormed your way in free. Free! A Van Fleet—"

"I'm not a Van Fleet. I'm a Hastings—"

Evvie's lip curled. "It's nothing to be proud of. The less you say about that father of yours to me—"

"Sister! Please—" Aunt Babe reached a skinny, trembling hand across the table. "You forget yourself—"

But the black-browed old woman, and the golden-haired girl didn't even see her. There was no stopping them now. The fight was on.

"Proud! I'm not proud of anything. What have I got to be proud of? Cotton stockings—when every other girl in school has silk! Patches. Crazy old clothes. I'm the laughing stock of the whole school. But I could stand that if you'd let me be like the rest—play basketball and go on hikes and all. You never let me have a single bit of fun my whole life. And when anybody like Hilda tolerates me a little 'cause she knows it isn't my fault I can't go anywhere, then you want to stop that—"

"Joan!" Aunt Babe was holding her head, crying weakly. "Joan, my heart, I can't stand it!"

"Babe! Keep out of this, will you? Evvie's face was purple. Her hand on the water goblet at her place was shaking.

Joan went right on, heedless of them. "I never had any fun. I'm the only girl in the school now that can't dance. I don't even know a boy. Every girl I know goes to dancing class on Wednesdays. It doesn't cost much. I guess all my mother's share of grandfather's money isn't gone. She'd have let me go—she'd know. How am I ever to meet any boys, when I can't.

Aunt Evvie's glass snapped in her fingers. The water dripped off the fine damask cloth onto the faded carpet in a forlorn, slow trickle. She pushed her chair back—stood up, pointing a thick, trembling finger at Joan.

"Boys! It's come to that already! Boys! You poor, misguided girl! And money—don't talk to me about your mother's share. If I hadn't been the business man of this family, investing and saving like I have—"

"But you did lose on that oil stock!" Babe quavered.

That word—oil—was enough to madden Evvie. She had never admitted, even to herself, how much she had lost on that. She had plunged to recover the losses on the cactus farm lands and the Gloria real estate.

The last vestige of her self-control vanished. "Don't show your ignorance!" she snarled at Babe. "We'd all be in the poorhouse now if it wasn't for me. Now keep out of this. I'm going to settle Joan Hastings right now. I'm talking about boys—boys! She's boy-struck like her mother. Do you hear me, you silly girl? It's boys I'm trying to save you from. We lived down one disgrace in this family—"

"Evvie!" Babe was pleading. Her hands were clasped. "After all these years—nobody knows. You wouldn't tell her?"

"Wouldn't I? It's been told at every tea party we didn't go to for 17 years, and don't you ever think it hasn't. Skeleton in the closet! Bah! Skeleton on the clothes line—that's what ours has been!" Again the thick finger pointed at the shrinking Joan. "I don't want that all over again—do you hear me? I won't have it."

"You won't have what?"

"Evvie, for my sake—please!" Babe's frizzed gray head was down on the table now. Little sighs and moans. Stifled sobs. Her thin-veiled hand reached for her handkerchief.

And Joan, her cheeks flaming, her tawny hair pushed back, panting. "Tell me—you've got to tell me now—you've got to—"

Evvie leaned forward, her heavy black brows drawn together. "Tell you! Yes, I'll tell you. It's high time you took warning. You're your mother's daughter. You're Veronica Van Fleet all over again. I can see it. You're beginning to act like her. She was boy crazy. She danced her way to the devil. I promised my mother on her deathbed I'd see you didn't go the same way, and I will—if I have to send you to a reform school to do it."

"What way—what did my mother do?"

Oh, God in heaven!" moaned Babe. "Look down upon these thy—"

"Oh, shut up, Babe! Babe doesn't want me to say your mother stole Peter Hastings away from her, though why, after all this time—"

"Evvie—please—please—"

"Aunt Babe and my father—" Joan faltered.

"Engaged." Evvie snapped. She was enjoying it now. She was getting even with the dead Veronica at last; Veronica who had stolen Babe's beau, who had broken her father's heart and disgraced them all—been the cause of all the bad luck—wished Joan on them . . .

She took another look at the slender, panting girl in the shiny old blue serge. Slender and round as a willow branch. The same creamy skin. The same sea-green eyes.

"Look out you don't end like your mother!" she finished.

"But how? You haven't told me. You've got to now—"

"All right!" Evvie spread her broad palms. "You asked. Your mother was bad—that's what. She used to sneak out and meet Peter in the rose garden after she was told to go to bed. She was only 16. Papa found them there one night—seems like yesterday—Veronica with Babe's blue dressing gown with the white swansdown trimming over her nightgown, crying in the hall, and mamma fainting—"

"But if they loved each other why didn't everybody let them be engaged?

"She was too young!" Evvie came back from the past with a bang. Her thin nostrils quivered. "Papa sent her away to school, and made Peter ship on a sailing boat—the Hesperance. It was burnt in the China Sea . . ."

"But how—"

A faint, rattling sob from Babe. Evvie brushed an imaginary crumb from her immaculate white shirtwaist. "Yes, that was always hard for us to explain," she said dryly. "Mamma used to say there had been a secret marriage. It's probably as good as anything. Anyway Peter was at the bottom of the China Sea, he and his ship, burnt to a crisp, and Veronica did just what you might have expected of her. She sent you home for us to take care of, and jumped off a ferryboat, coming over from the city. Well, that ought to hold you for a while. I guess I'll go to bed. You'd better come too, Babe!"

And she strode majestically from the room, quite herself [illegible], leisurely impressive, all her [illegible] forgotten.

[illegible] blump—her heavy footsteps [illegible] up the stairs.

Then Joan's. Slow, heartbroken, her little world fallen about her ears. Up the stairs, into her room. How queer she looked in the mirror . . . her eyes looked so dark in her pale face . . . with her hair all mussed . . . Did "bad girls" look that way?

She knelt by the bed, and cooled her hot face on the fresh white counterpane. How she hated Aunt Evvie, and how she hated herself for believing Aunt Evvie.

The little porcelain miniature of Veronica—of Veronica at 16—was strained close to her heart. The little mother she had never known. Her pretty one. Her dear one.

"Aunt Evvie is a liar, a double-dyed, 20 times, liar, I know she is!" she whispered to the little miniature, so oddly like herself. "I don't believe her—don't you know I don't—wherever you are?"

And she cried because it wasn't any use. Something in Evvie's cold dark eyes, something in Babe's pitiful clutching hands had told her. It wasn't a lie. It was the truth.

Joan sprang to her feet. "I don't care if it is true!" she cried. "It's a real love story—I'm proud I'm a Hastings! No wonder he loved her—she was beautiful and fine and wonderful! I love her too—more than ever—I do—I do—"

Joan reached out her arms. "I am like you!" The old mirror over the dresser flung back her image, starry-eyed, aflame with the first consciousness of her own beauty. "Why, we look exactly alike! And I will be like you—they can't stop me from it! I will! I will!"

CHAPTER II.

JOAN sat at her bedroom window, trying to study. The dog-eared geometry was propped up before her, but the big French window overlooking the garden was before her, too. And the garden was full of fragrance. Little rustling noises in the budding rose trees down below. A big yellow and black butterfly on the very top of the tallest white rose bush. Bluejays scolding in the big pine tree near the hedge.

"The square of the hypotenuse—the square—"

The printed page blurred. It's so hard to put your mind on geometry when you've just lost your best friend. Hilda Sedgwick was mad at her—mad clear through.

"Why can't you walk up to the Point with me?" Hilda demanded hotly as they were coming from school.

"Aunt Evvie—"

"Oh, I know, you can't ever do anything that's any fun, but good night, Johnnie, don't you have to get botany specimens the same as I do at school, and won't she have to let you do that?"

"Yes, but—"

"Well, why can't we do it together?"

"I—I have mine already. I got them early—before school this morning—"

"Johnnie Hastings! And you never said a word to me! You passed right square by my house, too!"

"It was awfully early."

"Oh, all right—if you don't want to go with me it's all right. You seem to have changed all of a sudden, though."

"Hila—I haven't. I do want to go—only—"

"Only what?" Hilda's dark eyes were snapping. Her broad shoulders in their white woolly sweater were thrown back, haughtily.

They were an odd pair; thick-set Hilda in her smart sport clothes, and tall, slender Joan in her shiny blue serge, made out of an old coat of Aunt Babe's, but they loved each other. They always had, in spite of Aunt Evvie's expressed objections, and Mrs. Sedgwick's amusement of the poverty-stricken and fiercely snobbish Van Fleets.

And now their lifelong friendship was breaking.

"Only Aunt Evvie wants me home right after school."

"I'm getting sick of excuses, Joan. You're always running away from us. Anne says you are, and Dorothy, too. Gee, I never would have believed it of you." Hilda winked back a big tear, and blew her nose angrily.

"Hilda—can't you see—it's because Aunt Evvie—"

"Of course, if you care more for her than you do about me, all right, Johnnie Hastings. I'm through. I've always stuck up for you, against the whole crowd, but—"

And then, somehow or other, Hilda was running down the dusty road to catch up with Dorothy Nailor, and they had disappeared, arm in arm round the bend that led up to the Point above the Bay. Joan was alone. All alone now. Because of Aunt Evvie. Because she went to visit a dancing class one single, solitary afternoon, and Aunt Evvie had found out . . .

Joan's mouth set in a hard, tight line. "The square of the hypotenuse—" She'd study hard, and graduate in winter instead of June. Get through six months earlier. Then she could earn her own living, and get away from Aunt Evvie and Aunt Babe, and the hateful house.

Aunt Babe was almost worse than Evvie now. Ever since Evvie told that story about Joan's father who was once Babe's sweetheart, Aunt Babe had been awful! She wouldn't speak to Joan at all. Just sat and rocked, and sniffled all the time. It was terrible to watch her, all huddled up in her big pink shawl, with her eyes all red, and her everlasting handkerchief dabbing at her little pinched blue nose.

Mrs. Heeley crept around with her head tied up in a piece of red flannel, on account of her neuralgia, always looking at Joan as if she expected her to go off at any minute, like a lighted firecracker; always muttering about "foolishness" and "boy-struck girls."

And then every night, Aunt Evvie with her arms akimbo would say, "I hate to have to question you this way, Joan, but you understand why it is necessary. I have my promise to your grandmother to keep. You're still under age—and if you defy me, there are those you can't. Have you cut off your friendship with the Sedgwicks, and that Nailor girl?"

Joan sighed, and went at the geometry again with a stubby pencil. "Oh, darn school. Darn living. Darn everything. When you have no friends, and no one in the whole world to love, it's no use——"

Diana Returns From Paris And Benny Promises to Love Her Always

CHAPTER XXX.

AFTER her word with Benny, Beatrice hurriedly returned to her guests, who, with rare tact, left quietly and without the usual prolonged farewells. Hardly one but whispered some word of affectionate sympathy for Diana. She soon realized that the evening's incident would do nothing to harm her friend.

When the last of the crowd had gone, a watchman turned out all the lights but those in the lounge, the dressing room and over the entrance, and a corps of scrubwomen appeared and began the laborious process of cleaning the ballroom floor.

It was then Beatrice sought the lounge. She found Ann still sitting on the table, flourishing a whisky glass. The decanter beside her was practically empty. Nor was she alone. Freddie, painfully sober for once and not a little angry, also was there.

"A fine mess you've made now!" Beatrice heard him say. "What did you want to get everybody down on you for?"

"What an old bear he is! Have a lil drink, Freddikins!"

"No! And cut the fooling. You'd better get out of this."

Beatrice spoke from the doorway. "Do take her home, Freddie."

"Not me," he muttered. "I've had enough."

"I'll go when I'm ready," she remarked insolently.

"But they're closing the club, Ann. Let Freddie and me drive you home. So too bad—everything. I'm sorry for you, too—won't you believe that? Do let me take you away now."

Ann shrugged and walked unsteadily to the window, where she stood looking out. She was beginning to feel the let-down from her orgy, and this frightened her—sent her back to the table to drain the last drop from the decanter. She grew reckless again, laughing and pawing at Freddie.

The watchman came to the door, said that he wished to lock up. "Get out, you old fool! Get out, I say!" Ann flung this at him as she flung it at Benny.

The man would have retreated, but Beatrice motioned him to turn off the lights. Still Ann refused to leave.

Beatrice went to the mezzanine, stood there talking with her brother, when a man across the darkened ballroom mounted the stairs. She glanced up quickly, saw that it was her husband.

She waited calmly, about to disclose the situation to him, explain why she had remained so late. But he came forward, and she realized with astonishment that, while his face was anxious, suspicion had gone from it. He was reaching for her, catching her to him, murmuring little, tender things against her hair.

"Norman!"

"Forgive, Bea, dearest! Sweetheart . . . I was a beast—didn't understand . . . I'll make it up—everything—don't go away . . ."

Freddie walked to the other end of the mezzanine; loitered there with his back to them. His world had been turned upside down within the last few hours, or so it seemed to him then. For it was years later that he realized just how long the turning process had been going on, and that only at this time had he become aware of accepting the heritage of Jeremiah Sheldon's son—a heritage of caution which eventually was to amount to something very like prudery.

Indeed, it may be well to state that upon Diana's return from abroad she heard with shrieks of amusement that Freddie Sheldon had taken a job in his father's bank, to which he was actually appplying himself with such singleness of purpose as to preclude drinks, damsels and devilishness of every description.

Now, however, the young man waited what he considered a sufficient interval, and then returned to his sister and her husband, reminding them that something would have to be done about the "bale of rye" in the lounge room.

They stared uncomprehendingly for a moment, coming back from some glorious realm of beauty never quite reached before. Then Beatrice explained what had happened.

"Spoiled your party, did she?" Norman sputtered. "I'll get her out!"

"No—be careful, darling. She's—well, I think I love everybody tonight."

"You girl!" He stopped to kiss her again before trying his luck with Ann.

But Ann appeared at this moment, waved to him, cockily called "Greetings!"

"Make it lively, Ann. Can't have my wife annoyed so."

"Oh, your wife! 'Nother pair of fools pretending to be happy! Dam happy marriage you two made, I guess! Ha—suppose she'd make any man happy—" With a flirt of her hand toward Beatrice, a knowing grin.

"Yes." Norman replied quietly. "She would. And she's going to have the chance to do it from now on!" A look between himself and Beatrice, so long that Freddie moved impatiently and muttered.

"Guess 'lil Annikins can go by herself all right. Watch me, is all I ask—just watch me. Now, then"—

She got down the steps some way while the others waited, unwilling to confuse her by moving.

There was a stir at the top of the stairs. "We've had enough," Norman declared, and put his arm around his wife. They began to descend. Ann heard them and half turned, calling: "All right—all right"— She let go the railing—reeled—flung out a hand.

Freddie cleared the half-dozen steps to the landing in a single bound, Norman at his heels. But it was too late.

Frantic with horror, Beatrice screamed, trying to turn her eyes from the bundle of soiled evening clothes which lay very still at the foot of the stairs.

The scrubwomen had scrambled out of the way; the servants were running; all was confusion. Beatrice made out a limp arm on which blacelets glittered, a pale head bent backward in an oddly terrifying way, a widening line of red across the temple.

Then Norman was gathering her up, hurrying her back to the lounge. His face was white and set.

"Norman—ah, Norman"——

"Hush, Bea. I've sent for the doctor. Are you all right? Wait here a little"——

He left her there, returning after a long time to take her home. They had moved Ann; the scrubwomen were gone; a single light burned over the entrance. It was heart-shakingly dreary.

Beatrice began fearfully: "Is she"——

"It wasn't hard. The doctor said she never knew what happened. Don't think of it, dear; don't think of death. Life is ours. A long, wonderful life it will be, yours and mine."

"And—and our little son's——"

"Beatrice! You didn't tell me? Darling Bea"— A new tenderness in his kisses, an adoring gentleness in his voice.

She sighed, and he wanted to know why. "You're happy now? You are happpy, Bea?"

"I didn't believe," she told him, "there could be so much happiness!"

Diana Rand spent a long, dreamy year in Italy. She was alone, but not lonely, pensive sometimes, but not unhappy. For always there was with her the sense of something waiting, a glorious fulfillment destined for her over beyond the sea.

She heard only once from Benny Black and felt, when she had read his letter, that she had held his heart in her hand. She did not reply, nor, she knew, did he expect her to.

From Daddy Rand and Mildred she heard that he had called to see them—they were the best of friends—he had gone away for a time—he had returned and was building a beautiful home on the hill beyond the Gregory place.

It was the first of June when she sailed for America, and she stopped in Manor Park only long enough to collect her roadster before going up to the bungalow camp where the elder Rands were spending the Summer. Their reunion was joyous, filled with the old care-free spirit they all had missed for a great while previous to her absence. But nothing was said of Ben.

Then, on the morning after her arrival, Diana went alone to Inspiration Point, remained there gazing over the valley, watching the clouds, thinking—thinking.

It was here he came to her. A step on the path—a glad cry—his arms folding her close.

They said little, sitting at the top of the world as they felt, while the sun climbed high and began to roll down the mighty western arc. And when the sky was flaming rose and the earth a glory, he asked softly: "For always and always, Diana? Love like this—it's for always?"

"For always, Benny," she answered happily. "Love like this is for always!"

THE END.

DANIEL SULLIVAN

Penn. Boy Needed Help

Daniel Sullivan, 5447 Spruce St., Philadelphia, is a "regular fellow," active, full of life, and at the top of his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness, but his mother says: "When Daniel was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny.

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for every cold or upset spell. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

CLOTHES MAKE THE MAN—MISERABLE

CONSIDER, my Daughter, the atrocities wherewith a man afflicteth himself.

Consider that inverted coffin, the derby hat, which bindeth his forehead, oppresseth his brain and leaveth the mark of suffering above his brow!

Which choketh out his hair and inclineth him to early baldness.

Which maketh the statesman to resemble the racetrack tout and causeth the clergyman and the baseball player to appear as twin souls.

Consider the starched collar, which upholdeth his chin as a pillory and forceth the collar button into his jugular vein.

Consider the waistcoat, which stretcheth across his embonpoint or wrinkleth across his shrinking front, and cometh not even within kissing distance of his belt in the back.

Consider the pajamas, which bind his waistline in torment at night and drive him to nightmares and rarebit dreams, even upon a supper of milk and toast and spinach.

Consider his shirt, which billoweth freely at the back and crawleth up in the front with temperamental coyness and requireth everlasting "tucking."

Consider his trousers, which balloon about his hips like twin loving cups and are held on largely by faith.

Consider his evening clothes, wherein he resembleth a waiter, and the tails whereof are fervent testimony to the truth of the Darwinian theory and the descent of man.

Consider his golf stockings and his plus-fours, than which nothing is hotter or sticketh closer on a summer day save a mustard poultice.

Yet do men continue to mount the platform and to wail to Heaven concerning the iniquity and folly of women's apparel!

Still do they berate her for her vanity and contemptuously call her the "slave of fashion!"

For verily, verily, whatsoever a man weareth, doeth or believeth is right and wise and "sensible" in his own eyes.

WILL GLADLY ANSWER LETTERS FROM WOMEN

Asking for Information About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. GLADYS ROGERS
Route 5, Grand Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl about 14 years old, when I was just entering womanhood. Then after I married, I took more of it. During the time before my baby was born this medicine gave me splendid results. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation also and recommend these medicines to my friends and will answer letters asking about them."—MRS. GLADYS ROGERS, Route 5, Grand Avenue Atlanta, Georgia.

A Lot Better By Taking It

Trafford, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I could not eat a thing. I had no appetite whatever and never felt good. I was talking to my friend one day and she passed the remark of how thin I was getting since I got married and I told her my trouble and she advised me to take the Vegetable Compound. I feel a lot better now since I have been taking it regularly and I can eat most anything. I recommend your medicine to anyone who tells me of troubles like my own, for I know what it has done for me. I have also used your Sanative Wash. I am willing to answer women if they ask about the medicine."—MRS. E. GELATIC, Box 502, Trafford, Pa.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Farm Is Reclaiming Many City Families

IT is surprising how many different matters are dealt with by government departments. For example, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has recently published a report on why families leave cities and towns.

DR. COPELAND

A questionnaire was sent to 10,000 farmers, to owners, tenants or hired men, persons who have recently moved to the country. It was desired to find why they have gone back to the land.

We hear much about abandoned farms and the problem of farm relief. But it seems there is still an appeal about the farm, and that quite recently some thousands, at least, have gone to the country to live.

It has always saddened me to read of the abandonment of the farm homes. There can be no doubt that the unfavorable economic conditions of agriculture have resulted in this unhappy state of affairs. It is refreshing to find that something has turned the other way, at least a percentage of transfers.

A careful study of this report shows that health was the chief incentive for choosing rural life. Most of the persons in question were born in the country, or had farm experience. In consequence, they knew the economic hazards of agriculture and did not blindly make a change from city to country.

The report is given as if a spokesman had been chosen to explain the reasons for the migration. I quote a few lines:

"We have as a group a good many children. One-fifth of us have one child to the family, another fifth have two children to the family, while an eighth of us have three children to the family.

"It is a mystery to many why we left town and went back to farming in precisely those years when so many other farmers were leaving the farm for the city, town or village.......The main inducements which won us back to farming were the basic advantages of the farm for health and living conditions, especially for our children. We highly valued the closeness of nature and the spacious character of country life."

Let us hope that disappointment and unrealized dreams will not cause them to return to the cities. Such lofty motives as these are worthy of all achievement!

I love the farm, live on a farm and hope to die here. But candor compels me to admit that city life, too, has its advantages in the way of health.

The clinics, hospitals, baby health centers, able doctors and nurses, and public health education in the importance of pure food, milk, water, sanitation and personal hygiene, have combined to make the cities pretty safe places in which to be born and live. Maternity care, prenatal and postnatal attention, and the oversight of health officials cannot be disregared.

But there is increasing attention to rural hygiene. Good roads and automobiles have shortened distances. Medical supervision of the country schools is becoming more general.

If not now, it won't be long before the health advantages of the city will be just as common in the country. Then, certainly, farm life, if made economically possible, will be the ideal manner of living.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, October 5

AN eventful and memorable day is predicted from the very interesting chain of lunar and mutual aspects. There is prospect of a sudden change, radical in its effects and calling for change of environment. However it is suggested that no move be made hastily and without proper consideration and deliberation, as impulse might lead to disadvantage. New contracts are in order, and new projects favorably aspected. Also all that pertains to heart and home affiliations should prosper and be happy.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of sudden and important events, with change of environment and business. Renewal of contracts and fresh undertakings are encouraged, but impulsive decisions may prove hazardous. The home and affectional relations should thrive and bring happiness.

A child born on this day may be talented and accomplished in many directions and should succeed in literary, artistic or professional lines, although being restless and impulsive by nature. It may have a spectacular or prominent career.

A willing heart adds feather to the heel, and makes the clown a minded Mercury.—JOANNA BAILLIE.

AUTUMN DAY PALS

-:- -:-

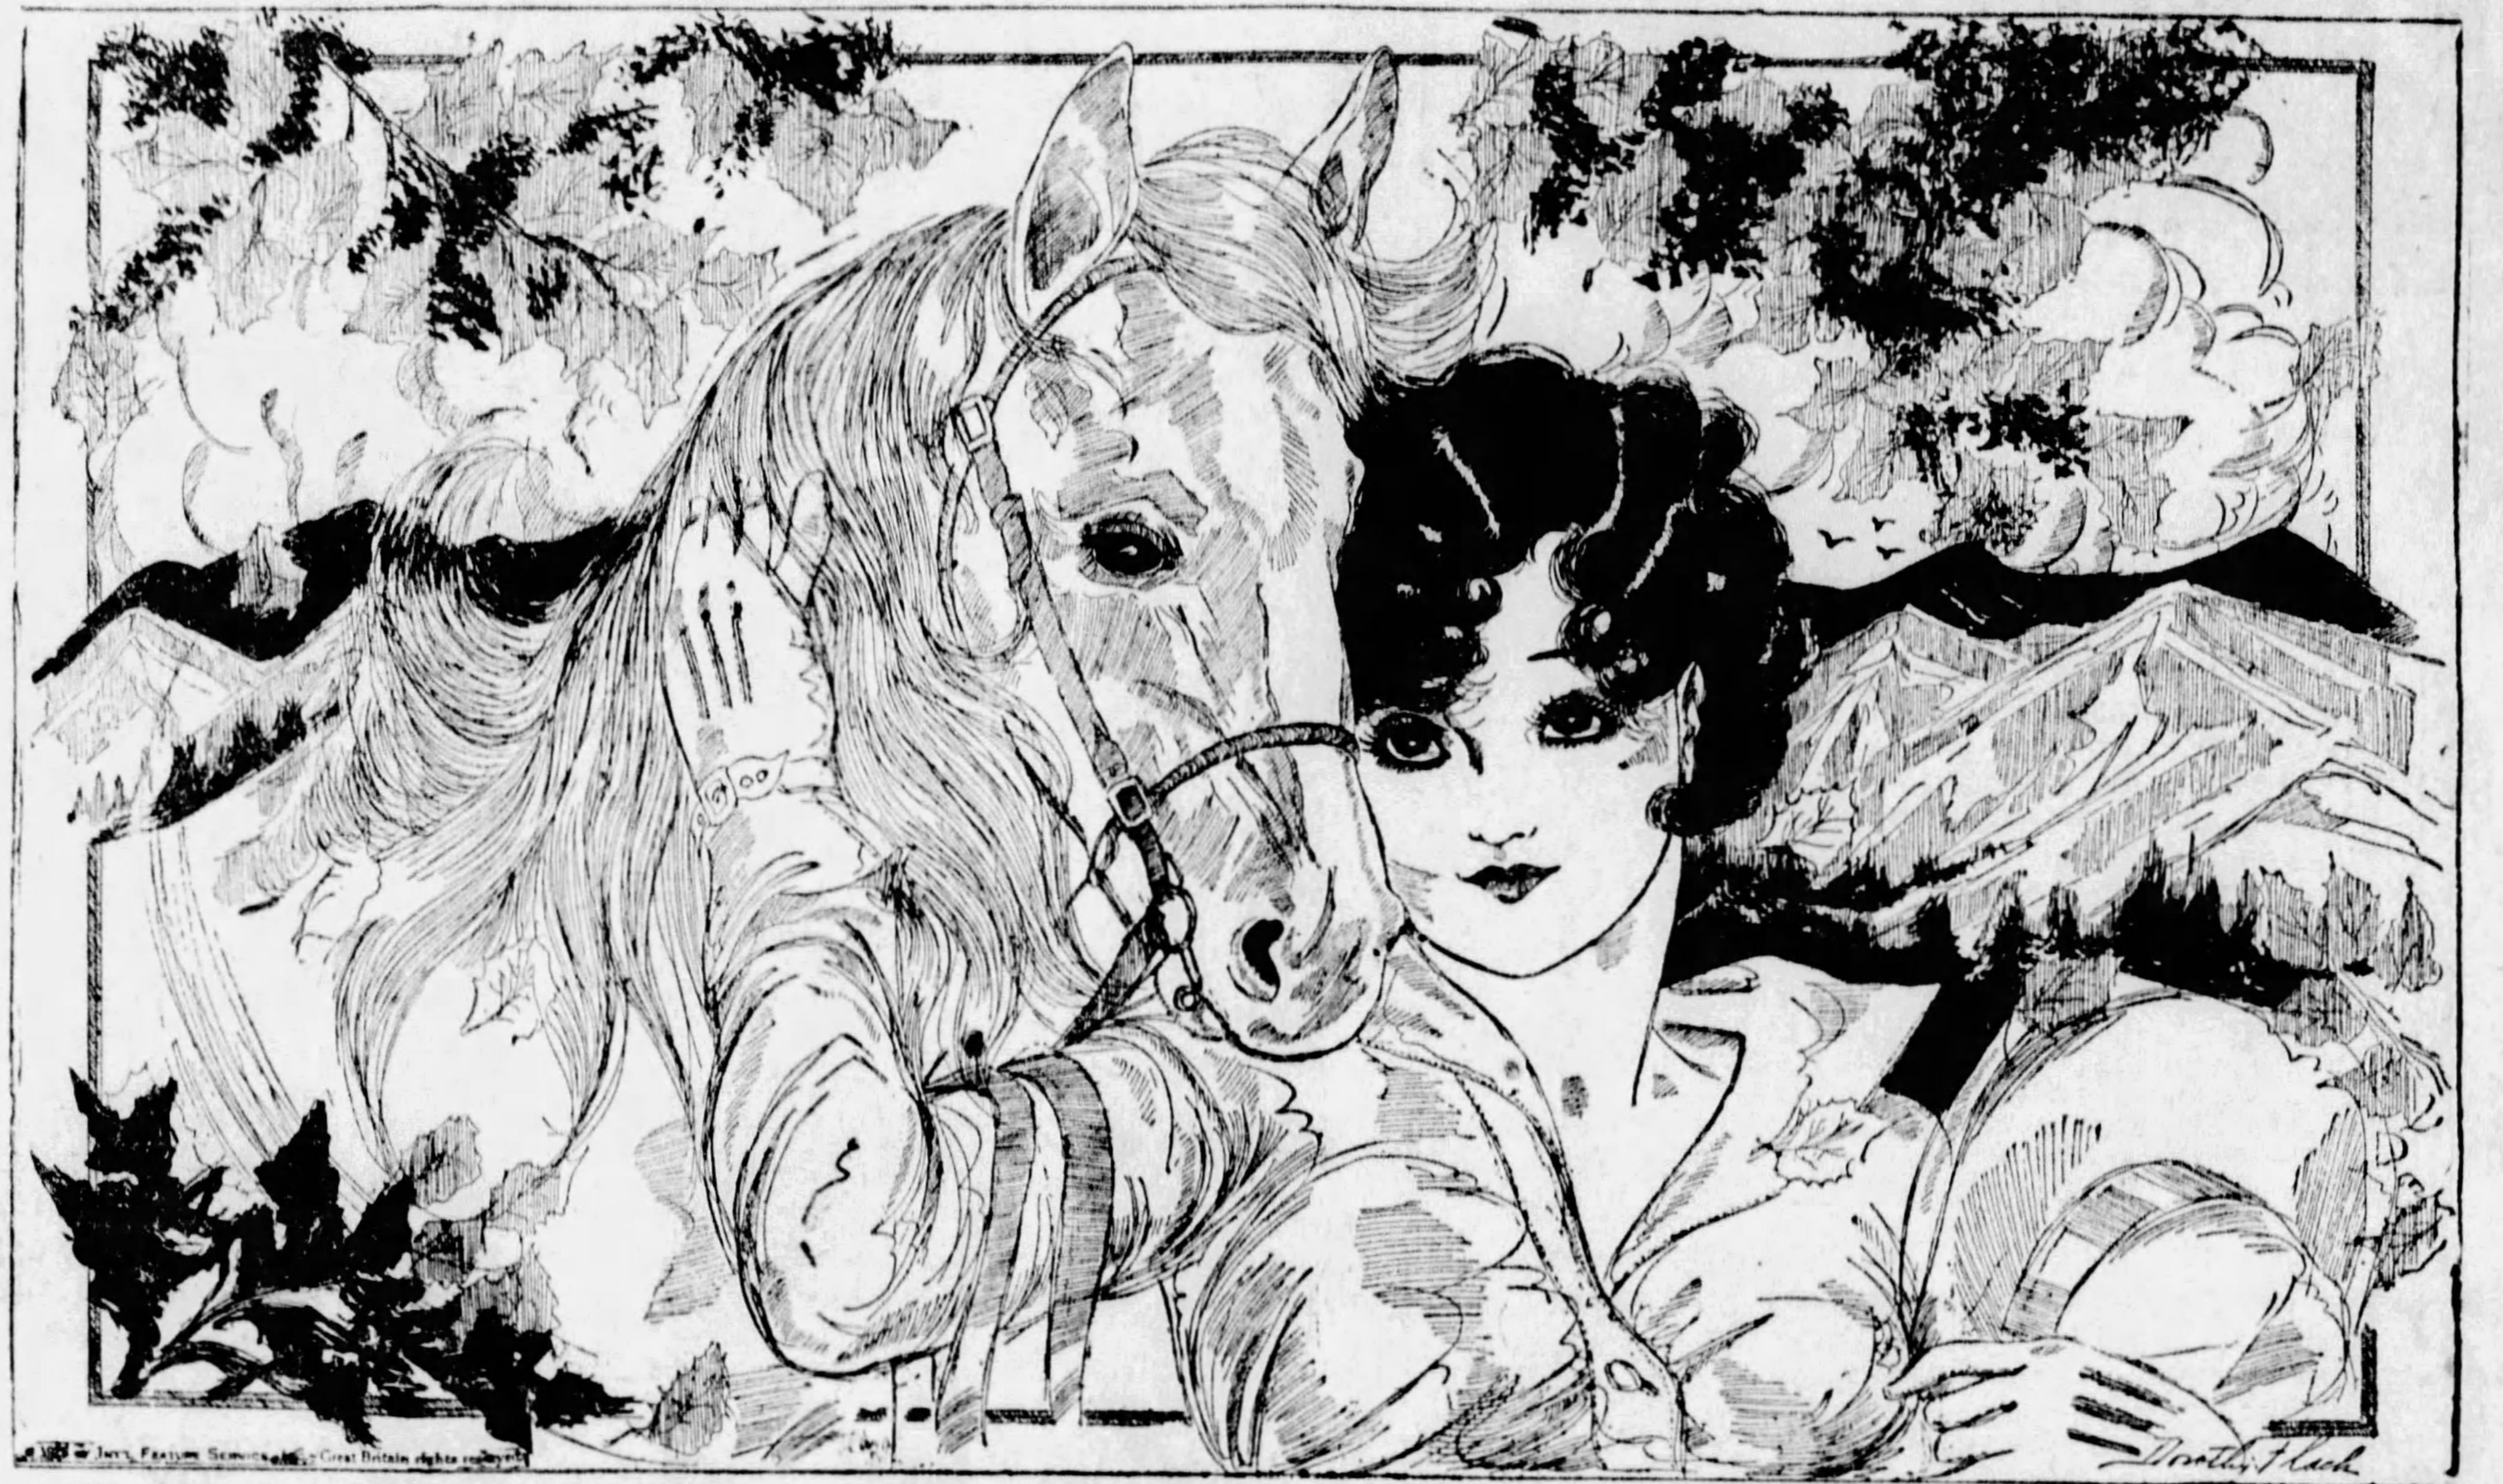
Dorothy Flack



AUTUMN day pals! The best friends and most understanding pair you will find in the whole wide world! Everywhere you go on these crisp days you'll see them. One with rosy cheeks and wind-blown hair and sparkling eyes—the other, head held high, dancing along with the sheer joy of carrying the beloved burden; and don't try to tell me that they don't realize what a perfect picture they're making! They DO know it, and that's why they are so lovely.

Of course, you see them at all seasons of the year, but somehow on these lovely Autumn days they are particularly appealing. There's nothing melancholy in their attitude toward life! Nothing doleful in their carriage and looks! THEY look on the crisp coolness and red and gold loveliness as their very own property—made JUST for their own selves. And how they enjoy it!

Small wonder, then, that love rides with them! For Love adores a thoroughbred—and truly this pair are all of that! Never a sign of a sigh! Nothing but cheery sparkliness and contagious laughter! And how they do enjoy every minute of life—both the carrier and the carried! Riding toward happiness every step of the way! May they find it and add a third to this pair of Autumn Day Pals.

Madge's Toil Interrupted by Shadowy Figures

INTO Lillian's eyes flashed a gleam of triumph as I told her I had definitely discovered that the characters on the paper hidden in the Princess Olina's miniature were Sumerian.

"Good girl!" she said. "I'm surer now than ever that this is a missing and most important piece of a puzzle which has been taxing keener brains than yours or mine for some time. There's only one caution I must give you, although I do not think you need it. But be very careful that there is no possible chance for error in your decoding. If the wild fantastic hunch I have is right, some of those characters will be translated into figures and an error of one would mean a mistake of the whole thing."

She must mean a formula of some kind, I told myself, trembling with a sense of responsibility which was mine. For neither Lillian nor any of her associates, not even that last word in code solving, Allen Drake himself, happened to have the peculiar knowledge which my association with the old professor of ancient languages had given me.

"I will take every possible precaution," I told her, and she flashed an approving smile at me as she turned toward the door.

"You don't need to tell me that," she said. "Better not work any more tonight, though. You'll be all the fresher for the problem in the morning."

"I'm going to have a hot bath and get into bed right away," I said.

"I'm going down to the kitchen for a glass of hot milk for myself," she commented, "and I'll bring you one."

She hurried out before I could object, and indeed I did not want to stop her. I felt the need of every possible aid to slumber that I could get. But my hot scented bath and the hot milk which Lillian set inside my door without waiting to talk to me, had no effect whatever upon my wakefulness. I lay motionless, counting thousands of sheep for an interminable time. Then, in despair of getting to sleep, and feeling my brain keyed up for work, I slipped out of bed, put on my bathrobe and slippers, and switching on my lamp, took up the work of studying out the characters of the coded paper, where I had left it.

My first point, I knew, was to get a starting point, some character repeated enough to make it probable that it was an "a" or an "e," the most commonly repeated letters in any code. But whoever had fashioned this intricate code had done it with diabolical cleverness. I saw before I had gone very far into it, that it was an infinitely more tricky and intricate thing than the other code of Sumerian characters had been. But I set my teeth with the determination that I would wrest from those characters the secret hidden in them if I did not sleep for a week.

So absorbed was I in my work that I had no idea of the hours passing over my head, nor did I hear any unusual sound in the house until Lillian's knock sounded upon my door and her voice, low but imperative, told me to open the door at once.

"Jim just has come in from his watch outside," she whispered, "and says two men are stealing toward the house from the orchard."

McKechnie Withholds News of Sherdel's Selection to Hurl First Game to Aid Pitcher —Redbirds Suffer Under Big Strain—Ruth Anticipates Ninth World Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Though it had been surmised by the majority of the baseball followers from the beginning of the world series preparations that Wee Willie Sherdel would be chosen to pitch the opening game of the big struggle of the Cardinals, Manager Bill McKechnie withheld the official announcement of the selection until this morning.

Bill McKechnie.

"I did not tell even Sherdel himself," said the Wilkinsburg pilot of the Redbirds, in explaining his policy of waiting until the eleventh hour, "for the reason that I wanted to keep him as free as possible from any extra excitement. If it had been publicly known earlier that Bill was to pitch the opener, he would have been besieged by many persons wishing to shake hands with him, to wish him luck and all that sort of thing. I figured that the less of that stuff he had to go through the better it would be for him.

"OUR club has been under enough strain already," McKechnie continued. "Those last two weeks were nerve racking. If the strain of the tight race had lasted much longer even the Phillies or the Braves could have beaten us.

"Everything is all right now, however. The boys have had a chance to relax and rest up since Saturday, and are practically at their best again for the series. I am confident that that best is good enough to beat the Yankees and bring the world championship back to the National League."

VETERAN members of the Cardinals' club bore out McKechnie's statement as to the strain under which the players were placed during the closing stages of the sultry fight with the Giants for the pennant. Coach Jack Onslow said that some of the men on the club, including himself, found it difficult even to sleep.

"I never saw a race anything like it," said Rabbit Maranville. The strain sure was terrific. It ground me down to 136 pounds. I am up to 140 now, though that is still three pounds below my regular playing weight."

Jimmy Wilson.

THERE was plenty of confidence in the Redbird camp after the final workout yesterday afternoon, and there wasn't a man in the outfit who did not express the firm belief that the Cards were going to win the series. McKechnie warned them against the danger of taking too much for granted, however, and stressed the possibility that the Yankees might be found in far better shape than reports of their long casualty list had indicated.

THE Yankees themselves were far from being lacking in confidence even though the "experts" on all sides were openly picking the Cardinals and predicting a St. Louis victory.

Manager Miller Huggins only smiled at the predictions. "They've got to beat us between those chalk lines," he said, "and they haven't don it yet. Ball games are won on the field and not on paper. The Yankees proved themselves the gamest and greatest fighting club in the world by winning the pennant in their crippled state, and I am hopeful that same fighting spirit will bring results that will throw a big surprise into those who think we haven't got a chance."

HUGGINS' action in making Benny Paschal centerfielder and lead off man in the opener, after it had been reported that Earl Combs would be in the lineup in spite of the recent injury to his right wrist, does not mean that Combs will not be in there later, probably tomorrow. It is believed that the little skipper decided to use Paschal today only because of the percentage offered in using a right-hand batter instead of a southside swinger against a lefthand pitcher.

COMBS is not taken out when lefthand pitchers are working for the enemy, as a rule, but on the chance that his injury might make him less valuable than a right-hand hitter against Sherdel today, and because he figured that another day of rest would help him considerably, Huggins decided to keep him out of action today and to use Paschal in his place.

M'KECHNIE will make a similar outfield shift during the series. When a left-hand pitcher is working for New York, Watty Holm will play right field for the Cards, and when the Yankees use a right-hand flinger George Harper will be in the starboard garden for St. Louis.

The Cardinal manager says that this is the only change he will make in his lineup during the series unless injuries render other shifts necessary.

Earl Combs.

UNLESS Jimmy Wilson meets with a mishap serious enough to incapacitate him, he will catch all of the games for the Cards. This is one department in which the National Leaguers will have a decided advantage, as there is no backstop on the Yankee roster who comes even close to being Wilson's equal.

The Cardinal receiver is generally recognized as being the best in the National League, and he is likely to be a big factor in the title series.

SHAKEUP IN BUC LINEUP LIKELY

By JAMES J. LONG,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—That the management of the Pittsburgh club is planning a change at first base in the Pirate lineup for next season was indicated last night when Earl Sheely, former White Sox first sacker, who starred for the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League this year, was obtained by draft in the annual baseball lottery held at the Roosevelt Hotel.

It had been reported for some time that George Grantham would be used in a different position by the Bucs in 1929, and that Glenn Wright probably would be tried as a first sacker, but the drafting of Sheely appears to indicate that the management has other plans for Wright. It is said that Wright may be tried at second base, if Sheely comes through at the initial corner.

STAR FIRST-SACKER

Sheely, a tall, rangy player, is said by American League men to be one of the best fielding right-hand first baseman in the country. He resembles George Kelly of the Reds. He had a big season with the Sacramento Club after being sent to that team by the White Sox this year and at last accounts had batted .371 in 155 games. He is a right-hand hitter.

Sheely was the only player drafted by Pittsburgh, which had ninth chance in the draw.

Several former Pirates are coming back to the majors by the draft route. Infielder Hal Rhyne goes to the Athletics from San Francisco; Pitcher Mike Cvengros goes to the Cubs from Wichita. Cvengros won 20 games and lost eight this year, and Peery won 21 and lost 11.

CRIPPLED FOR BATTLES

The Yankees will enter the World Series today badly crippled by the loss of Pitchers Herb Pennock and Wilcy Moore, the injury which will keep Outfielder Earl Combs on the bench, and injuries which will handicap the play of Babe Ruth, Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig. Above is the annual pennant winning group picture of the Yankees, who will be playing in their third consecutive World Series. Left to right are: Back row—Ruth, Lazzeri, Dickey, Collins, Pipgras, Paschal, Koenig, Shealy, Meusel, Grabowski, Burns, Heimach, Coach Mathews and Gehrig. Middle row—Trainer Woods, Dugan, Gazella, Coach O'Leary, Manager Miller Huggins, Coach Fletcher, Bengough and Robertson. Front row—Zachary, Durst, Durocher, Bennett, Thomas, Johnson and Ryan.

OUR BILL WON'T SCARE A BIT

Manager McKechnie, of the Cardinals, who won the World Series with the Pirates against the Washington Senators in 1925, is confident he has a better club than the New York Yankees and naturally expects to beat out Miller Huggins' crew in the fall classic, which gets under way this afternoon, just as the Cards of two years ago, with Rogers Hornsby at the helm, beat out the Huggmen.

NOTES of the BOXERS

DAN BILLICK of Wilmerding, who defeated Willie Foust in a six-round bout at New Brunswick, N. J., Tuesday night, meets Jim Larson in another six-rounder at Jersey City tonight.

Patsy Gallagher and Young Billy Wallace, of Youngstown, have been matched for an eight-round bout at Oil City, October 22. Jack McCarthy and Young Guido will box a six-round bout on the same card.

The Washington (Pa.) Club is seeking an opponent for Dominick Profio, for October 15.

Al Zill, of Youngstown, is after Nick Susnell to meet Buck McTiernan in a battle next Wednesday night.

NOTRE DAME

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Knute Rockne today was culling out his material in the process of picking a squad to hurl against the Wisconsin eleven at Madison Saturday. The team will leave here tomorrow. No announcement was made of the personnel.

BELANGER BEATS GOLD

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Albert (Frenchy) Belanger, Toronto flyweight, decisively outpointed Marty Gold of Philadelphia in a slashing 10-round bout here last night.

SMITH VOTED HALF SHARE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—At a meeting of the St. Louis Cardinals it was voted to apportion their world series "cut" into 28 shares, of which two are to be spread among four men. Those who will get these half shares are Earl Smith, obtained in mid-season from the Pirates; Ernie Orsatti, the outfielder purchased from Minneapolis about a month ago; Dr. Harrison Weaver, the team trainer, and Clarence Lloyd, the club secretary.

Of the 26 full shares granted, 23 will go to men who have been with the club as regulars for the entire season or longer.

In addition, the three full shares remaining were voted to Clarence Mitchell, picked up in mid-season; Pitcher Littlejohn, sent to the minors in August and recently recalled, and Jack Onslow, coach of the team.

SCHOOL GAME TODAY

South High School of Section 1 battles South Hills' Section II City League eleven on the neutral Oliver High School Field, Brighton road, in a non-league scholastic grid game this afternoon. SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

THE Big Panic is on. Just another week or so and the Great American Frenzy will be out of the way until next April. One thing about the sport, though, it certainly goes out in a blaze of glory each season with the staging of the world series. Whoever it was who doped out the modern playoff for world supremacy in baseball certainly did a swell job of it. No other sport has anything like the blue ribbon event with which this game can gently bow its way off the stage year after year.

Not only does the world series stir the emotions of the followers of the game, but it is the ideal incentive for the athletes themselves, in that it gives the lucky ones a chance to bask in the limelight all by themselves for a week or more and also supplies them liberally with the world's goods as a reward. A happy combination, indeed.

BACK in the old days we veterans used to think it was great stuff to lean over the telegraph instruments as the plays came in from the battleground or to stand in front of a scoreboard and watch the replaying of the games thereon or listen while some bozo blared the plays through a megaphone. Now the radio has come along to give the multitude a ringside description of the doings in each battle as they occur. The world certainly moves, and with each bit of progress these world series become bigger and better in that they command more attention and stir up more interest. The farm boys can get just as much kick out of them as the city fellers. And don't think that the graphic radio play-by-play descriptions of the big games will not leave their impress. A few years from now we will be reading how some kid in the sticks first conceived the idea of being another Frankie Frisch or Grover Alexander or Babe Ruth while listening to Graham MacNamee spill his chatter into the microphone in the baseball press box, and finally came on to achieve his ambition and now is in there raring to go in an attempt to emulate his former heroes.

NO kidding, the reason Commissioner Landis decided not to have a world series game played on Saturday is because Pitt is playing Bethany and Carnegie Tech is meeting Ashland College that afternoon and the papers will be too filled up with the doings of the footballers the next day to have any room left for the series and baseball doesn't want to be shown up that way. The baseball people

CHOICE SEATS SELL AT $125 THE PAIR

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—World series ticket speculators were garnering their golden harvest along Broadway and throughout the hotel belt today, and as the hours advanced toward game time, so did the prices mount.

Reserved seat pasteboards are marked in large figures—$16.50—but that had nothing to do with the case. The ducats, which had been plentiful at $25 early in the week, were regarded as dirt cheap at $35. This morning when the "specs" started trading furtively in the lobbies and along the curbs $50 was not an unusual price. In fact, choice positions were reported retailing at $125 the pair.

The demand was far in excess of the supply, and at 9 o'clock, an hour before the gates opened, the scalpers were offering $25 a ticket themselves, figuring on a 100 per cent profit.

DOAK RELEASED BY ROBINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Unconditional release of Bill Doak, one of the few surviving spitball pitchers in major league baseball, was announced today by the Brooklyn Baseball Club.

Doak spent 13 years in the majors, coming to Brooklyn on waivers from St. Louis in 1924. He pitched good ball his first year with the Robins, but retired at the end of the season, returning in 1927, when he had a fair year. He was not so good in 1928. He will return to the real estate business at Bradenton, Fla.

SCULL INJURED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Possibility that Capt. Paul Scull may be unable to play against Franklin and Marshall on Saturday loomed today when it was learned he is troubled with an old knee injury.

WASH-JEFF AWAITS WAYNESBURG FIGHT SATURDAY

Aloysius Says He Hopes the Yankees Won't Hoyt the Cardinals

Dukes Leave Tomorrow

By JESS CARVER.

HAVING safely avoided the determined, but fruitless stampede of the Bethany Green Bisons, Andy Kerr and his Wash.-Jeff. footballers are stocking up on salve for whatever sting the Waynesburg Yellow Jackets may carry when they swarm into Little Washington for the annual game with the Red and Black Saturday.

Andy and his Wash-Jeffers had a tough afternoon of it with Bethany, although they managed to cut through the stubborn Bison defense in the second half, after having been denied the goal line for the first two periods. Waynesburg always gives W. & J. a ball game, no matter how weak the eleven may be or how strong the Presidents. For a green team, Waynesburg showed power against St. Canisus at Buffalo last week, even though the game was lost.

DOUDS FOOLS PUBLIC

Jap Douds, the star tackle, played through the entire Bethany game without injury, and knocked in the head the stories that have been going the rounds that he was done as a football player, following the serious accident he suffered this summer when struck in the face by a skyrocket. If he adds the fullback job to his load after being hit by a firecracker, what will he do if he ever gets rammed by a truck?

The Presidents have the Jackets and the Dukes to play before they come up against the Carnegie Tartans in the first major contest of the fall.

Pitt and Tech, with Bethany and Ashland to be faced this week edn, are not exactly pointing for their games, though they are not taking things especially easy. The task of the Panthers appears to be the toughest, as Bethany looms as a more powerful opponent than Ashland. Unless Pitt shows more stuff than it exhibited against Thiel, the Bisons, gainers in experience in the hard game with Wash-Jeff, might upset the Panther lads.

DUKES WORRIED

The Dukes are worried over the game with St. Thomas at Scranton. The Saints have a big, powerful club, the sort of an eleven that is certain to bruise and batter, regardless of the outcome of the game. With W. & J. to be played the following week, Coach Layden is devoutly hoping that his squad comes out of the Scranton fracas in good physical condition, and with the scalps of the Saints tucked in their belts.

The Duquesne squad, which will leave Pittsburgh tomorrow morning for Scranton, will consists of 25 players, Coach Layden, Graduate Manager of Athletic Holohan, Trainer Bruce (Hotfoot) Jackson and two student managers. They will also take a football.

PENN STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 4.—Preceded by last night's heavy midweek scrimmage, this afternoon's practice for the Penn State football team in preparation for the game with Gettysburg Saturday will have a major portion set aside for studying methods of breaking and halting the Battlefield method of defense and attack. Scrimmage yesterday, with the varsity opening up with everything it had against the second team, served to whet the Nittany football appetite and it is expected that tonight's practice with its sprints, signal drill and dummy scrimmage will see the Lion developing strategy to turn back the Bullet attack.

WEST VIRGINIA

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 4.—Louis Varney, husky sophomore fullback candidate, returned yesterday from Williamson, W. Va., where he had been called by the illness of his mother. Varney rejoined the squad after a week's absence. The West Virginia pigskin luggers are all in fine condition and Coach Rodgers will have every Mountaineer ready for the Haskell Indian game at Wheeling Saturday save George (Butch) Nixon, 206-pound tackle, who is ill with typhoid fever.

Yesterday afternoon's workout, which was a comparatively light one, consisted of a long signal drill and short dummy scrimmage and was featured by the fine punting of Big Sleepy Glenn and Eddie Bartrug. The Veteran Glenn and the Sophomore Bartrug got off several boots that were good for 50 yards and they averaged better than 40 yards from the line of scrimmage.

ST. VINCENT'S

LATROBE, Pa., Oct. 4.—Bill Ross, the former Gettysburg Academy star, will probably start the game at quarterback for St. Vincent's College eleven Saturday at Indiana. The coaches yesterday drilled him in certain features of the duties of the position and the impression is that he will be the starter at the job.

PURDUE

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Purdue took new heart today with the reappearance of Leon Hutton, star end, who has been out with injuries. The Boilermakers open Saturday against De Pauw.

NAVY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—The Navy lineup is being whipped into shape for the Boston College game on Saturday. In scrimmage yesterday Clifton played full, with Lloyd and Harold Bauer at the halves and Gannon calling the signals.

OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Barratt, 240-pound sophomore, is proving himself a great point-getter for the Buckeyes. Another encouraging feature of the Ohio State squad is Eby's able tossing.

WISCONSIN

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—With only two more practice sessions before he sends his Badger horde against the Irish of Notre Dame here Saturday, Coach Thistlethwaite today expressed himself satisfied with his team's showing.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Sophomore Cushman, who appears to be the class of Chicago's line, became eligible today and will make his debut against Wyoming Saturday. He plays tackle. Weaver also may become eligible in time to play the Mountaineers.

NORTHWESTERN

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Northwestern will be minus two of its best halfbacks in the game against Butler Saturday. "Hank" Bruder was buried beneath a pile of man-eating freshmen in scrimmage and carried from the field, badly bruised. Levison also is out.

Tech's Arc Lights Aid Night Drill

HEAD COACH FRED C. SCHMUCK and Mike Michalske, former Penn State star, the Ashland College football squad, numbering 30, is expected to arrive here shortly before noon tomorrow for Carnegie Tech's home opening contest at Forbes Field Saturday.

Under giant arc lights the Plaid toiled yesterday after darkness in the Tartan bowl. A "ghost" ball was used to help the players follow the oval.

A new opponent on the Skibos' slate, the invaders will naturally hope to demonstrate they were worthy of a place on the Plaid's 1928 schedule. Having made rapid strides in the athletic world, Ashland has reached the point where it holds no fear for a major eleven. The Ohioans scouted the Skibos against Westminster and feel they will be ready for whatever the Tartans unleash.

It will not be Ashland's only of Pennsylvania this season. On October 20, the Purple athletes will journey to Johnstown, Pa., to meet Juniata College.

Realizing the importance of their game, Carnegie Tech Plebes continued their grueling pace for Kiski tussle Saturday at Saltsburg, Pa. Kiski always boasts of a powerful aggregation and this season is no different. The Plebes will have to be primed to the minute if they hope to cope with Jim Marks' troupe.

PITT

A popular song hit describes the Pitt Panthers' feeling about forward passes—That's their weakness now. However, none of the Panthers have been warbling song hits on the Pitt practice field this week. Instead they have been working hard to overcome that weakness.

Coach Sutherland gave his squad another extended workout yesterday afternoon, in which drill on defensive and offensive forward pass formations received plenty of attention. The varsity scrimmaged the frosh until dark, using a number of new aerial formations that Sutherland gave out earier in the week, and, no doubt, overhead work will feature the Bethany tussle in the stadium Saturday.

Bethany is expected to use the pass to some extent, and the Panthers have been preparing for the anticipated attack.

YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—A well-organized aerial attack enabled the Yale varsity to defeat the second team, 14 to 0, in 35 minutes of scrimmage. Harlan Ellis and Johnny Garvey accounted for the two varsity touchdowns.

HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—The Harvard varsity scored four touchdowns against the freshman team in the first real scrimmage. Mason and Grant bore the brunt of the varsity attack, the former scoring after an 80-yard run.

COLUMBIA

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Coach Crowley, of Columbia, is laying greatest emphasis in practice on development of a passing game. Hank Krumpf, Jimmy Sheridan and others are being drilled in the overhead department of the game.

ARMY

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Cagle, Murrell and Nave are carrying the Army attack in scrimmage between the varsity and scrub elevens. Nave got a touchdown on a 60-yard run yesterday.

CORNELL

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Allan has replaced Beck in the Cornell varsity backfield. The squad contented itself with signal drill, passing and punting because of the unusually warm weather.

MICHIGAN

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—A regular full-time game between the first and second teams of Fielding Yost's Wolverines was on tap for today. Only Poe, tackle, and Boden, end, are on the injured list, and they will be available Saturday, it was said.

ILLINOIS

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Coach Zuppke has promoted Reserve Back Claude Myers to the Illini varsity string as a result of injuries to Frank Walker. The latter has a sore foot.

INDIANA

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—The Oklahoma "Sooners" were en route to Bloomington today to engage Indiana in an important intersectional clash here Saturday. A driving rain yesterday failed to halt the strenuous workout of Coach Page's boys.

DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—General practice is the order of the day at Dartmouth. The varsity team and other squads were given a blackboard signal drill yesterday and then were put through a workout on the charging machines and a punting drill.

MINNESOTA

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 4.—(INS.)—Minnesota's backfield against Creighton Saturday probably will comprise the following: Nagurski, fullback; Arendsee and Brockmeyer, halves, and Hovde calling the signals. Nagurski formerly played tackle.

VILLA NOVA, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Bands of mourning three inches wide will be worn on the sleeves of the Villa Nova football team when it plays the Loyola eleven here Saturday.

Taps will be sounded by a bugler between halves, and silent prayers will be offered in memory of Leo Goodreau, Villa Nova's star quarterback, who died Tuesday from a broken neck received in practice.

JOAN CRAWFORD

WHEN this absorbing story came to light in the studios of California word went forth that never, never would the screen dare attempt to truly capture its reality, its beauty, its mad rhythm. People said that here for the first time an author had really peered behind the scenes where flaming youth, the children of the rich, live and play. Could it be told in pictures, they wondered! Here is the answer, startling in its reality, eye-filling in its magnificence, soul-stirring in its frank telling of a love unsullied by gilded temptation! The glasses are clinking ... the music starts ... dreamy debutantes snuggle in the arms of handsome partners ... the party is on! Come and join!

THE Burns club of New Kensington, titular independent champions of last season, will open its season on Sunday at Community Field, with the Charleroi Scholastics providing the opposition. Feeling that more keen competition will be on tap this Fall, Coach Luffy has been holding practice sessions three nights a week. Doll, the former Case man, will not be with the club, so it is expected Stein will direct from the quarterback position. Gillis has not reported as yet, but Hudson will be on hand. Manager Grafton Sullivan expects the fans to see a real Burns machine for its opener.

Still smarting under that defeat handed them by the East Pittsburgh Firemen, the Eighth Ward Traders, representing Bloomfield on the local independent gridiron, will stage three practice sessions this week, preparing for the battle at Coraopolis when Sam Damsacio's independents are met. Realizing that the Ohio River boys are trying to get a win under their belts, Ed Ritter is working the boys hard for the fray.

McChesneytown will play Jeannette on Saturday, and it is expected that the classy Main line club will again bring the spoils into camp. Manager Kennedy has gathered together one of the finest clubs that ever represented Latrobe.

A local derby will be played on Sunday at Sullivan Field, when Sexton takes the Twenty-seventh Ward Traders to meet the Lawrenceville Mohawks. Both clubs are in the running for the title, and while the North Siders are of an unknown quality, it is expected that Ziggy Anderson will have to be at his best to gain much ground.

KDKA RADIOS BIG SERIES

The facilities of the National Broadcasting Company are available for Station KDKA to broadcast the world series.

The complete series, no matter where the games are to be played, will be broadcast. Graham McNamee and Phillips Carlin, veteran NBC sports announcers, will be at the microphones to give play-by-play descriptions for the benefit of the radio audience.

In addition to operating the standard 216.5-meter wave of Station KDKA, the famous international short wave of 25-4 meters will be used to carry the reports of the classics of America's most popular game to the remote corners of the world.

Station KDKA holds the record of being the first broadcasting station in the world to broadcast a baseball game. The record dates back to the opening of the 1921 season

CISSELL, WHITE SOX ACE, TO PLAY AGAINST GRAYS

Chalmers Cissell, shortstop, for whom the Chicago White Sox paid the Portland club of the Coast League $100,000, will be in the lineup of the American League barnstormers under the direction of Earl Mack in the eight-game series with the Homestead Grays, which opens Sunday at Sharon

The Gray and All-Stars will stage their second game on Monday October 8, at Fairmont, W. Va.

ESPINOSA AND GENE SARAZEN LEAD

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Walter Hagen, defending titleholder, got a bad start in his quarter-final match with Leo Diegel, of White Plains, N. Y., in the national professional golf championship tournament, losing the first two holes.

Diegel, known as somewhat erratic, but dangerous when at top form, was playing better than par golf, while Hagen was uncertain both along the fairway and on the green.

Diegel won the first hole with a birdie, sinking a 15-footer for a three to Walter's four.

A hooked brassie shot which found a trap cost Hagen the second hole, Diegel getting down in par. Hagen had a 20-foot putt to sink for a half and missed it.

After two holes, the other quarter-final matches found Al Espinosa, Chicago, one down to Jock Hutchison, Glenview, Ill.; Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., one down to Perry Delvecchio, Greensburg, Pa., and Gene Sarazen one up on Fred Dudley, Los Angeles.

HAGEN IN SLUMP

Hagen, playing very unsteady golf, was five down to Diegel at the end of the first nine holes. He was five strokes over par on the out nine, while Diegel beat par by a stroke. Sir Walter was hooking brassie shots and missing putts like a dub.

After dropping the first two holes, Hagen steadied enough to halve the next three, but at the sixth he took a disastrous seven, wasting two shots in a trap at the side of the green. Diegel won this hole and then added the seventh as Hagen took three putts.

The eighth was halved and at the ninth Hagen hooked into a trap, taking a 4 to Diegel's 3 and going 5 down. The good-sized gallery buzzed at the possibility of elimination of Hagen and the end of his four-year reign as P. G. A. champion.

Gene Sarazen and Al Espinosa, meanwhile were fairing considerably better than Hagen, both being two up at the turn on their respective opponents, Jock Hutchison and Fred Dudley.

Perry Delvecchio led Horton Smith by one up at the nine-hole mark in the fourth match.

GREENSBURG PLANS TO CHANGE LINEUP

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 4.—Greensburg High School may present a revamped lineup when it faces the Youngwood High eleven here Saturday. Dissatisfaction over the poor showing of the Brown and White in its first two games of the season has caused Head Coach Earl E. Loucks to make a number of shifts on his team, and if the subs continue to improve they will be used Saturday.

Statements of Pilots

—Says McKechnie

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—"Did you ever see a manager win a world series—from the bench?" demanded Bill McKechnie, chief of all the Red Birds, as he sat comfortably in a field box at the stadium while the Cardinals, spick and span in new road uniforms, frolicked under an Indian summer sun.

"Any championship that is won by St. Louis will have to be won by my players. They are all prepared. The battle remains up to them—and the Yankees. I must not predict, since I really have no part in it at all."

—Says Huggins

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—"We are satisfied," mused Huggins, standing over a plate or roast chicken at the staudim. "We are not, however, so well satisfied," he continued in the same passionless voice, "as we would be if Combs could play, which he cannot, and if Lazzeri were in form, which he is not.

"Our club enters the series prepared to give as good as it sends, and is confident of its ability to hold its own. That sun helped today. No, I never make predictions."

Argentina Evens Polo Series

WESTBURY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(AP.)—With a rough-riding, sharp-hitting attack that harried and upset their rivals from start to finish, the Four Horsemen from the Pampas galloped off yesterday with the second game of the series for the polo championship of the Americas.

The Argentine quartet, after exchanging many a bump, emerged from this spectacular struggle victorious by the decisive margin of 10 to 7, over Capt. Tommy Hitchcock's somewhat bewildered United States combination. It tied the count for the series, with one triumph apiece.

One of the highest honors to go to members from Pittsburgh was the Father and Son championship. This was won by Dr. T. E. McMurray and his son, Tom McMurray, Jr.

This year, for the first time, Madison held a "Pittsburgh Day, on which the Pittsburgh members invited their friends down for the week-end. Col. L. W. DePuy, of Pittsburgh, was the chairman of the day's program.

During the winter, members are planning a number of bridge parties and dinner dances in Cleveland, and Pittsburgh members also intend to hold some sort of a get-together meeting.

SIR ABE BAILEY QUITS TURF GAME

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Sir Abe Bailey, widely known in British sporting circles, has decided to retire from the turf because of ill health.

All his horses in training and his breeding stock wil be sold, making one of the biggest sales of thoroughbreds in recent years.

Sir Abe has long been one of the most prominent figures on the British turf, one of his best known horses being Foxlaw, which won the Jockey Club cup in 1926 and the Ascot gold cup in 1927.

SEALS, SENATORS TIED

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—In the tightest race the Pacific Coast League has known in 16 years, the San Francisco Seals and the Sacramento Senators won their games yesterday and remained in a tie for honors for the second half. Today ends the regular season.

Who Will Be Series' Goat This Year?

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—No World Series is complete without its hero—or its goat. The wreath of wild razzberries is bestowed, a glance over baseball's main chapter reveals, as impartially as the crown of laurel.

Seldom has a world series offered as much opportunity for heroic stuff, as much chance for the lowly substitute, aging veteran or ambitious youngster to jump into the spotlight as does the current tussle between the Yankees and Cardinals. Will one of the stars of other years repeat or will some obscure performer leap into the glare with a great catch, home run, daring play or startling pitching feat?

RUTH KNOWS

Babe Ruth can testify as to how it feels to have been the goat or a hero. The Bambino was a "bust" in 1922 when his batting mark fell to a miserable .118, but four years later, in St. Louis, the big fellow was acclaimed as he seldom has ever been when he laced out three home runs in one afternoon in the enemy stronghold.

Mark Koenig, in a much shorter career, has also known the two extremes. The sturdy Yankee shortstop, then in his first major league year, contributed the error that started the Cardinals on their winning rally in the final game of the 1926 series. But last year, in the Yankee clean sweep over the Pirates, Mark was the outstanding star, leading the regulars of both clubs at bat and shining afield.

Old Pete Alexander, 41-year-old pitcher, probably wouldn't make a Greek statue envious, but the veteran was cast in heroic mould in the great Cardinal victory two years ago. Two years have exacted some toll from this remarkable Nebraskan, but he is still one of the greatest "money pitchers" of them all and may still have the Indian sign on the Yankees.

HOW ABOUT HOYT?

Much younger in years, but a veteran of five world series, Waite Hoyt, the Yankee twirling ace, has known the glamour of being proclaimed a world series hero. The Brooklyn undertaker pitched sensational ball against the Giants in the 1921 series, the first the Yankees participated in, and he is ready to shoulder the main burden again for the House of Huggins.

While these few erstwhile inmates of the Hall of Fame will be knocking at the door again others will be striving to climb up on the pedestal. There's many a slip on the way up, as John Miljus found out last year by tossing a wild pitch and losing the final game just when it looked as though he would complete a heroic pitching stand.

AND THE RABBIT?

Of the Cardinal clan there will be the picturesque little Rabbit Maranville, back in the world series 14 years after he helped the Braves upset the Athletics. It would be a dramatic touch for the Rabbit to come through. If not there's Frankie Frisch, capable of super-stuff around second base, or Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey, the big guns at bat.

There will be a chance, among the Yankees, for Cedric Durst or Ben Paschal to show their caliber as replacements for the injured Earl Combs in center, or for old Tom Zachary and young Henry Johnson to demonstrate their pitching stuff, should Hoyt or Pipgras, the mainstays, fail.

Here are a few of the world series heroes of the past 10 years, additions to a previous roll that includes Mathewson, Coombs, Baker and Gowdy:

1918—George Whiteman, outfielder, Boston Red Sox.
1919—Dickie Kerr, pitcher, Chicago White Sox.
1920—Stanley Coveleskie, pitcher, Cleveland Indians.
1921—Waite Hoyt, pitcher, New York Yankees, and Johnny Rawlings, infielder, New York Giants.
1922—Heinie Groh, third baseman, New York Giants.
1923—Herb Pennock, pitcher, Yankees, and Casey Stengel, outfielder, Giants.
1924—Bucky Harris, second baseman, and Walter Johnson, pitcher, Washington Senators.
1925—Kiki Cuyler, outfielder, Pittsburgh Pirates.
1926—Grover Alexander, pitcher, and Tommy Thevenow, shortstop, Cardinals; Babe Ruth, Yankees.
1927—Mark Koenig, shortstop, Yankees.

YOUR CHEAPEST NECESSITY—FIRE INSURANCE

Your fire insurance dollar pays for indemnity—for immunity against financial loss when calamity overtakes you. But that dollar buys so much more than the indemnity it pays for that it ranks as one of the most profitable dollars you spend. Its purchasing power is away above the average

Fire insurance, from the indemnity standpoint alone, is one of the cheapest of present-day necessities. Its cost has consistently declined—even during the period of war inflation—practically every year for the last twenty.

And this in spite of the fact that insurance service—as rendered by the 224 Stock companies constituting the National Board of Fire Underwriters—has multiplied its activities for the public welfare and greatly enlarged their scope.

Your fire insurance dollar may pay for indemnity only, but for good measure the Stock Fire Insurance companies provide engineering and research services to make life and property safer—laboratories in which to test materials and devices—scientific hazard measurements—building construction codes—arson detection and investigation—organized fire prevention—and many other voluntary measures designed to lower the fire waste and thereby reduce the cost of fire insurance.

All the mechanics of underwriting as conducted by the Stock Fire Insurance companies—which transact more than nine-tenths of the fire insurance business of this country—are in the public interest.

That the public may know how and why this is so, the companies propose to discuss some of the vital insurance questions.

This is the first of the series of messages. Your attention is invited to succeeding chapters, appearing at frequent intervals.

A clearer understanding of what Stock Fire Insurance really means and does—and a greater public use of its facilities—should result in a still further reduction of the fire waste and a consequently greater service to the insuring public.

CUBS AND BRAVES DENY TRADE IS ON FOR HORNSBY

BRUINS WOULD MAKE DEAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Report of the transfer of Rogers Hornsby from the Boston Braves to the Chicago Cubs for $250,000 and players, was emphatically denied last night by interested persons, both in Boston and in Chicago. The story, printed in the New York Sun, said that the manager of the Braves would play for the Bruins next season. Hornsby recently signed a six-year contract with Emil Fuchs, owner of the Braves, carrying through the season of 1934 at a salary generally reported to be $40,000, with a provision for a certain dimunition if Hornsby was forced to retire from active playing in that period.

WRIGLEY DENIES DEAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(INS.)—William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs, today denied that his club was negotiating for the purchase of Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Boston Braves.

William Veeck, president of the Cubs, also denied knowledge of any such deal.

Both admitted, however, that they "would like to have him."

It was recalled that both Wrigley and Veeck issued similar statements last year when they were asked concerning the purchase of Kiki Cuyler. It later developed the deal with Pittsburgh had been closed.

Barnard, Heydler, Landis Have Little to Say

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Honoring a time-hallowed custom, the presidents of the National and American leagues, along with baseball's high commissioner, Kenesaw M. Landis, refrained in their pre-battle statements yesterday from forecasting the winner of the world series opening here today.

Landis, loath to discuss the matter, merely said: "It looks like a great series. There isn't another thing to say."

Ernest S. Barnard, president of the American League, said: 'The American League has every confidence in the Yankees despite reports of injuries we know to be true. We can safely pin our faith on the present world champions."

John A. Heydler, head of the National circuit, said a little more.

"Our Cardinal club is stronger all-round than in 1926. They will give the Yankees a fight every inch of the way. My judgment is that it will be a great series. I place little stock in reported injuries in a series like this one!"

MARRINER BREAKS HAND; WHIPS GEORGE GEMAS

PEORIA, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Fighting with a broken right hand, Les Marriner, former University of Illinois heavyweight sensation, won a decision over George Gemas of Philadelphia in a slashing 10-round bout at the Peoria Auditorium last night.

The injury, which came in the third round after Marriner had been pounded to the canvass for counts of nine each time, merely acted as a spark to ignite his fighting instinct. Refusing to quit, he tossed aside all caution and waded into Gemas, smashing him with his left and sometimes his right. Eleven times the Philadelphian was floored by the ferocious deluge.

GARDEN MATCH CALLED OFF

Another boxing card arranged for Motor Square Garden has fallen flat. Osk Till and Homer Robertson were to meet in the windup next Monday night, but Till injured his hands boxing Art Weigand at Buffalo last Monday night and had to cancel the bout here.

Robertson then was matched with Maxie Rosenbloom for a week from Monday night, but this bout also fell through when Rosenbloom was matched to box Tiger Payne in Madison Square Garden next Friday evening.

Manager John Hernon announced this morning that he was at work on a double windup card for a week from Monday, which likely will feature Phil Goldstein and Maxie Strub in the main event and Tony LaRose and Rudy Ceder in the other half of the dual feature.

A match with Cuddy DeMarco looms for Goldstein if he should defeat Strub.

SPORT COMMENT

Schmidt before leaving here to attend to a business matter in Pittsburgh.

"The smartest catcher that I have ever seen in my National League career of eight years was Walter Schmidt, formerly of the Pittsburgh club," said Gooch, "and the closest approach to him in my opinion is Jimmy Wilson. He is not only a great catcher in every mechanical respect, but he has a remarkable head on his shoulders and uses it every minute during a game."

THIS will be the ninth world series in which Babe Ruth has taken part, and it is doubtful if ever before there was less talk about the Bambino at the start of the big stakes. Naturally he is looked upon as one of the big acts in the annual fall baseball circus, but he is not holding his old place as the one and only attraction. One reason for this is that the close finishes in the two leagues centered attention of the public upon teams rather than upon individuals, and another is that Ruth's injured leg is expected to keep him from being the dominating factor he was in previous October derbies.

Herb Pennock.

THE Babe may surprise the diamond fraternity and grab some of the spotlight before the titular competition is long under way, however. Specialists and trainers have been treating his ailing prop daily since the season ended, and though he still shows a slight limp he is apt to forget all about the injury in the heat of battle and pull some of the headline feats with which he electrified world series crowds in other years.

WHETHER or not Herb Pennock will appear on the slab for the Yankees is one of the questions on which the fans are kept guessing. One report that the star southpaw is definitely out is followed by another to the effect that he has recovered sufficiently from the attack of neuritis in his pitching arm to be able to go to the firing line in at least one of the games. Pennock has never lost a world series contest and has five victories to his credit.

George Pipgras is expected to be New York's pitcher in the second game of the string tomorrow, with Grover Cleveland Alexander on the slab for St. Louis.

"ALL FOURS" FASTEST HUMAN

Bert Nagel, pictured above in action, set a new world record of 18¼ seconds for the 100-yard dash on all fours at a recent competition among the aspirants for positions on the football eleven of the University of Southern California. He was clocked in his "remarkable" achievement by Dean Cromwell, the famous track coach.

KISKI BATTLES TECH PLEBES

Kiski, the "proving ground" for many famous college football stars in the past, will go into action for the first time on its regular schedule Saturday when it meets the freshman team from Carnegie Tech on Kiski's football field. The Kiski team was tried out in a practice game last Saturday against Irwin High and the men who play in the regular line-up were selected afterward.

Most of the men who will be seen in Kiski uniforms this year are newcomers. There are only two old regulars, Captain Tom MacMurdo, who will play left tackle, and Kenneth Abbott, quarterback. Albert Werner, who showed promise as a substitute lineman last year, will be at right guard. The other men, who have been selected as probable starters in Saturday's game are: Right end, Alton Mark, who played on the Easton, Pa., High School team; right tackle, Joseph Gallus, of Vandergrift, or Frank Murdock, of the Har-Brack Union School; center, Harry Gray, from Washington, or Clarence Blackson from Vandergrift; left guard, Roger Wheeler, of Newport, R. I., or Michael Komora, who played at East High School in Erie; left end, John Watt, of Greensburg; right half, Philip Port, from Rutherford, N. J.; left half, Leo Petruzzi, of Smethport High, and fullback, Mike Nutler.

Speedo Loughran, 4-Letter Star, Married

John J. (Speedo) Loughran, one of the two four-letter men in the University of Pittsburgh's athletic history, was married yesterday in St. Paul Cathedral here to Miss Helen Drass, of Cresson, Pa. The couple left last night for a honeymoon in Philadelphia and Boston.

Loughran entered Pitt in 1918, and played football, baseball, basketball and ran on the track team during his four years in school. He was graduated with the class of 1922. Loughran attained his greatest fame as a football and baseball player.

Tom Davies, Pitt's all-American halfback, was the only other four-letter man in Pitt's history.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—Pierre Landry, member of the French Davis cup tennis team, was put out of the running in the men's singles at the Pacific Southwest tennis championship tournament yesterday by Allan Herrington, last year's captain of the Stanford University tennis team. The scores were 6-1, 2-6, 9-7.

Christian Boussus, southpaw member of the French team, defeated Bradshaw Harrison, of Oregon Agricultural College, 3-6, 6-2, 8-6.

Another favorite who lost was Berkeley bell, Austin, Tex., star, defeated by Gerald Stratford, California doubles champion, 7-5, 6-4. Another leading contender eliminated was Ralph McElveney, Stanford University, and his conquerer was Johnny Doeg, Santa Monica, 6-8, 6-2, 6-3.

John Van Ryn, former Princeton tennis captain, advanced to the semi-finals of the third bracket by eliminating Jack de Lara, of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-0.

Henri Cochet, star of the French squad, had an easy time in winning from Criss Herd, of Los Angeles, a former national clay court champion, 6-4, 6-1.

LITTLE WORLD SERIES TO BE RESUMED TODAY

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 4—(INS.)—The postponement of yesterday's game does not mean a change in pitchers for today's game, according to the managers of the teams in the little world series here.

"I will pitch Frank McCracken," said Billy Southworth, of Rochester this morning.

"I intend to pitch Carl Boone," said Bruno Betzel, of the Indians.

After the postponement of yesterday's game on account of rain the fans supposed that Swetonic again would pitch for Indianapolis and Herman Bell would again try to win for Rochester. But the managers said no.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 4—(AP.)—Houston's Buffaloes are baseball champions of the South.

The Texans won the title yesterday by defeating Birmingham, 5 to 1, in the fourth straight victory of the series. Birmingham had won the first two games, played here, but lost three in Houston and dropped the fourth and final contest at Rickwood Field here.

BUILD OHIO TERMINALS AS PGH. NAPS

preparations to celebrate the opening of the Ohio next year with elaborate pageantry and a steamboat parade from Pittsburgh to the Mississippi. But while these great corporations are rejoicing in anticipation of the benefits that are to come to them next year, Pittsburghers generally are offered no hope of being able to utilize the river to the utmost and enjoy the lower freight rates until a much later period. For some time they will have to continue to use the railroads, with their higher rates.

TERMINALS RECOMMENDED

Long ago United States Engineers recommended that in anticipation of a nine-foot stage to Cairo, each community should provide modern facilities for the handling of river freight. The recommendation stipulated that terminals should be under municipal control; have rail connection, preferably a belt line reaching all railroads and the principal industries; provide adequate warehouse and storage space, and have suitable mechanical appliances for handling freight.

A number of down-river cities have established such terminals, but the Pittsburgh Department of Public Works has spent two years already in consideration of a plan, and reports that it will not be ready to submit it to Council until next summer at the earliest. Council already has appropriated $80,000 for the study.

In the meantime scores of local concerns, unwilling to depend on municipal terminals, have provided their own facilities for using the rivers. Cranes, derricks and hoists for loading and unloading water cargoes have been set up on the Ohio River by the Carnegie Steel Company, Youghiogheny Coal Company, Crucible Steel Company, Rodgers Sand Company, Duquesne Light Company, Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Company, Pressed Steel Car Company, Pittsburgh Forge and Iron Company, Keystone Sand and Supply Company, Concrete Products Company of America, Independent Bridge Company, Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation and numerous other concerns. Other such terminals have been established on the banks of the Monongahela and Ohio.

While these concerns are prepared to take advantage of a year-round navigable stage of water to the Mississippi, smaller companies and the public generally will be unable to use the river to full advantage because of the lack of municipal terminals. The only facilities available for them will be the paved wharves, none of which is equipped with mechanical devices for loading and unloading or for transfer of freight between barge and railroad car.

ST. LOUIS HAS DOCK

St. Louis has a public dock built and controlled by the city and served by railroad tracks. Facilities are ample for loading direct from boat to cars, and millions of tons of mixed merchandise are thus handled.

At Memphis the municipal authorities purchased a 700-ton capacity barge moored to the bank adjacent to a storage house. River freight is elevated into the warehouse by means of two-ton capacity cars traveling on an inclined track extending from the warehouse to the barge. The city has an excellent river-rail terminal. Several Pittsburgh concerns have established yards and warehouses there.

"Something practical such as a first unit in the way of dock facilities, with loading and unloading cranes is what Pittsburgh needs," Robert Garland, city councilman, said last night at a banquet for the delegates.

Garland was toastmaster at the dinner. He declared he was opposed to the proposed flood wall, which would cost some $30,000,000. He said that if there are floods the loss is trivial and what the city needs most is something practical.

"We must take care of the [illegible]er shipper, manufacturer or merchant who will ship in carloads and less," Garland said. "If one unit is not sufficient, others can be added, but the thing to do is to get busy, and the Lord deliver us from visionary engineers and procrastinators," he said.

HOLD FINAL SESSION

The Ohio Valley Improvement Association held its final business session in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium this morning. Formal addresses were delivered by half a dozen speakers, resolutions were reported and acted upon, and plans for the 1929 celebration of the opening of the Ohio was discussed.

One of the speakers, Lachlan Macleay, of St. Louis, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Association, told of its successful effort to secure legislation requiring the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix joint rail and river rates and equitable division of revenue between barge lines and all-rail carriers connecting with river terminals. He continued:

"We want to see barges carrying the grains of the Midwest in 10,000-ton tows coming into port in Pittsburgh at port-to-port rates, equal to the present grain rates on the Great Lakes. We want to see the iron, steel and coal of this rich Ohio territory carried back as return cargo to the people of the great corn and wheat belt. We want to see cotton from Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana come into the port of Pittsburgh for transport by rail to New England mills at rate savings that will aid that section to meet competition in the markets of the world. This is no idle dream, but a sure-fire success, and is being proved reasonable by the operations now on the Mississippi between St. Louis and New Orleans.

LOW FREIGHT RATE

"When we have standard gauge nine-foot channels with standard locks throughout the heavy tonnage producing area of the valley, when we have joint rates with all connecting rail lines, and when we have completed our system of rail and river terminals on the Mississippi, the Ohio, the Illinois and the Missouri, we will see barge lines under private operation as common carriers, transporting the products of the farms, the mines and the factories at rates as low in cost per ton-mile as are now in effect on the Great Lakes and the coastwise steamer lines between the North Atlantic and the Gulf ports. This is the future, the accomplishment, the certain result the Mississippi Valley Association, the Ohio and the Mississippi Valleys, working together, will bring home to our people."

This afternoon the delegates are being entertained by the Carnegie Steel Company in a tour of the rivers on the steamer William G. Clyde. The party will proceed to Monongahela City and return from there on a special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Officers of the association were re-elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Oscar F. Barrett; secretary, W. C. Caulkins, and treasurer, George Puchta. About 150 vice presidents were elected, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois all being given generous representation.

Teacher Betty Schorey wasn't late for school. Why wasn't Teacher Betty Schorey late for school? Because Teacher Betty hopped into an airplane at her home in Virginia and flew to school in Washington. Pilots Scarce Who Know Ohio To Cairo

There is a scarcity of pilots who know the Ohio River from Pittsburgh to Cairo, President Oscar F. Barrett told the Ohio Valley Improvement Association today. Accordingly for the steering of the boats that are to go down the stream in a parade next year in celebration of the completion of canalization it may be necessary to recall from retirement some of the superannuated pilots of an earlier generation.

Jeff Williams, president of the Green River Improvement Association, proposed that the federal government be asked to establish training schools for Ohio River pilots.

Very sincerely yours,

Sun-Telegraph:

Congratulations to your beautiful picture section in last Sunday's paper. And also again my congratulations in your courageous fight over the bus fares.

Squirrel Hill.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 1, 1928.

Dear Editor:

Your color-gravure section is very wonderful and is certainly an improvement over the old rotogravure in portraying works of art as well as the beauties of nature. Why not let us see the works of the Pittsburgh artists entered in the International Art Exhibition in their real colors this year? AN ART LOVER.

Oct. 1, 1928.

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

Gentlemen:

I am an artist and have just returned from a summer in Maine, and I have just seen your natural-color section of pictures for the first time. It is marvelous—the most wonderful thing I have ever seen in a newspaper.

I notice that the reproductions of paintings are the most beautiful examples. And with the International Exhibition of Paintings opening in a few weeks, I hope you will take advantage of this opportunity of showing the people of Pittsburgh the work of its own artists. Sincerely,

G. S. L.

Dear Sir:

Congratulations on your color gravure section. I think it is the last word in newspaper printing. I thank you. CRAFTON PA.

women and beat some of them severely and that the prisoners were kept in jail for lengthy periods to allow their wounds to heal and thus destroy outward evidence of brutality.

Clark said he had not had time to read the letter thoroughly, but that after he had done so he would direct the inspectors of the districts wherein the abuses were alleged to have been committed to make a detailed report of each arrest mentioned in Verona's letter.

If the charges are sustained, Clark will order the policemen who made the arrests and beat the prisoners to appear before the police trial board. Conviction by the board would result in the discharge of those guilty, the director said.

MAY CALL FORNEY

Although he had previously indicated that it might not be necessary to call Albert Forney, slot-machine racketeer, to tell what part his coin-harvesters played in alleged graft rule, Gardner announced yesterday that he "probably would do so, unless Forney decides to stand on his constitutional rights."

When the jury adjourned yesterday after examining 18 witnesses, Mr. Gardner expressed himself as well pleased with the results.

"There's been a lot of chaff," he said, "but there's been a lot of wheat, too. Almost every witness has given us new leads, and we'll follow every one to the end. We're going to get somewhere with this thing."

"I welcome and desire the aid of every citizen interested in this investigation, and anyone having information they believe will be helpful to me will be given a hearing if they present themselves."

Film Discolors Teeth and then destroys them

Remove it this special way dentists now are widely urging

IF your teeth are not white and gleaming, 9 chances in 10 they are covered with a dingy film. No matter how often you use ordinary brushing methods, this dingy film is not removed successfully. To accomplish this, dentists widely urge the use of a special tooth paste known as Pepsodent.

Film stains teeth

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums—a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum disorders. Film absorbs the stains from food and smoking and gives that cloudy look. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar (a hardened film deposit), are the chief cause of pyorrhea. To remove film use the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film and easily remove it in gentle safety to enamel.

Don't expect the same results from old-time dentifrices. See for once and all how white and bright teeth really are. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Think twice before you risk lovely teeth with cheap dentifrices. Millions would purchase Pepsodent at any price as the highest scientific safeguard known.

Outside Loans Encourage Federal Reserve Tinkering

By B. C. FORBES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.

WALL STREET'S behavior cause the politicians to monkey with the Federal Reserve act, throwing our banking system into the melting pot?

Most of the several thousand bankers here attending the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association would oppose the bringing on of such agitation and uncertainty; but they fear that events may make political action possible—even desirable.

WHAT is it all about?

Briefly, the Federal Reserve law was intended to bring the nation's banking resources under supervision and, when necessary, regulation. Until the stock market began to indulge in spectacular high-jinks all went reasonably well.

Then things took an unforeseen turn. The unprecedented marking up of stock quotations attracted unprecedented speculation, and this led to unprecedented borrowing by brokers and to almost unprecedented rates for money in Wall Street.

THESE tempting rates—7 to 10 per cent for day-to-day loans and 7 to 7½ per cent for 60-day to six-months' loans—began to be taken advantage of by wealthy individual lenders, opulent corporations, investment trusts, foreign interests, etc.

Today the volume of this non-bank, outside, unregulated, "bootleg" money approximates two billion dollars, a staggering sum, equal to about 40 per cent of all reported bankers' loans.

This is viewed by conservative bankers, and doubtless by many politicians, as a menace to the orderly stability and prosperity of the nation. Hence the agitation for remedial action by Congress.

EVERY responsible, unbiased authority agrees that Wall Street has arrogated to itself an undue share of the nation's monetary and credit kitty. This commonwealth is not run in the interest of Wall Street or the stock market. The stock market is run—at least theoretically—in the interest of the commonwealth.

The stock market having commandeered more than its normal share of the national monetary resources, thus compelling agricultural, commercial and all other borrowers to pay higher rates for needed loans, the cry beginning to be raised is, "Stop it."

Well, what should the answer be?

ECONOMIC laws are in harmony with the laws of nature. And nature has a way of dealing with lawbreakers, a way of either punishing or ending excesses.

Admittedly the existing conditions in the money market, in our lending operations, in Wall Street are unsatisfactory. Our reserve banking system, which was designed to regulate, is not regulating as intended.

Wall Street borrowers have discovered a way to conduct wholesale borrowing over which the Reserve authorities haven't the slightest supervision, since neither the broker borrowers nor the non-bank lenders come under the jurisdiction of the Federal Reserve Board.

But will the ongoings we have been witnessing last? Just as prosperity brings with it the seeds of its own destruction, so evils and excesses and abnormalities have a habit of bringing their own undoing, their own end.

IN MY humble opinion there should be no haste in demanding one more law or any drastic change in existing law, as it is the height of improbability that the stock market will continue for long to resemble a frenzied, gay Monte Carlo. Excesses always end. So will Wall Street's.

The sentiment of this convention, so far as I have been able to sound it, is against hasty tampering with our banking and currency statutes. The prevailing attitude is, "Let's wait and see."

WOULD it be impertinent for an outsider to suggest to our biggest bankers, especially those in the main cities, that they have the remedy largely in their own hands?

Have they done everything in their power to discourage and discountenance the unregulated, outlaw lending now causing all the trouble?

Or is it not true that they have in most instances been afraid to say "Boo!" when approached with requests to place for their customers these undesirable loans, the very ones through whom the money is rented out?

Admittedly individual, isolated action by bankers would be ineffective. But would wholehearted co-operation prove wholly futile? If so, then the bankers must be prepared to step aside and let the politicians intervene if the evil does not meanwhile greatly abate or peter out.

I HAVE a vague premonition that before Congress can act the nonbankers who have become wholesale lenders may be frightened into pulling in their horns from the Wall Street banking business they have been finding so delightfully alluring and profitable.

THE alternative to ending it is mending it. But first give nature a chance.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Fresh upturns in corn values today followed publication of an address by Secretary Jardine advising 50,000,000 bushels increase in feeding of corn this season. Persistent commission house demand for corn future deliveries was much in evidence. Opening ⅛c to ⅜@½c up, corn later scored material further gains; wheat rallied with corn, starting at ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance, and subsequently showing upturns all around; oats were firm; provisions held steady.

Highest prices which March and May deliveries of corn have touched yet this season were reached today. The advance was in the face of liberal profit-taking sales on the part of holders.

Instead of influencing other grain as generally is the case, wheat today was governed much of the time by upward swings of the corn market. Meanwhile, notice was taken of the fact that India reported no wheat shipments for the last week, and dispatches at hand said that on the contrary India is in urgent need of foreign wheat.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

STOCK ADVANCE CHECKED BUT RESUMED

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(AP.)—A sweeping advance in stock prices today was temporarily checked by a heavy selling movement which followed the publication of a statement by John J. Raskob, former General Motors executive, that prices had far outrun demonstrated values and that a material readjustment was necessary. Early gains, which ran from 2 to nearly 8 points in many cases, were cut down, and in a few instances replaced by losses, but strong buying support was quickly provided and the market was headed upward under new leaders early in the afternoon.

Call money renewed at 7½ per cent, as against 8 yesterday, and then dropped down to 7 as a large volume of funds became available. Funds were available below that figure in the "outside market," leading to expectations of a further shading of the official rate before the end of the week. Sterling exchange dipped to another new low reviving hopes of further gold imports.

Steels gave an impressive demonstration of strength on buying influenced by trade predictions of unusually good last quarter business. General Motors fell back on the Raskob statement, but Chrysler continued to head upward, climbing points to a new high record at 130¾. Packard also moved into new high ground at 98½. National Daily Products reacted on the traditional "selling on the good news" following the declaration of a stock dividend of 4 per cent. Victor Talking Machine, Briggs, National Cash Register, Coty and Pierce Oil preferred all moved into new high ground.

Radio, Atlantic Refining, Eisenlohr and Greene Cananea reacted 3 to 4 points from their high level in the mid-day selling movement and Murray Corporation dropped points.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

C. W. Barron, Pioneer Journalist of Business, Dies — Noted for Fearless Policies.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE father of financial journalism is dead. Clarence W. Barron, who pioneered in the art of writing on business and banking, passed on at Battle Creek on Tuesday.

He was one of the last of the old school of personal journalists. Although the Wall Street Journal and his other publications long ago grew beyond the one-man organization stage, they still reflect the dominant characteristics of the man who developed them.

MR. BARRON was warm-hearted and kindly but, like many of the other outstanding figures in the formative period of American newspapers, his nature was marked by surprising eccentricities.

His mind worked at twice the average speed. He was in the habit of abruptly snapping questions faster than they could be answered. He was disconcerting until an opportunity was had to know his inner nature.

AFTER working nine years on the staff of the Boston Transcript, he formed the Boston News Bureau in 1887. In 1901 he secured control of the Wall Street Journal and subsequently secured the largest circulation of any daily financial paper.

Until shortly before his death he actively managed his various enterprises, traveled extensively and wrote with a rare insight, in spite of his 74 years.

MR. BARRON was fearless in his policies. At one time he refused to allow J. P. Morgan & Company to dictate his attitude on a question of news. The stand resulted in a loss in revenue over a long period of time.

HE EXPOSED the operations of Ponzi. Thousands in Boston were entrusting their savings to Ponzi, who was promising fabulous rates of interest. The alleged financial wizard, when pressed for an explanation of his methods, stated that he was taking advantage of depressed European exchange by buying postal reply coupons which exchanged at par.

Mr. Barron published the fact that Ponzi would have to have a fleet of trucks to move the volume of coupons needed since they were in small denominations. He showed that there were not enough coupons in existence to keep the millions moving.

Ponzi countered with a $1,000,000 libel suit which, of course, was dropped when criminal action was brought against the schemer.

SHORTLY after I joined the staff of the Wall Street Journal, the managing editor presented me to Mr. Barron. The old gentleman, then nearly 70 years of age, weighing over 300 pounds and wearing an imposing white beard, abruptly asked, "What sort of a mind has this?"

THE managing editor implied that I was not quite so stupid as I looked.

"Cover Sulphur," snapped Mr. Barron. "Learn about sulphur companies—sulphur investments—sulphur imports—sulphur markets sulphur production—find where they get the sulphur in hell. That's all."

But Mr. Barron was not always so abrupt. He could be the most charming of hosts, the most delightful company. His memory will be treasured by many.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Stocks Too High—Raskob.

Denying a report that he is interested in current bull market activities, John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman and former chairman of the finance committee of General Motors Corporation, expressed an opinion on security prices in sharp contrast to the optimistic views to which he adhered some time ago. "Newspaper statements and gossip which have accredited recent spectacular advances in certain securities to my activity in the stock market are entirely without foundation," said Mr. Raskob. "In the first place," said Mr. Raskob, "since I have taken this position as Democratic national chairman I have not been near my office, and have not purchased any stock whatsoever. In the second place, it is my opinion that security prices have so far outrun demonstrated values, earning power and dividend returns that a material readjustment is necessary before they will again be attractive to the prudent investor. The course of the bond market is a good indication of where the investor stands in relation to present security prices. Dividend returns are low and money rates are high."

Has Made Powerful Enemies.

Commenting on Mr. Raskob's statement, a representative of one of the big brokerage houses said: "Mr. Raskob has a considerable personal following and his extremely bearis remarks will no doubt have at least a temporary effect upon the market. But it cannot be denied that in recent months he has made some extremely powerful enemies. There is some reason to believe that there may be concerted efforts in some quarters to make it appear his remarks have no effect whatever. In majority of places where we have made inquiry this morning the disposition is to make light of his interview. Even in conservative quarters opinion seem to be generally held that the market has withstood so much during past week that is really important that it is not likely to be permanently influenced by opinion of any single individual."

A Billion Excess Gold.

Governor Young told the bankers' convention at Philadelphia that he sees no harm in the loss of $500,000,000 gold to Europe in the last year. It would remove risks of unstable and disorganized credit among foreign customers of the United States, and that even now the gold reserves of this country are $1,000,000,000 in excess of legal requirements. On the credit situation he said: "More important than the capital contribution is the exercise of care in making loans and buying investments. Since the Federal Reserve banks furnish the basis of credit growth in any field, whether it be commerce, industry, agriculture or the trading in securities, the reserve system feels concern about excessive growth in any line credit. It is impossible for a reserve bank to earmark the credit releases, but when too rapid growth in any line of credit threatens to upset the financial structure of the country and make undue demands on the reserve funds, which should be conserved for the legitimate growth of the country's business, the reserve system can properly use its influence against those undesirable developments."

Credit Will Adjust Itself.

A resolution offered at the bankers' convention today by C. A. Hinsch for the resolution committee says: "We recognize the fact that as corporations which have secured funds through the issuance of securities in excess of current requirements continue to expand they will gradually borrow through the issuance of eligible paper while processing materials and distributing production. We therefore look upon the present situation as one which will ultimately correct itself as time goes on until the banking system of the country again has a proper control over the surplus funds of the country."

Young's Speech a "Dud."

A prominent stock exchange firm says the dreaded speech of Governor Roy A. Young, of the Federal Reserve, turned out to be more or less of a "dud," in that he said about all he could be expected to say and along the lines he had previously outlined. "It is interesting to note," says this house, "that he cited the impossibility of earmarking the destination of credit. This had much to do with the abrupt turn-about in the market after lower sales and substantial losses were registered at the opening today."

Truck Deal Pending.

Negotiations between Reo Motor Car Company and Mack Truck, Inc., involve acquisition of Reo's speed wagon business by Mack and not a merger of the two companies, as first reported. Mack is said to be seeking the speed wagon business to supplement its present heavy duty truck lines with high-powered speedy commercial units. Reo's factory is at Lansing, Mich., while the main Mack factory is in Allentown, Pa. Stocks of the two companies were subjected to spirited bidding on the New York Stock Exchange today, with Mack advancing over 6 points to 101 and Reo climbing to 30, a new high price. The Brockway Motor Company is also mentioned in connection with the deal.

Murray Shorts Trounced.

Shorts in Murray Body had another uncomfortable session, the stock again establishing a new high record following the announcement of the rights which will accrue to stockholders as a result of the offer of one share of additional stock for each share held at a price of only $15 a share. Many in Wall Street have been insisting that there has been no justification for the pronounced advance in the stock, which went up more than 50 points in three weeks. They put out short lines on the theory that a sharp reaction was due. In every instance thus far the shorts have been compelled to rush to cover at higher levels, and the urgent bidding has been responsible for much of the latest advance.

Coke Output Expands.

Coke operators of the Connellsville region reported another healthy gain in production for the week ending September 29—a total of 2,830 tons, a survey by International News Service revealed today. In a fortnight output has increased 8,460 tons. With the firing this week of 657 ovens at plants of the H. C. Frick Coke Company a further increase seems probable, since all of last week's gain was in merchant plants while there was a loss of 50 tons at furnace operations. The total output for the week was 39,320 tons. In the face of slow but steady decreases for several weeks the price of furnace coke has remained unchanged at $2.75. It is reported that more ovens are to be ordered into blast by the Frick Company.

NARROW PRICE CHANGES NOTED IN GENERAL LIST

A flurry in Arkansas Gas common marked the opening of trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today when several thousand shares changed hands in the first few minutes at a fraction above last night's close.

Demand for the stock came into the market suddenly yesterday, and while the upward movement was slow, the buying was steady and the close last night was at a half point above the first sale of the day. On the opening flurry today the price reached 3½, comparing with Tuesday's low of 2⅝, a percentage gain in market price of 33 1-3 per cent. The buying was traced directly to reports of completion of a big well on property near the company's holdings in the Yates district, Texas, but there are also rumors of merger developments involving Arkansas Gas and some of the other Cities Service subsidiaries.

Aside from the dealings in Arkansas, the general list here was rather quiet, but prices held steady to firm. The new Harbison Walker shares were handled again at the best price so far attained. May Drug was firm around 25½, but Carnegie Metals slipped back slightly on a few sales.

During the afternoon session another buying wave in Arkansas struck the market, with the result that it moved up through offerings toward its old high of $4 a share, established shortly after the stock in its present form was admitted to the list. Blocks of stock ranged from 100 to 500 shares on the advance this afternoon, with one lot of 4,100 shares changing hands at 3½, after which the prices broke through that figure on the upward side.

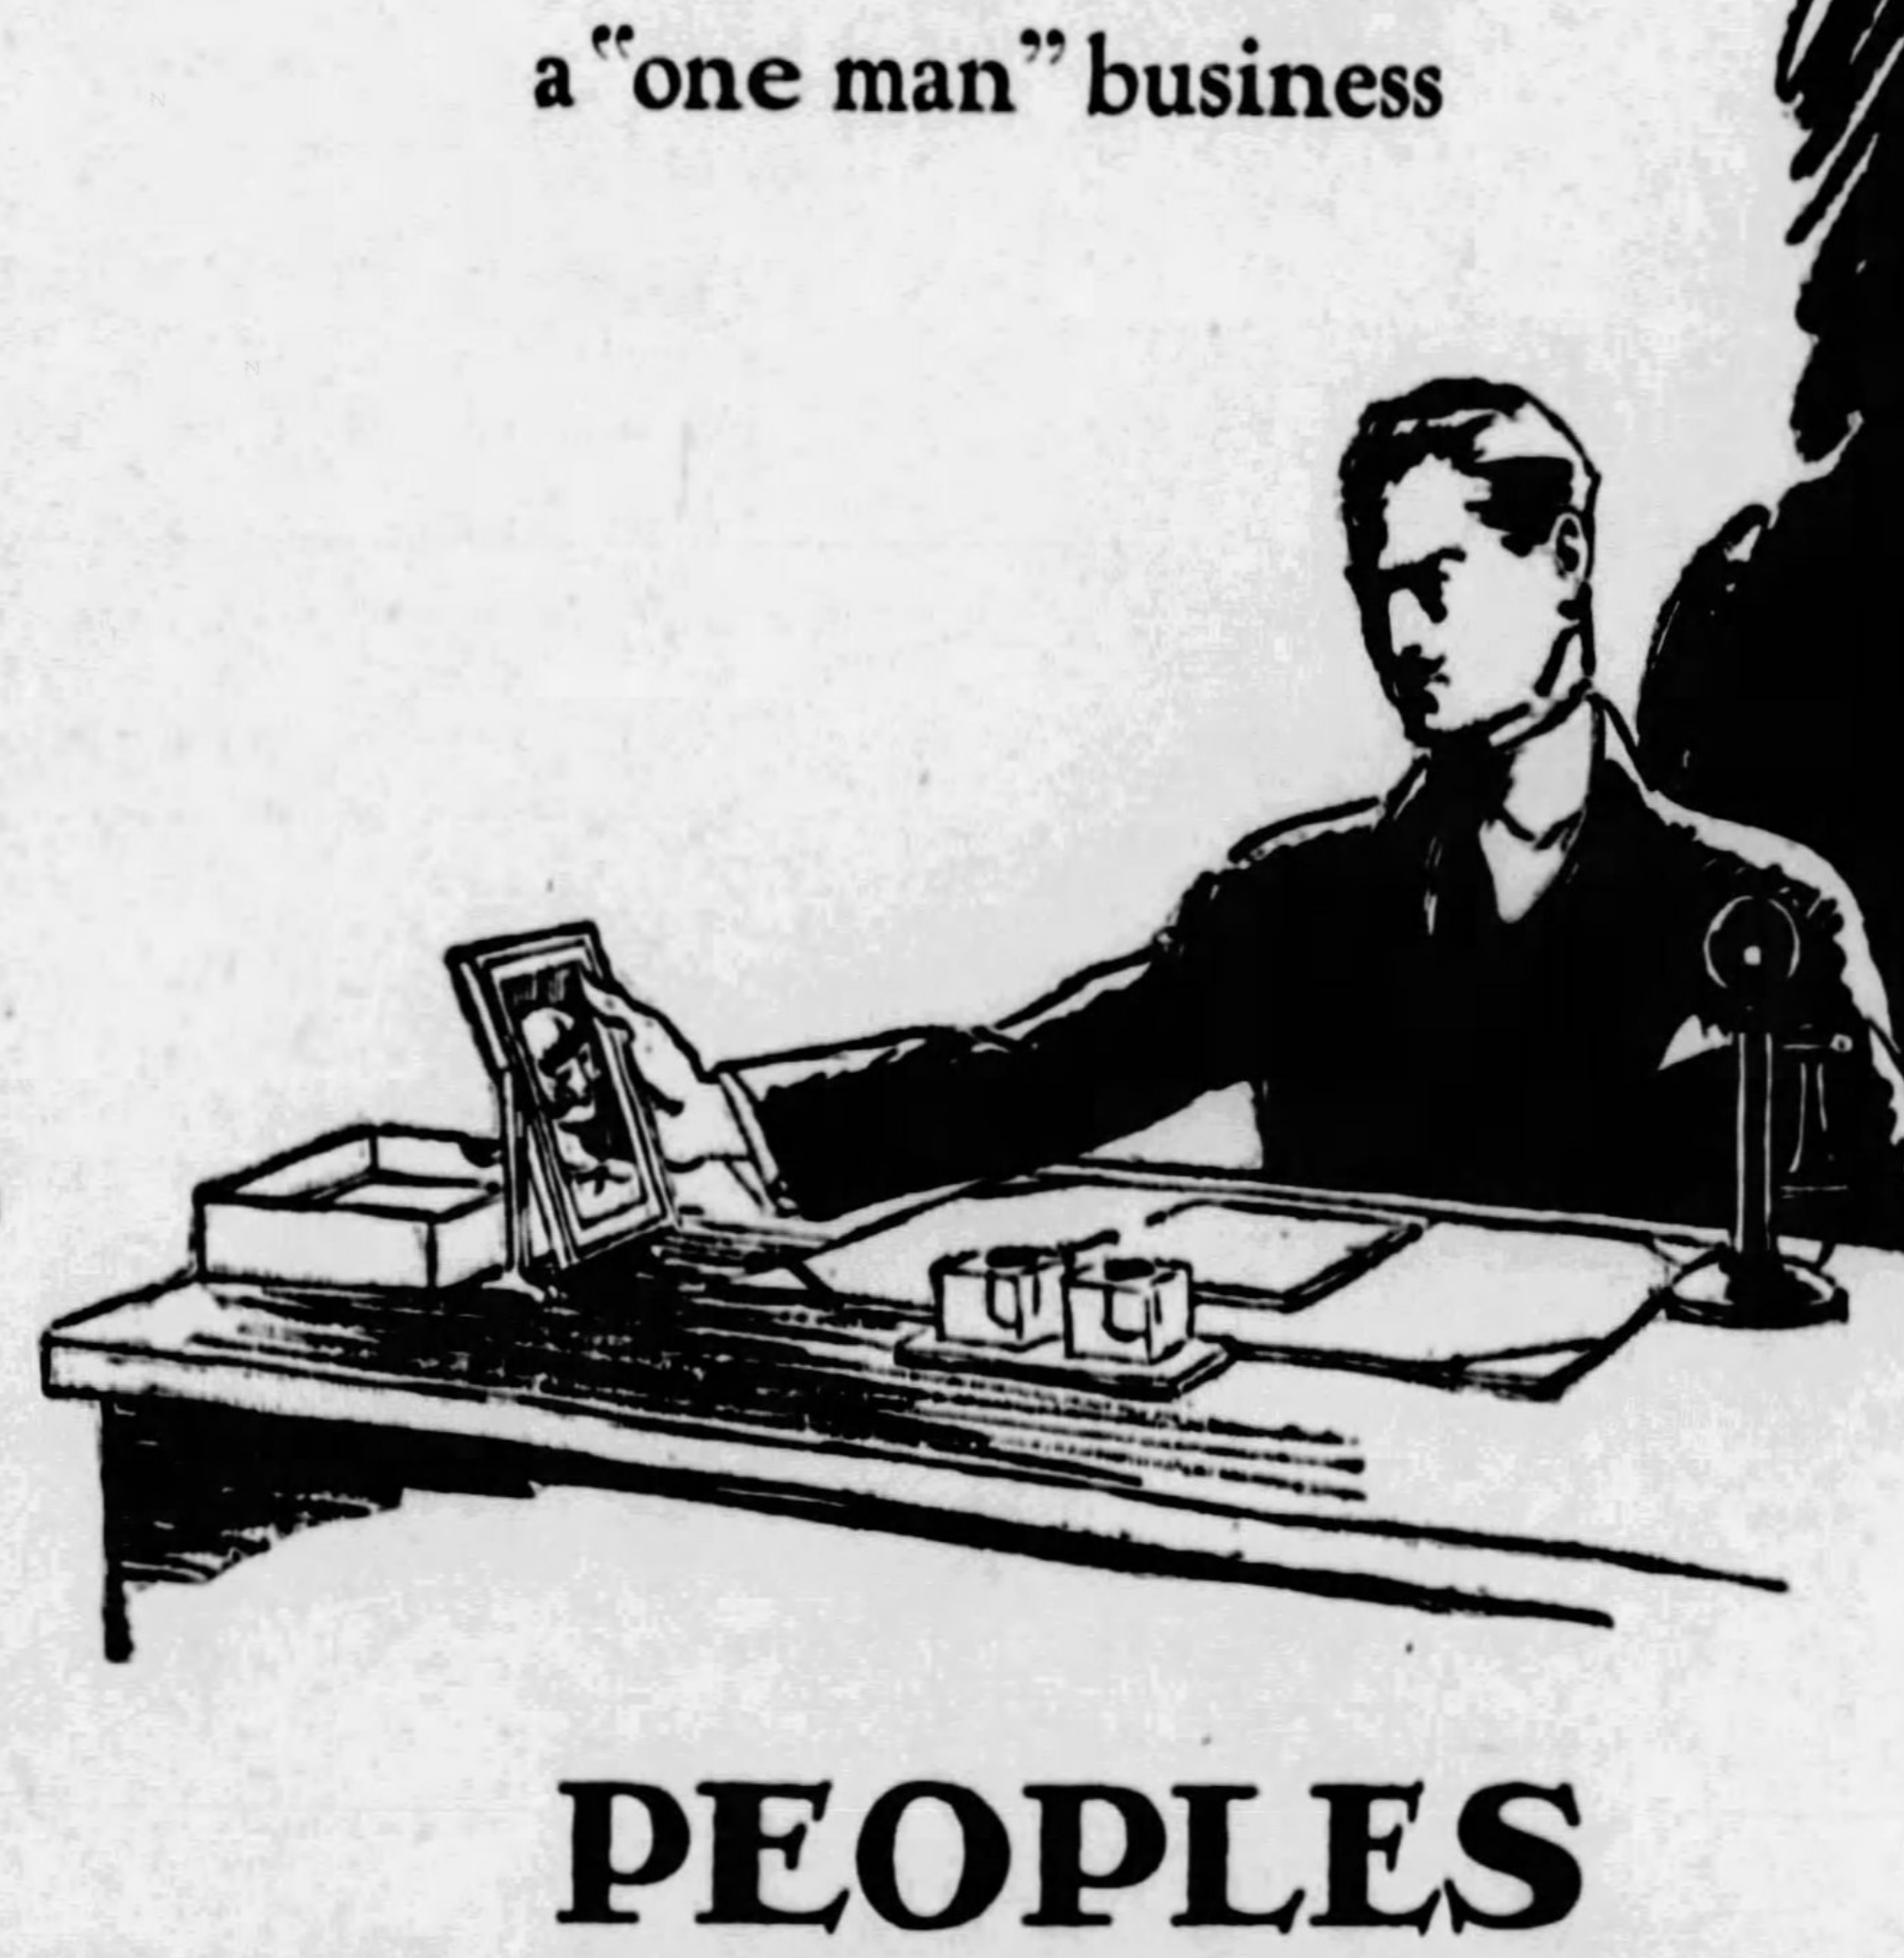
Can my wife run my business?

A vital question for those who conduct a "one man" business



The success of many going concerns depends frequently upon the business experience and judgment of one man.

At his death, through failure to appoint a corporate executor, it often happens that control passes to heirs qualified neither by experience nor inclination to carry on that business successfully.

There is ever the danger of forced liquidation, without regard to the good prospects of the business if continued under competent management.

Or, the inexperienced heirs, continuing the business, are always subject to errors of judgment which may make it a liability instead of an asset.

We submit to men who are confronted with these possibilities, that the appointment of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company of Pittsburgh as Executor and Trustee of their wills, is a forward looking act to insure full consummation of their ambitions to protect loved ones.

FORNEY SEEKING EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY

Alfred W. Forney, alleged head of the slot machine ring in Allegheny county, and now serving a six-months term in the county jail for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, has made application for executive clemency, according to reports from Washington.

The petition was reported to have been made through the Department of Justice, and if the parole board of the department acts favorably on the application it will be forwarded to the President for approval.

If Forney is given his liberty through the clemency of the President, he still faces charges of maintaining gambling devices, preferred by Charles W. Collins of the Children's Service Bureau. Collins recently caused a raid to be made on an alleged repair shop for Forney's machines.

Holdup of Payroll Prize Political Folly

The prize bit of foolishness of the Pennsylvania political machine is the revelation that in spite of Mr. Hoover's disapproval of the gang politician's method of raising money, the Pennsylvania crew in control of the state finds it hard to lay aside the blackjack and forget that there are ways of obtaining money that do not include a preliminary command—"Hands up!"

Fortunately, the real friends of Mr. Hoover are so thoroughly in sympathy with the storm of displeasure aroused over the attempt to hold up the state payroll that Mr. Hoover's candidacy in Pennsylvania probably will not be endangered thereby.

Pennsylvania is for Mr. Hoover—not against him. But it would appear that the State political machine must be his foe. If it is for him it is either very dense or very childish in its way of trying to help him. No better campaign material for his opponent would be needed than to show the political gang successful in trying to make the employes of the state stand and deliver.

The letter sent out by the Republican State Committee requesting recipients to make a VOLUNTARY contribution is innocent enough. The fault is that "voluntary" contribution checks of Pennsylvania employes have been returned with a notation which, strangely, was the amount of three per cent of their salaries. It is said all checks not representing that amount of the donor's pay were returned with the notation mentioned. And everybody was solicited—even teachers in state normal schools.

Gov. Pinchot did not permit such solicitations during his administration, but the Pennsylvania machine evidently never has risen above the "bread and butter" threat. Let it now be forcibly informed that footpad policies are not desired in Pennsylvania either by Mr. Hoover or the rank and file of the people of the state. Mr. Hoover's friends, of course, are perfectly willing to aid his campaign in a financial way to the extent they feel able to, and they will give that support, but they will not be held up.

And they will be prompt to repudiate all attempts at money-raising that smack of thuggery and which would be damaging to the candidacy of the Republican nominee for President, who of course wants not the slightest taint to mar his bright chance of success at the polls.

Million for Welfare Is Goal of Campaign

After many weeks of thorough preparation the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh has completed the organizing of forces and the arrangement of details for conducting a campaign for Pittsburgh's first "community chest," officially called the Welfare Fund. The drive will take place November 12-22 and the goal set is $1,000,000, to be used in 1929 in the charitable activities of the 23 organizations having membership in the fund.

The Welfare Fund chairmen of the various activities in connection with the campaign for $1,000,000 are well-known men under the general chairmanship of Augustus K. Oliver, long associated with the Red Cross. They are men who are and have been giving their time and labor to typify the slogan of the Welfare Fund—"Teamwork for Humanity." They are part of the team. You are part of the team. All of us are. Without the united effort of all of us the teamwork will be faulty and the ultimate result will not be what we should wish it to be. Be ready to do your part when called upon during the period November 12-22. Be prepared to give generously so that our first attempt to systematize our charity may be a great success.

Pittsburgh charity is proverbial and we need no spur—we only need to be reminded. A significant reminder is one that we extract from a circular letter issued by the Welfare Fund:

> "There are in the Pittsburgh district today many little tots, and older boys and girls, to whom life would present a hopeless outlook if it were not for organized forms of helpfulness. In no other way can they be saved from the ravages of disease, or the blight of immoral influence.
> "There are many older people, sick and sorrowing, who face disaster through no fault of their own. Our hearts swell with pride in the growth of our community, and yet the very size of this great city would allow many to suffer unknown if it were not for the sympathetic service made possible by our philanthropic agencies."

Salvation Army Needs $116,500 for Unfortunate

The public now has the privilege of contributing to the budget which will enable the Salvation Army to carry on its magnificent work in Allegheny county next year. The need for the year is $116,500 and the appeal is to continue until the fifteenth of this month. But don't wait until the final day—send a check now. H. C. McEldowney, 425 Second avenue, is treasurer.

This annual appeal, which gives the Salvation Army its major means of maintenance, last year furnished funds for taking care of 57,461 calls for help. It furnishes sinews of "war" for an army that is always ready to do a work of mercy that you would do yourself were it brought to your attention. The Salvation Army not only carries on its routine work, much of which is the care of unfortunate men, women and children, but it is prepared to give quick response to an emergency call like that occasioned last fall by the North Side gas tank blast.

The Salvation Army's record is its complete justification. It helps you to help the man who is "down but never out."

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

What Pocked the Moon?

DOES the pock-faced moon tell a story of celestial adventure in which the earth once shared, but whose marks on the face of our planet have been dissimulated by geological surgery and meterological cosmetry? One might be disposed to answer "yes," in the light of what Harlow Shapley has lately detected in the mysterious "cosmic clouds," whose dark masses are found in some of the richest parts of the Milky Way, screening, and sometimes entirely hiding, great fields of distant stars.

It is found by spectroscopic analysis of the faint light which some of these clouds emit that they resemble meteors and comets in their chemical constitution. Upon this basis Dr. Shapley (the power of whose scientifically trained imagination is shown in his revolutionary work on the shape and size of the universe, on the constitution and destiny of globular star clusters, on the nature and the absolute magnitudes of distances of "Cepheid variables," on the "pulsation" of great suns, etc.), suggests that where meteoric matter abounds in such quantities as these vast cosmic clouds indicate, the stars surrounded by them may be subjected to a "steady rain of meteors," which serves to feed their fires.

Astronomers have before thought of the possibility that our sun's energies might be largely maintained by the infall of meteors and comets, but investigation showed that in this case the supply could hardly be large and continuous enough to be counted as an important factor in the sun's activity. But where we now are in space there is comparatively very little extraneous matter subjected to the sun's attraction. In a remote former time, however, as Shapley himself has suggested, the solar system may have passed through a region where nebulous matter was abundant (for instance, of space containing the Orion nebulae), and then there may have been a continuous influx of meteors upon the sun and, as well, upon its attendant planets. Of course the question arises whether the planetary system can be supposed to have existed at that time, but recent studies of the enormous periods of time included in the lifetime of the earth no less than in that of the sun, would seem to justify the assumption that the planets are old enough to have accompanied the sun when its flight perchance carried it through some of the nebulous regions that we see in and near the Milky Way. Remember that the speed of the solar system in its space flight would carry it about 375,000,000,000,000 miles in a million years. That is more than sixty light-years—nearly eight times the distance of the star Sirius! Yet geologists tell us that the ancestors of man were already dwelling on the earth a million years ago.

If the earth were peppered with huge meteors when the sun passed through a cosmic cloud, the earth's child, the moon, must have suffered likewise. A standing mystery is the origin of the thousands of pits resembling huge volcanic creaters that crowd the face of the moon. Can they have been made by the awful meteoric rain? That they are the marks of meteor falls is no new suggestion, but the unanswered question has always been: "Whence did they come?" We may have the answer above. But how about the earth; why is it not pitted, too, and even more than the moon? Perhaps it was once but, as before suggested, the many changes that the crust of the earth has undergone and the marvellous effect wrought upon its surface by atmospheric agencies may have obliterated and covered up its scars. The famous Canyon Diablo in Arizona might be regarded as a mark left by a late and wandering meteor at the hither edge of the great storm.

The moon is an almost changeless world, without atmosphere, without rain, without water, without it may be, sufficient internal agency to refigure its surface as that of the earth has been refigured again and again in the course of geological time. So it has retained its scars.

Once Overs

Living Beyond Means?

WHEN you "put up a front" that costs you many hours of uneasiness, you are likely to wonder what would happen should you be incapacitated for work before you had liquidated.

There are many men who are doing just this thing, and when the uneasiness is justified by business reverses they suffer heart failure.

When you figure up at the end of each year you are generally shocked by the realization of how little you have saved in proportion to your income.

You call yourself a fool and decide that the forthcoming year shall see a change in your business methods.

For a little while, perhaps, you economize on little things.

But you do not retrench on expensive activities that give you so much pleasure, and you are willing to gamble on results when you see a chance of getting ahead by your wits.

You even reduce your outlay for food, except when you are lavish for effect.

Why conduct your affairs from a selfish personal standpoint?

Why spend your money to win the good will of a really indifferent public?

Get a common sense viewpoint of the most real benefit to your family and yourself, and then have stamina enough to live up to it.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Peril

YEAR on year he ventured
  Into unknown lands,
Piercing tangled jungles,
  Treading track[illegible]nds.

Never did he falter,
  Never did he ask
Less of risk or danger
  In his daily task.

Lesser men with wonder
  Followed his career,
Marveled at his daring,
  All untouched by fear.

But when rumors reached him
  Of the world's amaze
At the splendid record
  Of his dauntless days.

With bright gaze uplifted,
  Steadily he said:
"I could fear no peril
  Save to be afraid!"

Great Passages from the Bible

"Preserve Me, O God"

(Psalm 16)

PRESERVE me, O God: for in thee do I put my trust.

O my soul, thou hast said unto the Lord, Thou art my Lord: my goodness extendeth not to thee:

But to the saints that are in the earth, and to the excellent, in whom is all my delight.

Their sorrows shall be multiplied that hasten after another god: their drink offerings of blood will I not offer, nor take up their names into my lips.

The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot.

The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage.

I will bless the Lord, who hath given me counsel: my reins also instruct me in the night seasons.

I have set the Lord always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved.

Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall rest in hope.

For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THEY still tell pretty good stories about barbers. Some of them is not so good, but they sound like barbershop stories anyhow.

This here customer was in a village barbershop and he seemed to be suffering pretty silently. He had got himself three slashes on the face, and maybe a couple on the neck, before he said anything. He was a polite sore of a guy, and seemed to be a Frenchman.

Finally this patient customer raises up in the chair, and says to the barber, "Say, Joe, can't I have a razor too?"

"A razor, you? What you need a razor for?"

"Well, just as you wish," says the customer, laying back in the chair again. "You can give me a pistol if you want to, but it don't seem right for me to be defenseless here, and you carrying on like you are."

Well, What About It?

A FIRM of Chinese merchants, who had advertised in a local paper for a male shorthand typist, received the following reply from an applicant:

"Sir—I am Bung-Ho. I can drive a typewriter with good noise, and my English is it. My last job has left itself from me for a simple reason that the big man has dead. It was on account of not my fault.

"So, honorable sirs, what about it? If I can be of big use to you I will arrive on same date as you can guess.

"Yours reflectively, Bung-Ho."

Competition

IN the art department of a large West End store hung a small painting of an old and tattered wayfarer.

Beneath it was a ticket bearing the legend, "Homeless," and the price, $50.

A shabby visitor, almost the exact counterpart of the picture, stood gazing at it in astonishment.

"S'truth," remarked the shabby one eventually, "that's pretty hot. I'm homeless myself, but they could have me for a quarter."

Honeymoon Salad

THE newly married couple stopped for lunch at an hotel where the manager was rather assiduous in his attentions. For the tenth time he sailed up.

"And what can I do for you now, sir?"

"Some honeymoon salad, please."

"You have me there, sir," replied the manager. "May I ask what it consists of?"

"Just lettuce alone."

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—There are some 3,000 persons in New York who walk in darkness. Few cities are more thoughtful of the blind. Among several institutions to aid them is the New York Lighthouse for the Blind on East Fifty-ninth street.

Here those who suddenly find themselves groping in eternal night are comforted and aided in becoming reconciled to their fate. They are also taught trades that make them self-supporting, and learn their greatest comfort of all—the Braille system of reading.

It has been noticed that those stricken blind react and take an interest in living in from four to six weeks. During that agonizing interim they usually sit about in abject dejection as one physically and mentally stunned.

Oddly enough, there is almost always a law of compensation in operation for the blind. Those who have become accustomed to their affliction are invariably smiling and happy. They have a keen zest for the theater and other public amusements and are especially fond of music.

On First avenue near Thirty-fourth street is a several-storied brick building which houses The Blind Men's Club. Here they come during leisure periods to converse, play games, read and otherwise fraternize just as people do in the average clubs.

Two blind beggars, known as Damon and Pythias, cross Forty-second street every morning arm in arm, separate at the library corner to go to their stands. Shortly before dusk they meet there again and tap their way home to Third avenue. They are always chatting happily.

There is a superstition among theatrical people that it is bad luck to pass a blind man without dropping a coin in his cup, and consequently most of those who seek alms do so at posts along the Rialto. If one doubts Broadway's generosity he has only to ask a blind man.

An unusual sightless character in New York's midtown is Blind George. He was born blind and has been able to support himself and his wife comfortably conducting a newspaper hutch. For years he held forth in Herald Square, and one morning he came to work and found his stand must come down that day for a new building.

Two days later he was the owner of a larger and better stand on a Bryant Park corner—a tribute to the quick helping hand of Broadway in distress. Not one donor gave his name.

Blind George knows his customers by voices and calls them by name. Men who have been away for a year or more return to his place and are instantly greeted by name. He is a cheerful soul and a fount of gossip of Broadway and its doings.

On Second avenue in the Ghetto there is a blind cafe pianist who belies the belief the blind do not enjoy smoking tobacco. While he plays he puffs constantly at a cigar.

In Chinatown there used to be a pair of young blind buskers who moved from saloon to saloon to clog dance for pitched coins. They were twins and had been made sightless by the explosion of a Fourth of July toy cannon.

One of the most famous of the New York merchants was a blind man known all over America as "Broadway Roush." He built up a gigantic business and left an estate worth several millions.

New York's official reception committees operate with the dash and precision of a set of Tiller dancing girls, but what starts many of us catching at our thumbs is their method of occupying all the choice seats in the paraded carriages and thereby completely hiding the distinguished visitors. In five efforts to peek at arriving heroes and heroines, I've seen only reception committees, and from now on I intend to remain home and catch up with the funny papers.

World Peace

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Mr. Jules Sauerwein, foreign editor of the Paris Matin, says in regard to the Kellogg compact: "The United States takes a world-wide responsibility of which she has shunned the risk for the last 10 years."

By this compact, he claims, the United States government becomes the moral guardian of the status quo created by the peace treaty and subsequent treaties.

He says that one should not underestimate the responsibilities and duties of the United States.

What does this mean? Is the United States really coming into the League of Nations through the back door?

Will the Senate, alarmed by the possibility of the United States "meddling with European politics," reject the arrangement of Mr. Kellogg as it rejected the plans of Mr. Wilson?

The country is now in the throes of a political campaign. It is well known that both Mr. Kellogg and Mr. Hoover were at one time favorable toward Mr. Wilson's scheme.

It is to be hoped that no appeal to national vanity or chauvinism will interrupt the successful progress of Mr. Kellogg.

Unless we miss our guess, the people of the United States want no more war and are persuaded that they can attain this object only by some sort of agreement among the leading nations of the world.

How that agreement shall be reached they do not care.

As they used to pray at revival meetings, "Lord, send salvation by whom Thou wilt, but send salvation."

If we can just have peace let anybody crow that wants to, and let anybody that wants to say "I told you so."

At any rate it is significant that the leading nations of the world are anxious to talk peace. Nations have found out that war does not pay. It costs too much human life and money even to the victors.

It is a far cry from this state of things to the old days when every young man expected some time to be a soldier. The young men are just as brave and self-sacrificing as they ever were, but they don't care for fighting as a trade.

It is sincerely to be hoped that people will forget their personal animosity and bury their personal grievances and partisan heats long enough to let this new compact go through.

The matter of world peace should never have been a partisan question in the first place. It is a national question and should receive the support of all citizens of whatever party.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By LEOLA ALLARD.

SOME of the reasons why marriage is a failure were listed recently at an afternoon tea party of 10 women who decided to be perfectly frank in their discussion. So far as anyone knows, all of them are reasonably happy at home, and they founded their opinions on the experiences of their friends. They were good listeners, and so were well supplied with the troubles of other women.

These, they decided, were the faults of wives:

Wondering if their husbands were as much in love as before marriage and requiring constant reiteration of the statement that they are.

Wondering if their husbands are giving them allowances commensurate with their incomes.

Wondering if husbands would give them more if they loved them more.

If the amount seems inadequate, wondering if husband could by any chance be spending money on some-one else.

Wondering if they would have done better to have married the other fellow and if the luxuries he could have furnished would have made up for the lack of interest.

Wondering why it is that at dinner there is so much quiet and so little conversation, and forever asking what the trouble can be.

Wondering if husband does what he says he does and goes where he says he goes when he is out for the evening.

What matrimony needs, they concluded, is more faith, a little less exaction on the part of wives, more good nature, less of an inclination to nail a man to a spot and not permit him even a wriggle.

The wives' fault seemed to be wondering.

The men too often think that a nice warm place to loaf, plenty to wear and enough to eat is all that a wife should require. They don't wonder enough.

Husbands whose wives are not given the liberty of finding work of their own forget that they need diversion. The fact that they do not think of this, the wives decided, is what has driven women into business and to divorce courts.

Another male fault is not knowing that a new hat does more to improve the morale of a woman than anything yet discovered.

Giving her money to buy her own Christmas and birthday presents is a mistake, and if they do buy them not taking the trouble to find out exactly what would make that wife happiest.

I had five letters last week registering the complaint that these five women were married to men who never took them any place. This tea group decided that women would be infinitely more entertaining if they were entertained occasionally.

All of it was summed up in the statement that women have too much curiosity and men too much indifference.

What do you think about it? Is your home happy, and why?

The Burning Question

BIG league umpires have suggested a few minor changes in baseball rules. On the biggest problem they were silent.

Should a pitcher be permitted to pass a batter at will, or should he be required to take his chances?

Here is a referendum that ought to go to the fans.
